Mark Left by Hand Upon Radiator of Slain Man's Car Found.

SCORES OF PERSONS QUIZZED BY POLICE

BUS LINE EMPLOYES ARE CALLED IN CASE

Statements of Neighbors Who Heard Scuffle Are Taken.

A man hunt, with the scientific apparatus of the criminologist's laboratory pitted against the cunning of a desperate gunman was under way last night as homicide squad detectives sought to turn the spotlight of their probe on the slayer of Louis Bush, 60-year-old financier, who died at Emergency Hospital yesterday morning.

Mr. Bush failed to rally after blood transfusions were twice resorted to by attending physicians. His deathbed statement shed little light on the mysterious figure which obtruded itself from the shadows of the garage at the Bush home as the financier returned to his home shortly after 10 o'clock Monday night. Mr. Bush had said that an attempt at robbery precipitated a hand-to-hand encounter which ended when his assailant opened fire.

Hand Print Found.

A bloody hand print besmirching the nickeled radiator of Mr. Bush's car opened a new lane of investigation. It was photographed and enlarged at Police Headquarters yesterday and furnishes one of the most important clews, police say.

Although there is the possibility that the print will prove to be that of some one who came to his aid after the shooting, the investigators are placing their faith in that smear as the solution of the mystery. They point out that the financier staggered into his home after the shooting, and before the scuffle and shots had attracted any one to the scene of the crime.

Microanalysis, which figures largely in the solution of crimes by the savant-detectives of fictoin is playing a part in the search for the murderer of Mr. Bush. The dead man's clothing, bloodstained and disheveled in his struggle to overpower the gunman, will tell its story to investigators through the medium of powerful lens and chemical tests.

Bullets Tell Story.

Criminologists by this method are able to tell the color and texture of the clothing worn by an unknown person besides often learning the most significant details of his movements from minute particles which attach themselves to wearing apparel.

The two bullets removed from the gun victim's wounds have already been subjected to microscopic tests. They are of .32-caliber and were fired from an automatic pistol. One of two slugs, which went wide of their mark, lodged in the masonry of a house near the Bush residence and in reconstructing the crime detectives located it and will have it extracted.

Application for permission to retrieve the bullet has already been made with the owner of the house. The work will necessitate the removal of part of the wall, at considerable expense to the District.

Employes Are Finger-Printed.

Employes of the Gray Line Motor Tours, Inc., of which Mr. Bush was the owner, yesterday appeared at headquarters and submitted to the finger-printing process. They included a number of drivers, some of whom are former taxicab operators. A young woman was with them.

The statements of neighbors of the slain man who heard his outcries and the scuffle which preceded the sound of four shots were also recorded by the investigators. Mrs. Oscar J. Gatchell, of 2733 Thirty-sixth street northwest, wife of an Army officer, reported that she heard a man's voice calling for help, a scuffle and then a shot rang out.

She ran from her upstairs bedroom window downstairs to a telephone and as she did so, heard three other shots. She called police.

Trace Bush's Movements.

The police probe also led to an investigation of Mr. Bush's movements on Monday. It was learned that he spent a part of the afternoon at the

Calvin Coolidge

Says: If self-government is to continue to be a success the voters must take their duties seriously. As the relations of the Government in both our political and economic life become increasingly intricate the necessary qualifications for discharging the functions of high office must be correspondingly raised. Administration and legislation are becoming more and more an exact science. It is no longer possible to expect the best results from men and women without previous training in public activities.

For important political service the three qualifications necessary are character, ability and experience. Some of the voters are not giving sufficient consideration to these requirements. They are often supporting candidates whose greatest appeal is that they are good fellows. An agreeable personality is a fine quality but it is not enough to administer a great office. It is vain to support office seekers who smile, if it results in electing office holders who are not competent.

The Government can not be run successfully by substituting the power of entertainment for the power of accomplishment. The essential quality for the voters to require in their choice of candidates is capacity for public service.

HERRICK IS DECLARED GUILTY IN RUM CASE

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 8.—Manuel Herrick, a former representative from Oklahoma, yesterday was found guilty in the United States District Court of manufacturing and possessing liquor. Judge Morris A. Soper, who sat at the trial, deferred sentence for further consideration.

The jury which returned the verdict convicting the former legislator along with two other defendants, who stood trial with him, was out less than ten minutes.

Acting as his own counsel, the representative admitted he was working at the still where he was apprehended by the dry agents on August 6, but contended that he was doing so for the purpose of getting information to send to the prohibition department in Washington.

According to the testimony of Joseph R. Brewer, Walter H. Schult, Charles R. McCartney and John T. Weigel, prohibition agents, who arrested the three defendants, the men were found about dawn at a still site near Great Mills, St. Mary's County.

Herrick was firing the boiler of a large still, and was also aiding a Negro to fill the apparatus with the ingredients for making whisky. William Airey, another defendant, was on a truck full of supplies for the still when the agents came on the scene, it was said.

When the officers were noticed, Herrick, the Negro, who later was found to be Pius B. Ennels, and Airey, all attempted to escape. Herrick and Ennels were captured after a short chase, but Airey got away. He was later arrested by Brewer at a general merchandise store, of which Airey is the proprietor, about a mile from the still.

Herrick is said to have told the agents he was working for the De-

CRIME COMMISSION WORKING ON REPORT

DECLINES TO TAKE SIDES

(Associated Press.)

Assurance that President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission already has gone deep into the subject of prohibition and that it hopes to report definitely to Congress in December on dry law enforcement conditions was given yesterday by Chairman Wickersham, of the commission.

Whether the report will go further and place the commission as for or against prohibition the commission chairman would not say.

He added, however, he still believed "that if the commission reaches the conclusion that prohibition is not enforceable, I think we should say so."

Mr. Wickersham's announcement came after the commission had discussed crime and prohibition problems for more than five hours at the first meeting the group has held since last June. All eleven members were present as the body convened around a table piled high with new reports gathered during the summer.

The preparation of a voluminous survey designed to show "just what the luxury of crime costs the United States," also was made known by Mr. Wickersham. He said a study already was in progress which would in time gather figures on the direct cost of crime—such as the cost of maintaining prisons and administering criminal justice—in every city of over 100,000 population in the country, together with an estimate of the indirect costs of crime, such as crime insurance, losses of stolen goods, losses by arson, and the tributes levied by racketeers.

The commission chairman indicated also considerable work was being done toward determining causes of crime, among which he characterized the World War and prohibition as chief contributors.

The group has before it "an immense amount" of material dealing

ENLISTED ROLL OF NAVY TO BE CUT 4,800 MEN

RECRUITING LIMIT TO EFFECT PROGRAM

LONDON PACT FORCES DECREASE IN SHIPS

Hoover's Economy Schedule Also Reason for New Strength Shift.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The number of enlisted men in the United States fleet will be reduced by 4,800, it was announced yesterday by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations. Under the law, the Navy now is authorized to have an enlisted personnel of 84,500. The actual number, however, is below this.

Admiral Pratt also announced plans for reducing the number of destroyers and submarines, in accordance with the terms of the London Naval Treaty.

Admiral John Halligan, assistant chief of naval operations, estimated that the cut in personnel would result in a saving of $1,379,000 in the remainder of this fiscal year, and a saving of $3,428,949 in the fiscal year of 1932.

Recruiting to Be Limited.

To effect the reduction a program will be put into effect November 1 whereby 200 instead of 400 men will be recruited each month.

The total amount to be saved by the reduction in men and ships was estimated by Admiral Halligan as $11,218,949 for the remainder of this fiscal year and for the fiscal year of 1932. Large as this sum is, it represents only about a tenth of the cost of a modern dreadnaught.

The American Navy now has 284 destroyers, totaling 290,304 tons. Under the terms of the treaty, this tonnage must be reduced to 150,000 tons. Great Britain and Japan also are over the treaty limit with respect to destroyers and must effect a reduction, Great Britain to 150,000 tons, and Japan to 105,450 tons.

Over in Submarines.

The three nations, the United States, Great Britain and Japan, also are over the limit in submarine tonnage. The treaty allows 52,700 tons to each. The submarine strength of this Nation, as representated by submarines built, building, or appropriated for, is 90,810; that of Great Britain, 63,326, and that of Japan 77,842.

The reduction program announced yesterday by Admiral Pratt will not affect battleships, the number of these not having been disturbed by the London treaty.

Admiral Pratt's program is based not only on the London Naval Treaty, but also on President Hoover's general order for all-around governmental economy. It was to carry out this program that he was put in charge of naval operations a bit earlier than was anticipated.

Explains New Program.

Admiral Charles F. Hughes, his predecessor as operations chief, so the story goes, got out of office a bit in advance for the reason that he was not so keen about the economy drive.

Admiral Pratt explained yesterday that the new program is in interest of efficiency as well as economy. The primary task of a peace-time fleet, he said, was to train. Hence, he said, all

HOOVER GIVEN HEARTENING BY SOUTHERN TRIP

BATTLEFIELD SPEECH HELD NONPOLITICAL

TWO SUGGESTIONS TO BUSINESS CITED

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover was back from his contribution to the campaign yesterday with his heart warmed as it has not been in the nearly two years he has been in office.

It came, this heart warming, at the tail end of his trip, his visit to the Carolinas, and after the more or less perfunctory demonstrations, according to members of the party, at Cleveland and Boston.

The Carolina reception, without political significance, was generally described as inspiring and the President as well as the members of his party reflected it yesterday upon their return. Not only at Kings Mountain was he spontaneously and enthusiastically received but at the cities and towns along the route.

It was as if out of the darkness of depression and political attack which has been his unbroken presidential lot, he came suddenly to the wholesome, invigorating light of a people appreciative of an opportunity to see a President.

Non-Political Speech.

And he reciprocated with a non-political, nonseconomic address, simply an essay on American philosophy, but one which his associates say revealed the old Hoover and the poetry which they have always insisted, against many doubting Thomases, beat in his soul.

At any rate the Carolina trip was a stimulating tonic.

Now that he is back, it is for the politicians to take what meat they can from his series of speeches. They constitute the President's last intended say before the November elections.

It was the speech to the bankers at Cleveland from which more will be heard. It is the one from which the Republican workers, particularly in the East, are planning to take their cue.

It contained two promises, not definite, but promises which the Republican leaders believe business generally will quickly give ear to. One was the suggestion that capital gains taxes may come down—the President went no further than to say that an investigation looking to this should be made—and the other was the promise that restrictions governing railroad expenditures for construction and expansion might be lessened.

Plans Seen Under Way.

It is being bruited around, just how authoritatively is not known, that the railroad matter will be dealt with in his next message to Congress, and that the Treasury already has been directed to make a study of the feasibility of reducing capital gains levies. The President said in his Cleveland speech that these levies semed to encourage speculation.

What he has in mind about lessened railroad restrictions is understood to be to make it easier for the railroads to undertake additional construction in times of emergency such

BAHIA RIOTING COSTS U.S. FIRM $2,000,000

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—A board consisting of two government officials and two company engineers estimated that damage amounting to more than $2,000,000 was done by rioters to the property of a subsidiary of the Electric Bonti & Share Co. in Bahia during an alleged Communist demonstration.

Pernambuco, Brazil, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—This important northern city of Brazil tonight was in control of revolutionary forces which reported the insurgent movement against the central government had been victorious in all states to the north.

The capture of Pernambuco, one of the largest cities in Brazil, followed a 48-hour struggle which broke out early Saturday morning between revolutionary forces and part of the garrison and state military police who remained loyal to the federal government. Casualties in the fighting were reported to number 150.

The revolution, in combination with other states in Brazil, broke out in Pernambuco at 1 a. m. Saturday. On the revolutionary side were the students, civilians and part of the army garrison, while on the federal side were the state military police and the remainder of the army.

The revolutionists immediately took control of the arsenal and the surrounding streets. The police launched counter-attacks and there was heavy fighting with rifles and machine guns. The insurgents then laid siege to the cavalry barracks, the two police headquarters, the jail and the governor's palace. An armored car was captured, and, after 48 hours of fighting, the last police stronghold was taken at 4 o'clock Monday morning. The police and soldiers adhered to the movement.

FIFTH PERSON HELD IN FAKE-COIN CASE

SEEK TO DISCOVER LINK

With the arrest of a fifth person—Joseph Bernard McCaffrey—on a charge of passing counterfeit money, the Government indicated yesterday that it believe that a gigantic counterfeiting ring is operating in Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland.

When three of the group faced United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on charges of uttering counterfeit currency, Government council sought to prove a connection between the trio and although he brought out that one of the men involved knew another the Commissioner ordered the admission stricken from the record.

All are alleged to have passed spurious money. Trachtenberg is said to have passed bogus $20 bills at Hyattsville, Md., while McCaffrey and Barnes are reputed to have passed bills of similar denomination in Washington. Trachtenberg appeared before the Commissioner on a removal warrant from Maryland, while the others appeared on warrants sworn to by secret service agents who operate locally.

McCaffrey's arrest came as a surprise yesterday, being instigated and carired to completion by secret service agents. It marks the fifth alleged counterfeiting case presented to the commissioner in the last two weeks.

The others named are Ray and Lizzie Lane, who are scheduled for a hearing tomorrow on a charge of passing counterfeit money. They were arrested several days ago by a local policeman after a tip from a merchant. The bills they are said to have possessed, however, are not of the $20 denomination.

HALLAHAN IS ROUTED; OTHERS BATTED HARD

35,000 Cheer Champions as They Annex Series, Four Games to Two.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post.)

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—The 1930 world series belongs to the Athletics, sealed this afternoon by the pitching of long George Earnshaw and delivered on the wings of base hits sent crashing to the far-flung sections of this big six-sided box, where 35,000 palpitating partisans sat in on the death of Cardinal hopes.

They wrote the terms of the St. Louis surrender in no uncertain manner, did Earnshaw and his mighty mates, and they established American League supremacy for the fourth consecutive year as they wreathed Connie Mack with his second consecutive world championship that now rests so easily on his 67 years.

Down to defeat went the Cardinals by a score of 7 to 1 in this all-conclusive game of the series, into the depths of despond, as Earnshaw lifted the Athletics to the heights with his third rare pitching performance in a series that required only six games. And the Athletics brought into play for the first time a sustained demonstration of their batting power.

Earnshaw Grants Five Hits.

Back in the box after only one day of rest since his feat in the fifth game at St. Louis when he had yielded only two hits before being removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning, Earnshaw, a literal workhorse of the mound, cast almost a complete spell over the vaunted swatsmiths of the Cardinals, permitting only five hits and boasting a shutout until the ninth inning, when St. Louis pieced together two of its safeties to score its only run of the ball game.

Manager Gabby Street had placed his trust in "Wild Bill" Hallahan. Or, rather, he misplaced it, for the little southpaw who had muted Philadelphia bats in St. Louis and turned in a shutout victory was no enigma today. The first inning sounded his doom and the Cardinals thereafter were never in the ball game, despite three more St. Louis pitchers who attempted to halt the Athletics' hitting and three pinch-hitters who attempted to hit in the Cardinals' cause.

Extra Base Hits Feature.

Today it was the sum as well as the substance of the Athletics' base hits that sealed the unhappy fate of the Cardinals. Again it was maximum production in the run-making that took the heart from St. Louis pitching, as two home runs found roost in the stands and five doubles clattered against the fences, with not even one conventional single interrupting the Philadelphia barrage that meant extra bases every time a wallop whistled to unprotected territory.

They scored their seven runs on seven hits, and at least one Philadelphia runner crossed the plate in five of the first six innings as the cannonading placed the ball game be-

Lindbergh Will Allow Heir To Select His Own Career

Colonel Does Not Want "Our Son" to Do Anything He Lacks Aptitude For; Baby's Presents Present Serious Problem for Parents.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—When Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., grows up he is going to have the whole wide world in which to find himself a career—without parental interference.

In an interview about the baby which appears in the forthcoming issue of the magazine, Pictorial Review, appearing Friday, Col. Lindbergh is quoted as saying with a laugh that he has as yet given no serious thought to young Charles' career.

"Our son," he said, "has hardly reached the age to have his future determined for him, and in any case, it is a question he can decide for himself when the time comes.

"Personally I don't want him to be anything or do anything that he himself has no taste or aptitude for. I believe that everybody should have complete freedom in the choice of his life's work."

The chief problem in connection with "our son" at present, the interview reveals, is not what he is going to be when he grows up, but how in the world his father and mother are ever going to thank all the thousands of admirers who showered him with presents when he was born.

Charles, jr., it appears, would have to remain a baby for the next ten years or so to wear out all the layettes that were sent him, and his parents received so many letters and telegrams it was a human impossibility to acknowledge them individually. Indirectly, through the interview, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh ask the senders to forgive them.

One rather embarrassing angle to the situation is what to do with all those baby clothes. They couldn't very well return them without appearing ungracious. Certainly any

Earnshaw Pained to Learn He Won't Be Needed Today

Gabby Street Ran Out of Pitchers Even Before Play Began in Final Series Game, But Didn't Know It, Says Phillips.

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 8.—It was just a review of visiting pitchers. As the game ended, Gabby Street was picking them out of a card index and was afraid he might run out of material.

He had run out of it before the game began, but he didn't know it.

The Smackmen won by the score of 7 to 1. In the ninth the Cardinals needed a touchdown and goal to tie. They were goose-egged up to that moment, and they had no broken-field runners.

The St. Louis Ball Club is one of the gamest in the world and a great crowd at coming from behind, but today they were so far behind they were playing the wrong fairway.

None of the fire-prevention-week regulations had reached Connie Mack's boys and they spent the afternoon breaking out in flames at all points.

"Wild Bill" Hallahan lived up to his nickname the short time he was under assault. He had everything and he insisted on proving it. "Wild Bill" mixed strikeouts, passes and nearly wild pitches in an eccentric demonstration of complete futility.

He was yanked out at the close of the second chukker and spent the rest of the day watching a flock of fellow boxmen give masterful exhibitions of imperfect pitching.

Mr. Hallahan's head was bloody, but unbowed, he had no reason to feel sorry. It was no place for a visiting pitcher in there this afternoon, and the few Cardinal boxmen who had not been called on as darkness fell were getting a great break.

The Smackmen were getting power and distance at all times, with two Home runs and all the two-baggers

BROENING PLEDGES HUMANITARIAN AID

COURT ACQUITS TWO MEN

Addressing a Republican meeting in Hyattsville and Mount Rainier, Md., last night, Mayor William F. Broening, of Baltimore, Republican candidate for governor, pledged himself to the solution of problems of humanitarian reform. After discussing the need for old age pensions and legislation of a like nature, Mayor Broening said that if elected he would work for such laws.

In his speech he recited the reforms which he has already perfected in Baltimore. Mayor Broening stressed the principles of rotation in office as set forth in the State constitution. He quoted Democratic statesmen who have favored such rotation.

Answering Gov. Ritchie's charge that he had been in office longer than the governor, Mayor Broening said "it is all right to be long in public service, but this must be distinguished from long continuance in power where one can build a machine." He also attacked the present method of electing the new legislature every four years, a change which was made under Gov. Ritchie.

Senator Oliver Metzerott, Republican candidate for the House of Delegates, read the county platform of the Republican party. Another speaker was State Senator David A. Robb, Republican candidate for attorney general, who said "I am calling on those Democrats and Republicans who joined hands in 1928 to elect Hoover."

"We felt a danger then and we feel it now, he said.

Senator Robb did not mince matters in referring to what he called "steals" under the Democratic regime. He referred specifically to the office of commissioner of motor vehicles, the House of Correction and the State Road Commission. The Maryland drought commission was referred to as a "vote getter."

Others who ospoke were W. Newton Jackson, candidate for comptroller; Helen L. Tait, chairman of the State central committee; Dr. Charles S. Warner, candidate for clerk of the Court of Appeals, and Albert R. Hassall, candidate for county State's attorney.

Arthur C. Keefer acted as chairman of the meeting.

Prince Georges County Republicans came out for a separation of the sheriff's office from the police force and reorganization of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission in their eight-plank platform which was made public yesterday. They also announced their intention of espousing a lower tax rate if elected.

Changes pledged in the administration of the Sanitary Commission include having the members appointed by the boards of commissioners of the counties served by the commission, and having the offices of the commission located in the area served. There has been considerable criticism of the location of the offices in Washington, where it is claimed that they are too far from those affected by their rulings.

At present members of the commission are appointed by the Governor and the State Board of Health. These officials, however, are not directly responsible to the people, the Republicans claim, and the new plan would make the commission easily affected by public opinion.

Other changes in the administration provide that one member of the commission be an engineer and that the annual audits of the books be made public.

Other planks provide that no bond issue for the purpose of establishing parks be made without a referendum, and that the declarations of intentions act and the affidavit of removal act be repealed. Free use of auditoriums in county schools by civic bodies and the regulation of professional bondsmen is also promised by the party.

Two men were acquitted in Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro after they had appealed a conviction by Police Court. They are James Hawkins, colored, of Oxon Hill, Md., and Albert Proctor, colored, who lives near Fort Washington.

Hawkins was arrested last summer at the Dew Drop Inn, in Oxon Hill, in one of a series of more than a dozen raids made in one night. He was charged with operating a road house without a license, and convicted in Police Court. Appealing, and asking for a jury trial, he was acquitted of the charge by the jury.

Proctor was accused of selling liquor to the soldiers at the Fort. He told the jury, to whom he had appealed, that the soldiers came into his house and took the liquor without his permission.

A verdict of guilty was brought in against Morris Payne, a farmer of Suitland, Md., on an assault and battery charge. He was accused of having attacked Raymond B. Ward, a salesman for a local seed company, after an argument over seeds.

Payne was tried by Chief Judge W. Mitchell Digges and Judge Joseph C. Mattingly. Sentence has not been pronounced.

Revision day resulted in the elimination of several hundred names from the election books of Prince Georges County, according to figures made public yesterday. Complete reports from the county were not in, but the first figures showed that the Republicans had lost the greater number in some sections.

In one precinct in Seat Pleasant, for instance, 134 Republican names were removed, as against only 21 Democrats. In Riverdale, 42 Republican names were stricken off, as compared to 23 Democratic names. In the first ward of Hyattsville, however, the Democrats lost by the revision, with 43 names off, as against the 39 Republican names.

Utilization of waste water to save Mount Rainier's trees has been asked, and will be attempted today. Citizens have been requested to try to put at least 20 gallons of water about the base of trees in front of their homes. Without this, the 500 trees planted along the streets will be lost.

The town has been attempting to save the trees by hauling water from nearby streams, as the sanitary commission has forbidden the use of the system's water for this purpose. Enough water can not be brought from the stream to save all the trees, however.

Gen. E. E. Hatch, of Laurel, has been elected president of the Republican Club of that town. Gen. Hatch is also the new president of the Law Enforcement League of Prince Georges County, which has not yet announced which candidates it will indorse. A member of the league spoke last week at a meeting of the Taxpayer's Association of the county, indorsing the association. The association has not announced its candidates yet. A prominent member of the taxpayers group has charged machine tactics on the part of the Democrats, after being defeated for nomination in the Democratic primaries.

MAYOR WILLIAM F. BROENING of Baltimore, Republican candidate for Governor of Maryland, who spoke yesterday at meetings in Prince Georges County. In the afternoon he addressed a gathering in the courthouse at Upper Marlboro and spoke at rallies in Mount Rainier and Hyattsville at night.

ROAD DISPUTE HALTS GAS COMPANY PLANS

AURORA HILLS AFFECTED

Unless H. C. Morris waives his jurisdiction of the roads in Aurora Hills, Arlington County, which the Rosslyn Gas Co. claims are now county roads, the company will not extend its mains in that community as contemplated and provided for under the permit granted by the board of supervisors of Arlington County.

It is understood that efforts are being made by Mr. Morris, owner and developer of Aurora Hills, to change the location of the mains from the plans approved by the county board of supervisors.

According to a statement made last night by Ernest Baldwin, manager of the Rosslyn Gas Co., efforts will be made to have Mr. Morris accept the plans of the company at a conference to be held as soon as he returns to the city.

Mr. Baldwin stated that progress is being made in all other sections of the county in the laying of its mains in accordance with the permit which has been granted by the county board of supervisors upon the approval of County Engineer C. L. Kinnier.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 8.—The State dental societies of West Virginia and Virginia will hold a joint State meeting, the first ever attempted, in Winchester, Va., in 1932, under plans made here yesterday by committees representing the two organizations. The committees which acted at the meeting here were:

For West Virginia—Dr. J. E. Herbert, this city; Dr. C. Ray Sturm, Fairmont, president of the West Virginia society, and Dr. John S. Stone, Clarksburg.

For Virginia—Dr. Ralph Snapp, Richmond, Va., president of the Virginia society; Dr. Guy R. Harrison, Richmond, and Dr. G. H. Hodgkin, Warrenton.

The meeting was followed by a banquet and meeting, at which addresses and lectures were made by Dr. E. Osmund Barrk, Washington physician; Dr. Sterling V. Meade, Washington dentist, and Dr. Harrison, of Richmond.

COUNTY WATER USER REPLIES TO ATTACK

DEMOCRATS HEAR SMITH

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST. Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Replying tothe attack made upon the county board of supervisors in which his name was mentioned regarding the manner in which he has been obtaining water at his property, Robert H. Forman said: "It is all true as stated in the resolution as adopted by the Arlington County Civic Federation at its meeting on Tuesday night that I am using water for both commercial and domestic use which is registered on the same meter, and if the parties that have concerned themselves so much will take the trouble to go to the office of the county engineer they will find that I am paying more than the average home owner despite the fact that I am paying 30 cents per 1,000 gallons and not 60 cents, as is the case in all other cases where water is not used for commercial purposes."

Mr. Forman stated that the procedure in which he obtained water for his nursery was entirely within the law, and any one can have the commercial rate if they are willing to pay the price, as it has been found that it is far more profitable to the county.

Continuing, he said: "I can not understand, however, why the man who was interested in bringing this matter up at the federation meeting for some little motive of his own should put the burden of bringing the resolution to the civic federation on one of the women members of the organization."

Amount of Installation.

Discussing the installation of water to his property, Mr. Forman stated that he had laid between three and four thousand feet of pipe to take care of his green houses and outside plants and also his office. "There are on my property automatic sprinklers going all day long and I am confident that I am now paying far more than the average home owner," he said.

Explaining the charges to Mr. Forman, County Engineer C. L. Kinnier stated yesterday that in the first place Mr. Forman pays a yearly rental of $21 for an extra-size meter and in addition pays 30 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 40,000 and then the same rate for all in excess, the same as all other water users.

"I consider the plan which has been adopted is right and just. The commercial user pays the $21 rental charge whether he uses any water or not," Engineer Kinnier stated.

Arthur Orr, Civic Fedefation delegate from Lyon Park, in a statement last night, endorsed the action of the federation in adopting the resolution.

Orr Issues Statement.

"The fact that a person happens to live on the premises where he uses water commercially does not entitle him to use water for domestic purposes at a lower rate than is paid by other residents of the county," Mr. Orr said.

"This principal should apply to all persons alike, whether they operate a restaurant and live in the same building, or whether they operate a nursery and live on the premises. They should not have the benefit of a low rate for domestic water merely because of the accident of their place of residence. Neither does the quantity of water used by them commercially enter into the equity of the rate paid for domestic water. The commercial user of water who does not reside at his place of business gets no reduced rate for his domestic water by reason of his being a commercial user nor by reason of the quantity of water, however great, he uses at his place of business.

"I am informed that Mr. Forman pays a rental of $21 a year for his commercial meter, but that rental is paid by all commercial users, whether they reside on the premises or not. Consequently, it has no relation to the rate which should be paid for domestic water. The fact of the matter is that Mr. Forman, in common with all other commercial users, who service their homes through their commercial meter, gets the first 40,000 gallons of domestic water for $12, while all other domestic users must pay $24 for a like amount of water. The discrimination is unmistakable and is unjust," Mr. Orr concluded.

The records in the county clerks office show that the State Corporation Commission has granted a charter to the Whittlesey Drug Stores, Inc., with its principal office located at Clarendon.

The charter shows that the capital stock of the corporation shall be no par value with a minimum of 250 shares and a maximum number of 500 shares.

The officers and directors are: William H. Whittlesey president; George R. Snyder, treasurer; and Stanley D. Willis, secretary.

Having completed its work to the point that it is now prepared to hold public hearings, the Arlington County Board of Tax Equalization meeting yesterday in the office of Emery N. Hosmer, chairman, completed all details in connection with the cases that it has before it at the public hearing which will be held October 14 at the courthouse. Chairman Hosmer stated that other public hearing will be held, the dates of which will be announced later.

Staff members—Maj. George McCloskey, Capt. C. U. McDonald, Lieut. Tazell Watson, Capt. A. Wise, and color sergeants, George Cummings and Frank Myers. Company A—Capt. Arthur Hammond, Lieut. Benjamin Clarkson, Lieut. Walter Thomas and First Sergt. Joseph Strobel. Company B—Capt. Edward Leigh, Lieut. Roger Beele, Lieut. Robert Rollings and First Sergt. William Payne. Company C—Capt. Francis Follin.

With a united front, the Arlington County Democratic committee met last night in the offices of A. L. Kelley at Clarendon and perfected plans for the carrying on of an intensive campaign in the interest of Judge Howard W. Smith, the Democratic candidate for Congress from the Eighth Congressional District against his Republican opponent, Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax.

Judge Smith, addressing the committee said, "It is a pleasure that I have the opportunity to be with you tonight and I want to assure members of the county Democratic committee that they may broadcast to all the voters now that we are united, that it will be my purpose as the representative from this district, which I feel I shall be, to give it every consideration."

"Arlington County, situated as it is, is different from any other county within the Congressional District in that its interests are so interwoven with those of the National Capital, and I now assure the voters of this district that I shall at all times have their interests at heart."

COUNTY G.O.P. HITS 'TAMMANY' TACTICS

BETTER SCHOOLS URGED

Condemning the present Democratic administration as smacking of "Tammany methods," Montgomery County Republicans yesterday made will base probably the most energetic public the platform upon which they Republican campaign in the history of Montgomery County. Their ranks augmented by a number of the members of the progressive Democratic faction which was defeated in the primaries by the organization Democrats, the Republicans believe they have the most auspicious moment in the history of their organization for launching their campaign.

The platform was drawn by a committee headed by William Tyler Page, reading clerk of the House of Representatives, and was finally adopted at a meeting held Tuesday evening at the home of William S. Corby at Chevy Chase.

The keynote of the platform reads: "The Republican party in Montgomery County stands for a county government in which the elected officers are the servants of the people, answerable to them only and not to any individual or group. We condemn the introduction into our county of Tammany methods, whereby a political group, actuated by selfish interests, attempts to control the county government through business and financial pressure and threats of reprical by multiplying of State and county political appointments."

Advocate Budget System.

The platform contains planks which advocate a budget system, auditing of the disbursements, appointment of a bipartisan board of assessors, improvement of educational facilities to provide more adequate schools for the colored children of the county, a police trial board, changes in the administration of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, and changes in the appointment of boards and commissions to provide for bipartisan membership.

In the county finances plank, the party advocates a budget system which will require an advanced estimate at the beginning of each fiscal year of the routine or administrative expenditures and a rigid adherence to these budget limits throughout the year, with a contingent fund for emergencies, with an intelligent audit. Appointment of bipartisan boards of assessors to assess county property without favoritism is urged.

The practice of issuing large amounts of bonds without any provision for current payments on the principal is condemned. "The postponement of principal payments on bonds for periods of from 10 to 40 years is unfair to those in whose hands the management of the county will rest in the future and is calculated to delude the present taxpayers of the county," the platform states.

Issues Should Be Scrutinized.

"Financing of capital improvements of a permanent nature by the use of bond issus is conceded proper, but "such issues should be carefully scrutinized so that the total issues are kept wel lwithin the financial ability of the county. Sound finance demands that each bond issue shall provide a sinking fund, into which the payments from current tax receipts shall be placed and that bonds be periodically discharged so that the cost of improvement can be fairly and equitably distributed between the present and future generations. We further advocate that the time of maturity of bonds issued for public improvements shall not exceed the probable life of the improvements," the plank asserts.

"We condemn the divrsion of bond receipts from the purpose for which the bonds weer sold as a dangerous practice, and assert as a cardinal principle of intelligent public finance that the proceeds of bonds should be considered as trust funds, and used exclusively for the purpose for which the bonds were authorized," the platform continues. Amendment of the emergency fund law so that borrowing power be restricted to actual emergencies and to eliminate the provision which permits it to be used to meet deficits in current expenses, is advocated.

"We condemn the practice of awarding contracts for supplies through political or personal favoritism and the multiplication of offices to furnish employment to those whose political support is thus sought. Such wasteful and extravagant practices are designed to maintain in power an organization which by these very practice is showing itself wasteful of the people's money. We believe that public affairs should be carefully conducted and that salaries should be provided to maintain a standard of efficiency, thus enabling the affairs of the government to conducted with fewer employes and with greater efficiency."

Laud Broome's Work.

Lauding the educational administration of Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools, the platform declares that this is in marked contrast to the "inefficiency of the business administration of school property, equipment and finances under a partisan board of education, functioning in the interest of the political organization now in power." The plank advocates selection of bus drivers on the sole basis of ability and integrity rather than for political expediency and control of all school expenditures by budget system, location of schools where they will serve the greatest number of homes with children of school age, and extension of civil service to the county school teachers.

"We deplore the present inadequate facilities afforded the colored children of Montgomery County and firmly believe that the best interests of all of the people of Montgomery County will be served by providing improved school facilities for the colored children of the county."

Condemning the alleged use of the county police force as a political adjunct to the party in power, the platform advocates appointment of policemen on the sole basis of ability and organization of the county commissioners as a police trial board to give prompt and impartial hearing to complaints against members of the force.

Construction of roads under a unified plan which will serve all sections of the county, eliminating all favoritism and political motives in the location of such roads, gradual development of adequate parks and playgrounds in the metropolitan district with the restriction of park land purchase to amounts which can be paid for from the present 7-cent park and planning tax, more efficient administration of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, with appointment of the commission by the board of county commissioners, and appointment of bipartisan boards in the boards of education, sanitary commission, Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission and other important commissions, are advocated in other sections of the platform.

TO NEW MARKET IN 1931

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 8.—The feature of the opening of the second day's proceedings in the sessions here of Knights of Pythias and the Grand Temple of Pythian Sisters of Virginia occurred this morning when the medical arts building, erected at a cost of $200,000 by the two lodges of Knights of Pythias here, Eureka and Naomi, was dedicated in the presence of a vast assemblage. In this building the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias and the Pythian Sisters are holding their meetings.

The dedicatory address was made by George C. Cabell, of Norfolk, grand keeper of records and seals of the grand lodge.

"The building," he said, "is a connecting link to the Valley of Virginia, where the Hines Memorial Pythian Home for Children is located at New Market. Just as that is home to the 30 children there, so this building is a symbol of the domestic home from which should emanate love."

Among the prominent heads of the grand lodge who occupied seats on the platform were Leslie E. Crouch, of Portland, Oreg., supreme chancellor, and William Grossman, of New York, supreme vice chancellor, both prominent lawyers. Following the dedicatory exercises, the grand lodge was in business session.

Grand chancellor, Dr. W. E. Ritter, Bluefield, Va.; grand vice chancellor, Lynwood Kunz, Lynchburg; grand prelate, P. S. Ford, Martinsville; grand master at arms, John D. Roberts, Cape Charles; grand iner guard, Oliver Munch, Seven Fountains; grand outer guard, Stokes Gray, Roanoke; grand keeper of records and seals, George C. Cabell, Norfolk; grand master of exchequer, A. A. Fisher, Norfolk; supreme representative, Benj. A. Ruffin, Richmond.

New Market, Va., was selected for the lodge's 1931 session.

The barbecue this afternon was attended by between 00 and 800 people, among whom were many Pythian sisters.

Tonight a reception was given to the grand lodge by Cockade Temple, No. 6, Pythian Sisters, in the lodge room of the Medical Arts Building.

The Grand Temple of the Pythian Sisters held its annual session today. The sisters busied themselves today making plans for the concrete driveway it is proposed to construct around the Hines Memorial Hall. Today there was turned over to the sisters for the driveway, $1,350.

Tomorrow the sisters will elect state officers and select the next place of meeting.

CONFEDERATE ARMY VETERAN VISITS CITY

Gen. Simmons, of California, Is Guest at Alexandria U. D. C. Meeting.

SCOUTS HEAR HOLLENGA

Gen. S. S. Simmons, of Bell, Calif., late of the Confederate Army, was the guest Wednesday night of the Mary Custis Lee Seventeenth Virginia Regiment Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. He is visiting his daughter, Mrs. George T. Klipstein, of Alexandria.

Gen. Simmons, who is a native of West Virginia, told the U. D. C. audience that when he was 70 years old he heeded the dictum of Horace Greely, who said "Go West, young man," and he went West and "grew up with the country." He cited as evidence of his having grown up after going to California that when he left this section he was still a "buck private," as he had been in the Confederate Army, but he is now a major general.

Mrs. J. Lovell Willcoxen, registrar of the chapter, and also corresponding secretary of the Kate Waller Barrett Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, presented from the D. A. R. Chapter a resolution recently adopted, concurring in the action of the U. D. C., both local and State, in opposing the removal of the Confederate monument in Alexandria from its present location, at the intersection of Prince and Washington street, marking the spot from which the Confederate troops marched on May 24, 1861, to join their commands.

Mrs. Rathbone Smith, regent of the Kate Waller Barrett Chapter, D. A. R., presented the U. D. C. Chapter, through Mrs. Willcoxen, the original drawing by Mrs. Minnegerode Andrews of the Confederate seal which was used in Mrs. Andrews' books, and which she had presented to Mrs. Smith, together with the original silhouette of Dr. Barrett, Mrs. Smith's mother. The seal will be mounted and placed in the Confederate Veterans' hall here.

It was announced that a card party would be given on October 21, in Lee Camp Hall, under the auspices of the chapter, with Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, president of the local chapter, in charge, assisted by a committee composed of Mrs. Harry D. Kirk, Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, Miss Eddington, Mrs. J. Lovell Willcoxen, Mrs. Carroll D. Woolf and Mrs. Carroll H. May. Games will be played both afternoon and evening, and refreshments will be served.

Seven cases are on the docket for presentation to a grand jury in the Corporation Court, Judge William P. Woolls, presiding, tomorrow morning. Among them is that of Robert G. Brafford, of Washington, who is charged with shooting Policeman John L. Stewart on the river front on September 14. According to the police reports, Stewart endeavored to place Brafford under arrest for having a quantity of whisky in his car which was parked at the foot of Duke street. Brafford is alleged to have shot the officer, wounding him slightly, and then throwing him into the river. Stewart climbed out of the water and shot Brafford, wounding him so severely that he is still a patient in the Alexandria Hospital.

Other cases to be heard include those of William J. Shea and Earl Garrison, held in connection with the fatal injury of Maurice "Mickey" Kelliher, of Washington, which occurred at Four Mile Run the morning of September 7, when Kelliher is alleged to have been thrown from an automobile in which he was a passenger, sustaining injuries which caused his death. Shea and Garrison, when arraigned in Police Court, both denied being the driver of the car at the time.

The grand jury is composed of Thomas Chauncey, Michael T. Dwyer, J. William Goods, Wallace Lindsey, J. Turner Martyn, A. M. Remschel, C. Page Waller, J. A. Carpenter and William Kleysteuber.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the chamber of commerce, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the scoutmasters of Alexandria at Gadsby's Tavern Wednesday night, and afterward was appointed chairman of the local Boy Scout court of honor, which is the examining body before which the scouts appear for promotion. Mr. Hollenga held a similar position in Petersburg before coming to Alexandria last July.

A committee composed of W. L. Leitch, John A. Strauss and Malcolm Snow was appointed to select picture films to be shown the scouts each Saturday evening, the pictures, according to the announcement, being free. The first of these pictures is scheduled for October 28. They were made possible through the efforts of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion.

The meeting was conducted by W. L. Leitch, local scout executive, and among those attending were the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, Joseph Newell, Capt. George H. Evans, Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., and Scoutmasters John A. Strauss, Ned. 126, Presbyterian Church; Wallace Sansbury, No. 134, Christ Church; J. M. Rideout, No. 146, Del Ray Baptist Church; R. W. Gahagan, No. 160, Trinity Methodist Church; W. F. Hodges, No. 168, St. Paul's Episcopal Church; Charles Pullman, No. 169, Grace Episcopal Church; Malcolm Snow, No. 176, St. Mary's Catholic Church, and Frederick J. Conlon, assistant scoutmaster, Second Presbyterian Church, and William Hammond, assistant scoutmaster, Grace Church.

The first district quarterly conference of the Philadelphia District will convene in the Free Methodist Church, Prince and Lee streets, at 7:30 o'clock tonight and continue until Sunday night with services in charge of the Rev. William H. Van-Ness, district elder.

An evangelistic service will be featured each evening under the direction of the district elder, and services will also be held at 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. daily. The business meeting of the conference will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

President Robert G. Carter, of the Kiwanis Club, will present a program featuring fire prevention week at the weekly luncheon meeting at 12:30 today in the George Mason Hotel. Fire Chief James M. Duncan will introduce the principal speaker, Chief George S. Watson, of the District of Columbia Fire Department.

Committee reports to be presented are Roger C. Sullivan, on the annual ladies night entertainment; C. Page Waller, on the proposed minstrel show; and Clyde C. Lamond, on an oyster roast to be staged by the club.

A meeting of the zoning commission will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening at the George Mason Hotel, preceded by a dinner. An expert on zoning will address the meeting.

Mrs. Rebecca Fields Dead; Was Centenarian, Publisher

Owner of Montgomery County Sentinel Since 1871, When Husband Died, Was Believed to Be Oldest Woman Newspaper Operator in World.

Mrs. Rebecca Fields, more than 100 years old, owner of the Montgomery County Sentinel since the death of her husband in 1871, died last night at her home in Rockville. She is believed to have been the oldest woman publisher in the world, and the oldest white woman in the county. Mrs. Fields died at her home on the southwest corner of Montgomery avenue and Washington street, where she had lived since she moved there as a bride in 1850, the wife of Matthew Fields. The home was a wedding present.

Mrs. Fields was attended in her last illness by Dr. George E. Lewis, of Rockville. Members of her family were at the bedside when she died. She was born near Rockville, and was Miss Rebecca Beckwith.

Mrs. Fields celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary February 1 at the home which had been the scene of all of her endeavors since she was married and which was the birthplace of her six children, all of whom are living. At that time she appeared to be in good health and joked and chatted with the many friends and neighbors who dropped in to felicitate her.

Mrs. Fields attributed her longevity to the fact that she had been temperate in all things all of her life.

In addition to many flowers, the centenarian received large quantities of post cards, letters and telegrams and the huge birthday cake was distributed among her many friends. The Rockville Rotary Club adopted a resolution congratulating the publisher on her birthday.

Notwithstanding her great age, Mrs. Fields enjoyed excellent health until recently when she began to fail.

The Sentinel was established in 1854 by Mr. Fields and the widow took control at his death 50 years ago. A son, Henry Clay Fields, has been in active charge of the publication and another son, Charles W. Fields, has been connected with the paper at intervals for many years and is now a member of the staff. The paper has been a consistent supporter of the Democratic party since it was established and is one of the oldest newspapers in this section of the country.

Mrs. Fields had ridden only a few times on a steam railway but had ridden at infrequent intervals on the Washington-Rockville electric lines which pass her door. She took great delight in automobile rides, however, and took frequent motor trips into the country in good weather. In the winter time she was content to remain indoors, although she looked forward with interest to the resumption of her trips in spring.

A daughter, Miss Margaret Fields, who is 78, is the oldest of her six children and was her mother's constant companion. Miss Fields still reads proof on the Sentinel, as she has done since she was a girl. The other children are Charles W. Fields, Henry Clay Fields, John Wallace Fields, Albert S. J. Fields and Mrs. David H. Warfield, all of whom survive. There also are six grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. The grandchildren are: Mrs. William H. West, Mrs. Samuel T. Wimsatt, Mrs. Claude Tschiffely, and George P. Fields, of Washington; Mrs. William A. Waters, of Gaithersburg and Miss Rebecca Fields, of Rockville.

Mrs. Fields had felt a repugnance for having her photograph taken and had not posed for a picture for nearly half a century.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night. A requiem mass will be said Saturday morning at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Rockville, probably at 10 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Culpeper County Asks Relief Fund

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Oct. 8.—Relief funds for drouth sufferers in Culpeper County will be raised by a drive which will be started Thursday by the American Legion Welfare Association and affiliated bodies, the chairman, J. Hamilton Newhouse, announced today. About ten calls are being made on the association each day, the chairman said, in explaining the need for the extra funds. So far no worthy calls have been disregarded, but the additional money will be needed to carry on the work this winter.

Most of the calls coming in now are from laborers out of employment and small farmers, who lost their entire crop in this summer's drought and are unable to secure funds from the State or Federal relief funds because they are unable to put up collateral for loans.

Those on the committee are Judge C. E. Reams, L. Frank Smith, Dr. Thomas W. Hooper, J. C. Albright, Floyd White and S. L. von Gemmingen. Miss Adelia Yowell is to direct the work of the community clubs in the drive.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Oct. 8.—John R. Duncan, 72, well-known farmer and large land owner in Culpeper County, died at his home, Mount Castle, near here, this afternoon.

HAWKS SETS RECORD IN PHILADELPHIA HOP

Takes 24 Minutes to Speed From New York; Returns in 20 Minutes.

RUSHES SERIES PHOTOS

New York, Oct. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Capt. Frank M. Hawks, who broke the Boston-New York speed record yesterday, slept soundly last night and arose today to break the record between Philadelphia and New York.

At 12:45 p. m. he took off from the Curtiss-Wright Airport at Valley Stream and reached the William Penn Field in Philadelphia at 1:09, and then attended the world series. His record was made in rushing sound pictures of the final game back to New York. He told newspapermen he hopped from Philadelphia at 3:55 and descended at the Glenn H. Curtiss Airport, at North Beach, Queens, twenty minutes later.

His average speed on his return trip was 270 miles an hour, which made his hop the fastest commercial flight ever made. His indicator never went above 240 miles per hour, he said. This would indicate he was backed by tail winds.

Hawks now hold the East-to-West-to-East transcontinental speed records and the unofficial record for the Detroit-New York hop. He did the 190 miles from Boston here on Tuesday in 53 minues, an average of 215 miles per hour. His plane, known as the Travelair Mystery Ship, is a low-winged monoplane, powered by a Wright motor.

Hawks plans to hop to Boston at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IT is most disheartening news that is blowing up from the South these days and it does not have to do with famine or wintry or drought winds.

It is that Marster Tom is coming back from Alabam just as sure as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west.

One finds it hard to believe because it belies the signs of the times which were shown in Virginia and North Carolina. Surely, what happened in these States justified the conviction that it was a bad year for those boiling Democrats who cut Republican capers in 1928.

* * * *

BUT Marster Tom Heflin is admittedly in a class by himself. He is the only one of his type left. He is the last of the old school of dramatic oratory and it is doubtful if any other man in the Senate, with the exception of Borah, can draw as large a crowd as he.

It may be that it is the size of the crowds now turning out to hear him that prompts predictions of his reelection. At any rate, our informants say he is drawing 5,000 people every time he speaks.

IT is our guess, however, that his reelection, if he is reelected, will have to be quite decisive. The regular Democrats in Alabama after getting him very close to elimination are not likely to leave any stone unturned to finsh the job.

It is sort of an open secret that Mr. Hoover carried the State in 1928, but the records show that it remained in the Democratic column by a small majority.

The difference will be, if they try to outcount Marster Tom, is that Mr. Hoover had so many other States that he didn't care about Alabama, while Alabama is Marster Tom's only State and he will most certainly let up a howl.

* * * *

IT will be funny if he should come back up here. Indeed, it will be a scream. One can see Old Tom strutting now and the way he will lord it over Joe Robinson and Pat Harrison and his other Democratic colleagues will be a caution.

There will hardly be room for anyone on the Democratic side of the chamber except Tom. And those fellows who read him out of the party in Alabama may as well leave the State.

After all, though, we have it coming to us, because we haven't been living just right.

LOS ANGELES GIVEN TWO YEARS OF LIFE

Inspectors Assert Dirigible May Last Longer if Care Is Taken.

(Associated Press.)

Two to four more years of life were forecast for the Los Angeles, the huge Navy dirigible, by the board of inspection and survey of the Navy Department yesterday after a study of the physical condition of the ship.

Christened the Los Angeles by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge in 1924, the ship already has lived double the three-year period predicted by its makers, the German Zeppelin Co.

"The Los Angeles is now more than six years old and has had more than 2,500 hours under way, representing over 110,000 air miles and in addition has operated about 1,200 hours at mooring masts," the report said. "This represents a longer useful life than that of any rigid airship known to date."

Describing the ship as in good condition, the board said although it was "impracticable to predict accurately and with definiteness" the future life of the ship, "if the ship is operated in a careful manner," and "if inspections are continuously and carefully made by qualified personnel, the board sees no reason why the airship should not be continued in service for two to four years longer."

On the assumption that the Los Angeles would continue in life for several years, the board recommended it finally be destroyed "through tests designed to yield data on devices for mechanical handling, landing and mooring masts." The board further recommend that its maximum speed be limited to 60 knots, and periodical inspections be made of the entire ship.

The Los Angeles was completed in September, 1924, and flown across the Atlantic by a German crew under the command of Dr. Hugo Eckener. The ship landed at Lakehurst, October 15, 1924, after flying the 5,066-mile trip from Freidrichshafen, Germany, in approximately 81 hours. On November 25, 1924, the ship came to Washington and was christened.

Church Session Will Open Today

Nashville Bishop in Charge as Holston Conference Meets in Bristol.

Bristol, Va., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Bishop Horace M. Dubose, of Nashville, Tenn., will open the 107th annual session of the Holston conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, here tomorrow in a session that will continue until Monday.

An outstanding matter of business before the conference is the ratification of the proposed new judicial council, handed down to the various conferences from the general conference at Dallas last spring.

The Holston conference embraces a territory stretching from War Eagle, W. Va., to Pikesville, Tenn., a distance of 556 miles. It includes such towns as Bluefield, W. Va.; Radford, Va.; Marion, Wytheville, Abingdon, Bristol, Tenn.; Johnson City, Morristown, Knoxville, Maryville, Sweetwater, Athens, Cleveland, Chattanooga, Dayton, South Pittsburgh, Jasper, Dunlap, Pikesville, and the country about those towns.

Fictitious Surplus Charged by Byrns

Administration Using Sinking Funds for Political Effect, He Holds.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, ranking Democrat on the House appropriations committee, said in a statement last night through the Democratic national committee that the administration is "attempting to create a fictitious surplus" in the Treasury by "withdrawing from the sinking fund sums legally required for the reduction of the public debt."

The Tennesseean said a recent Treasury report showed a surplus of $52,000,000 in the Treasury at the close of the first quarter of the present fiscal year. He added there would have been "a very sizable deficit were it not for the fact that the administration has slowed up in its payments on the public debt."

"This being a congressional election year," Byrns asserted, "the administration realized that it would not be politically profitable to the Republican party to show a large deficit on the threshold of the election, and to avoid such a blunder the sinking fund is used to meet ordinary running expenses of the Government for the first time since our large public debt was incurred."

R-101 TOLL IS RAISED TO 48; RIGGER DIES

High and Low Pay Tribute to Victims in Chapel of Westminster Abbey.

INQUEST IS ADJOURNED

Beauvais, France, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Samuel Church, a rigger on the British dirigible R-101, wrecked here on Sunday, died today in the emergency hospital before his father and fiancee could arrive from England.

His death, directly due to uremia growing out of burns received in the disaster, brought the total number of victims to 48.

London, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Peers and commoners met alike today in homage to the 47 dead of the R-101, whose bodies rest, all but a few of them unidentified, in the mortuary chapel of Westminster Abbey.

Coffins ranged in grim rows, over each a flag, gave silent testimony of the completeness of the disaster which had overtaken the world's largest dirigible airship, to which many Londoners waved a farewell as it departed on its journey east last Saturday.

Flowers Fill Chapel.

While sentries trod their funeral beats before these gruesome reminders throngs passed through the chapel, some persons to help in giving names to the victims, others in profound grief and many prompted by curiosity.

A glimpse of the dead was denied to all save those necessary officials and relatives who might aid in identification.

The interior of the chapel, ordinarily severe and cold in ancient dignity, today was a bower of floral tributes sent by persons from many walks of life.

Tomorrow the bodies will be removed to Westminster Hall, adjacent to the Abbey. This venerable building will then again become a national shrine for the moment, as it was 20 years ago, when King Edward VII lay there in state.

Italian Plane Grounded.

Coroner Ingleby Oddie opened his inquest today, but announced an adjournment until some time after the government has appointed a successor to Lord Thomson, minister for air, one of the R-101 victims, which precluded the taking of any actual testimony today. After Lord Thomson's successor has been named, in a few days, the new air minister will direct a special commission to inquire into the causes of the fatality.

Rome, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—An airplane carrying Gen. Italo Balbo, minister of aviation; Gen. Pellegrini, and other representatives of the Italian Air Service to London for the funeral of the R-101 victims was forced down this afternoon in the Alpine district. The passengers were unhurt and the plane undamaged, but the mission proceeded on its way by rail.

Funeral Planned For Truck Victim

Funeral services for John Purdum, 66 years old, of Cedar Grove, Md., who was killed Tuesday night when struck by a truck on the Ridgeville road near Cedar Heights, Md., will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Upper Seneca Baptist Church, with burial in the church cemetery.

The elderly man was struck by a truck operated by John Melton, 17, of Rockville, who was arrested by County Policeman Merson and charged with manslaughter. The youth was released on $1,000 bond yesterday. Melton told police that he was blinded by the headlights of an approaching auto and did not see the pedestrian.

Mr. Purdum is survived by a brother, Luther M. Purdum, of Cedar Grove, and three sisters, Mrs. Frank Duvall, of Damascus; Mrs. E. Edward Thompson, of Woodfield, and Mrs. William E. Ward, of Washington.

TWO SECTIONS BUSY AT ROAD CONGRESS

Competition Between Rail and Highway Agencies Seen as Loss.

WOULD CORRELATE BOTH

Competition between highway transport agencies and the railroads was pictured as offering material possibilities for loss both by the lines and the riding public at sessions yesterday of the Sixth International Road Congress. While one section considered problems of correlating existing mediums of transportation, another studied the need for development of materials for road construction and maintenance.

After a busy day, which closed with a reception to the delegates last night by Secretary of State Stimson at the Pan-American Union, the congress was prepared to direct its deliberations at today's session into the future, centering attention upon the construction of roads in new and undeveloped regions and the further advancement of traffic regulation in large cities. The parking and garaging of vehicles also is a perplexing problem to which the delegates will give careful study.

A touching note was struck in the ceremonies attending the official visitation of delegates from more than 60 countries to the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon, which occupied the afternoon. In one impressive act spanning the years that have intervened since the country's first President was laid to rest on the grassy slopes of the Potomac, a descendant of his friend and colleague, the Marquis de Lafayette, returned in the person of the Vicomte J. de Rohan to pay an affectionate tribute. It was the Vicomte de Rohan who placed the wreath on the tomb. He is an official delegate of France.

Inspect Mount Vernon Highway.

In the course of the trip the delegates inspected those sections of the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway which are well advanced toward completion. From Fort Hunt to Hunting Creek, south of Alexandria, the visitors traversed the new grade of the road and were interested spectators at dredging operations in progress. The excursion, made in some 40 buses, was in charge of R. E. Toms, Bureau of Public Roads engineer in charge of the highway's construction. Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau, and other officials accompanied the delegates.

Discussion at the section studying highway transport was led by Prof. Henry R. Trumbower, of the University of Wisconsin, with A. J. Brosseau, vice president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, presiding. Prof. Trumbower pictured the coordination of rail and highway transportation as a "pressing problem." He pointed out that common carriers of passengers and freight constitute a small part of the total highway traffic, while private automobiles, in the United States, for instance, are handling most of the total travel and have taken from the railroads more than two-thirds of their local passenger business.

Bus operation, he declared, whether carried on by a railway company or by an independent operator, "must be conducted as a regulated monopoly. Excessive competition," he asserted, "results in less adequate service, with unnecessarily low rates, which aggravate the loss to competing railway lines." He further pointed out that motor trucks, operating over good highways, act as agencies for gathering freight and relieve railways of shot-haul loads on which profit would be little or nothing.

Figures Are Cited.

Citing figures to compare the truck and the passenger automobile, Prof. Trumbower stated that surveys have shown that generally three-fourths of the hauls by truck are under 30 miles and seldom exceed 100 miles whereas half of the passenger car trips are under 30 miles, while almost 25 per cent are longer than 100 miles.

The demand for cooperation of railroads and automotive transport agencies was emphasized by F. Vezzani, professor at the University of Rome, Italy, and Sergius A. Vassiliev, delegate from Russia. E. S. Shrapnell-Smith, director of transport companies of England, stated it had been found more profitable in his country for the railroads to participate in the ownership of highway lines rather than owning them outright. M. L. Delemer of the French delegation offered a resolution calling for the appointment of a special committee to review the conclusions of the Madrid conference of international railway executives last May. Other delegates participating in the debate were Edward J. Mehren, United States delegate and vice president of McGraw-Hill Co., and Dr. Waltner Euting, member of the German delegation.

Michigan Man to Speak.

The delegates who gathered for the discussion of highway construction methods were told by Roy W. Crum, director of the Highway Research Board of the National Research Council, that Europe has been directing its attention toward surfacing existing macadam roads while the United States has shown material advancement in the initial construction of low and medium-type roads. The meeting recommended the establishment of an international classification of materials, combinations of materials, construction methods and road types which will correlate the terms in use throughout the world. Fred R. White, chief engineer of the Iowa State Highway Commission, presided.

Today's discussion of road development in new countries will be under the chairmanship of Grover C. Dillman, State highway commissioner of Michigan, in the morning, and in the afternoon of Henry H. Blood, chairman of the State Road Commission of Utah. Jay Downer, chief engineer, Westchester County Park Commission, New York, and Edward J. Mehren will be chairmen of the sessions devoted to traffic. The former discussion will be led by Edwin W. James, chief, division of highway transport, United States Bureau of Public Roads, while that dealing with traffic regulation will be in charge of Dr. Miller McClintock, director of the Albert Russell Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research, Harvard University.

The President and Mrs. Hoover will receive the delegates at the White House at 5 o'clock today.

DETROIT IS CHOSEN LEGION'S 1931 HOST

Communism Condemned in Resolution Adopted; Noted Speakers Heard.

VANDALISM IS DEPLORED

Boston, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The serious matters of a national convention occupied the attention of the American Legion here today. The outstanding events of a five-hour session were:

The choice of Detroit as the 1931 convention city.

The adoption of resolutions condemning Communism and regretting and condemning the acts of vandalism by hoodlums who took advantage of the convention to spread disorder last night.

In his speech Admiral Benson, now retired, urged the Legionnaires to study and eradicate the causes of crime and to vindicate the laws. Sir William brought the greetings of the Irish veterans. Gen. Goursud represented the government of France and reviewed the association of France and the United States down through the years. Mr. Green warned against forces at work to "commercialize unemployment for the purpose of breaking down our government." Gen. Hines expressed the hope that an effective plan of veteran relief would be evolved.

Resolutions Bring Cheers.

The resolutions dealing with communism and that condemning the activities of the hoodlums were cheered. In the first the Legion indorsed the appointment of a special congressional committee now investigating Communists in the country and urged that after it had reported Congress enact legislation to end all communistic activities in the United States.

The second rebuked those who tipped over automobiles, set fires and engaged in street brawls with policemen and civilians late last night and early today. The legion said many of the ruffians posed as legionnaires.

The fight for the next convention was between Detroit and Los Angeles with Wilber Brucker, Republican nominee for governor of Michigan, and Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit, leading the fight for Detroit. John R. Quinn, past national commander, put forth the cause of Los Angeles. The vote was 658 to 570 in favor of Detroit, and Quinn immediately withdrew the name of Los Angeles and asked that the choice be unanimous for Detroit.

Band Prizes Awarded.

The band of Electric Post, of Milwaukee, retained its title as the official band of the legion by winning the band contest. The Canton, Ohio, Post Band was second and the Indiana State Band of Bloomington, Ind., was third. A cold east wind blew and a heavy mist fell as the bands played.

Through their victories, Electric Band won a prize of $1,000 and the Lemuel Bolles Trophy; Canton Band, $500, and the Indiana Band, $250.

Awards for the annual membership drive of the legion were announced at the morning session. Arkansas led the list, winning three trophies. The awards were as follows: Hanford MacNider Trophy, won by Arkansas; J. G. Emery Trophy, won by Arkansas; the Henry D. Lindsley Trophy, by Arkansas; the North Carolina Trophy, by Porto Rico; the John R. Quinn Trophy, by Tennessee; the Franklin Dipler Trophy, by Arizona; the James A. Drain Trophy, by California; the Howard P. Savage Trophy, by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Post, of Baltimore, Md.

Legion Auxiliary Heads Nominated

Arizonian and Arkansan Contest for National Presidency.

Boston, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The American Legion Auxiliary today prepared for the election of new national officers by nominating candidates, Mrs. Ruth McCurry Brown, of Little Rock, Ark., and Mrs. Wilma Hoyal, of Douglas, Ariz., were selected as the candidates for the national presidency.

Vice presidents nominated without opposition included Mrs. Hazel Dudgeon, Welch, W. Va., Central District; Mrs. E. E. Laughbaugh, Boise, Idaho, Western Division, and Mrs. A. C. Carlson, Wilmar, Minn., Northwestern District.

Several silver trophy cups representing the membership supremacy changed hands during the session. The Hobart Trophy was awarded to West Virginia, the Hobart Junior Trophy to Maryland, and the Scallen Trophy to Wisconsin.

Traces of stone-age inhabitants of the New England region are being sought by an exploration party near Lake Winnipesaukee.

RALPH CAPONE GIVES SELF UP TO POLICE

Brother of "Scarface Al" Posts $10,000 Bond on Charge of Vagrancy.

HEARING IS SET TODAY

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Ralph Capone, brother of "Scarface Al" and a "public enemy" in his own right, surrendered at the detective bureau today on a vagrancy warrant issued by Judge John H. Lyle and posted $10,000 in cash for bond.

Ralph Capone, who is reported to be one of the chief lieutenants in his brother's large liquor, gambling and vice organization, was one of the 28 major gangsters listed by the Chicago Crime Commission as "public enemies."

Several weeks ago Judge Lyle issued vagrancy warrants for 26 of those listed; Capone was the ninth to be arrested.

Escorted by his lawyer, Miles J. Devine, Capone first went to the clerk of the municipal court.

"He's giving himself up; here's the bail," Devine said, snapping a rubber band off a large roll of yellow bills.

Devine and Capone took their receipt to the chief of detectives office, had it verified and the gangster was booked by the desk sergeant. Warrant, receipt and bond were then sent to Judge Lyle's court, where arraignment is set for tomorrow.

Capone is also at liberty under bond in Federal court where he is fighting a conviction for income tax evasion. He faces a penitentiary term on this count.

He was born in Hampshire County, W. Va., but lived here many years. Surviving are a widow, Mrs. Annie V. Oates; two daughters and one son.

BUSH DEATH BRINGS QUIZ OF ASSOCIATES

Plaza Hotel, of which he was owner, supervising the installation of a new electric sign. He drove to his home at 3534 Fulton street northwest for dinner and returned to the hotel in the evening. So far as is known he had no altercations over business or other matters.

In his statement to Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, of the homicide squad, Mr. Bush had said that his attacker was a white man wearing a slouch hat and an overcoat.

When he reached for his wallet, in a hip pocket, to surrender his money, the gunman struck him over the head with the butt of the gun, Mr Bush said.

Took Gun Away.

The struggle which cost the life of the hotel and bus line owner followed. Mr. Bush said he had the man overpowered at one stage of the struggle. He wrested the gun away, but his adversary regained its possession, the dying man said. They had grappled and were both on the ground when the fatal shots were fired.

Although they accept Mr. Bush's statement that robbery was the motive for the attack, those assigned to the investigation yesterday questioned scores of persons whose daily paths of life intertwined with those of the dead financier. Any new lead that develops is rapidly followed to its end.

By this means the investigators have established the fact that Mr Bush was a man of regular habits He was a widower and is susvived by a son, William, living at 3701 Massachusetts avenue northwest. One of his principal interests was the hotel of which he was the owner. He spent much of his time there.

Mrs. Gatchell told of hearing Mr. Bush's voice demanding "Who are you and what do you want?" She did not hear the response, she said, but the sounds of struggling men and the shots followed.

Saw Men Battling.

Mrs. Norman Lutz, sister-in-law of the financier, also was awakened by the sounds in the alley. She heard Mr. Bush's voice calling "police," and ran to the porch in time to see the battling figures dimly outlined against an alley light in the background.

As she turned to call her husband a shot echoed and was soon followed by three others. Her brother-in-law bleeding profusely from wounds in his abdomen and arm stumbled into the doorway.

DISBARMENT SOUGHT OF STATE CANDIDATE

GRAFT IN SUIT IS HINTED

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The disbarment committee of the Mississippi Bar Association announced today that it would start disbarment proceedings against Lester C. Franklin, chairman of the State tax commission and candidate for governor, and five other attorneys for reported irregularities in the settlement of a $10,000,000 antitrust suit the State sought to bring against Warren Bros., Boston road material firm.

It was said alleged irregularities in the granting of permits to operate bus lines in Mississippi also would be involved in the proceedings.

The suit, which the State sought to bring against Warren Bros. for alleged violation of Mississippi antitrust laws, was settled by the payment of $80,000 by an official of the company to persons who represented themselves as agents of the State. After the settlement became known, claims were made by State officers that the money never reached the State treasury.

The proposed suit against Warren Bros. arose in connection with highway construction contracts the company had in Mississippi.

Louis M. Jiggits, secretary of the bar association's disbarment committee, said the proceedings would be instituted against Franklin; Carl Marshall, an attorney of St. Louis; District Attorney J. H. Howie, of Jackson; Sam Latham, of Jackson; R. E. Steen, of Picayne, and J. C. Walker, of Shaw.

HIGH SCHOOL PAPER EDITORS GATHERING

PRIZES WILL BE GIVEN

Lexington, Va., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Southern high school editors will gather here tomorrow for the sixth annual convention of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association to be held Friday and Saturday, sponsored by the school of journalism and journalistic fraternities at Washington and Lee University.

Convention dates were moved from May to October to enable high school editors to benefit from discussions at the beginning of the term rather than at the end, Prof. William L. Mapel, director of the Lee Memorial School of Journalism, said today.

The S. I. P. A. has met every year for the past six at Washington and Lee. Each year a full program of meetings and talks is carried out and prizes are awarded to the best annual, magazine and newspaper in each class. The schools are divided into four classes: Class A—enrollment of 1,000 or over; Class B—enrollment of 700 to 1,050; Class C—enrollment of 351 to 700; Class D—enrollment of 350 or under.

DR. MARVIN SPEAKS AT U. OF V. OPENING

Mutual Concessions Urged as Safeguard to Future World Peace.

2,420 ARE REGISTERED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 8.—The art of mutual concession must be learned if future peace between nations is to be preserved, said Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of George Washington University, in an address on "Education and the International Mind," at the convocation exercises marking the formal opening of the hundred and seventh academic year of the University of Virginia.

"The one distinct impression I bring from Europe," said the speaker, "is the belief of man that there must be a way of understanding; that if democracies are to control the international affairs of civilization they must make it their duty to learn of the responsibilities they undertake. They must learn of the limitations upon their national rights that democracy imposes, that justice is not merely justice to themselves, but that it is justice by them to others; that liberty is not merely saying that they shall be free, but that they are glad and willing that others shall be free.

"They must learn to respect the right of others to differ and not treat it as cause of offense. They must learn that in international relations, respect for the prejudices and feelings of other nations is a condition of having one's own feleing and prejudice respected."

In welcoming the 672 new students registered in the college department, President Edwin A. Alderman said that the university next year will attempt for the first time to set up machinery for refusing admission to certain undesirable types that properly have no place in the University of Virginia. The whole world of American college life is deeply concerned in the rate of failures in the first year men, said Dr. Alderman.

"Recently the dean of Princeton University has communicated with nearly all the deans of American colleges, asking their judgment as to what causes failure and their answers are rather uniform in claiming a lack of feeling of responsibility and the necessary willingness to work. The university's present registration—2,420—is the largest in history, stated Dr. Alderman. There are 913 new students registered in all departments. The geographical distribution gives Virginia 1,175 students, representing 89 counties; other American States, 1,201, representing 43 States, and 27 students from fourteen foreign countries.

Registration Clash Appeal Indicated

Cases of Washingtonians in Maryland Will Be Pressed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 8.—The controversy arising over the voters' registration lists in two or more precincts of Anne Arundel County, in which Republican leaders of the county and State alleged that upward of 400 persons, mostly Washingtonians who own summer homes in Maryland, probably will reach the State's highest tribunal, the court of appeals.

This was indicated today after revision day, which was yesterday, failed to develop into a satisfactory settlement of the issue. The registration officials, it appears, sent only a few notices to the alleged "suspects" in response to the mandamus petition granted to Republicans. As a matter of fact, the officials, both Democratic and Republican, practically entered into a coalition to get the matter into court.

Action on appeals from the registration boards is now expected and Judge Robert Moss will hear such cases probably within the next week or so. It is hinted that whatever may be his ruling the appellate court will be asked to pass final judgment.

Boys Sentenced To Sunday School

Court Action Follows on "War" Between Lads in Two Localities.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Oct. 8.—An intercity "war" of youths, involving "armies" from Charles Town and Summit Point, near here, ended in a justice's court here yesterday when a half-dozen local boys were ordered to attend Sunday school regularly for the next six months. The Summit Point "army" was to be given a hearing later, with probably the same sentence.

The arrests came Sunday upon complaint of some of the older people following fighting with stones in Summit Point. The Sunday outbreak was the climax to a series of skirmishes, witnesses said, during which Charles Town boys were warned not to visit Summit Point, and the Charles Town boys answered by arming themselves with stones and making visits.

The boys were allowed to select the Sunday schools which they would attend.

THANKS, MR. PRESIDENT!

President Hoover deserves the thanks of the Nation for his expression of true Americanism in speeches delivered this week. At Cleveland he addressed the country's bankers, and instilled in them the spirit of optimism that has made the United States triumphant over all economic obstacles and placed it in the forefront of nations. At Boston he appealed to the American Legion to exercise in peace times the vigilance in behalf of liberty that they exercised in war; to stand fast for American ideals, and to blaze the way to greater American achievements. Mr. Hoover's address to labor recounted the success with which the country's great economic forces—labor, industry, finance and transportation—grappled with sudden adversity and checked its ravages. He drew the simple lesson that the continued cooperation of these forces could put away depression and restore the Nation's prosperity. At Kings Mountain the President recalled the heroic past, applied its experience to the present, and exhorted his countrymen to be on guard against foreign wiles and domestic corruption.

Taken altogether these addresses are the inspiring utterances of a national leader whose vision pierces through passing clouds and surveys the present and future in proper perspective. They are not the counsel of cowardice or the braggadocio of a national bully. They are not warped by partisanship. President Hoover compressed into these speeches the true spirit of America, which rises above partisanship, knows no fear, disdains the role of aggressor, and plans for the ages.

Few men in this country have the ability to interpret and expound true Americanism, and fewer still have the opportunity to speak to the whole country as an audience. Mr. Hoover's capacity to extract the essence from complex and vast generalities is a wonderful gift; and his opportunity to deliver compressed truths to the whole country is his good fortune.

In the midst of perplexing times, with all too many so-called leaders exhibiting utter lack of courage or foresight, it is inspiring to millions of every-day Americans to hear the authentic spirit and purpose of this Nation uttered by its Chief Magistrate. The people never falter nor fail, whether facing foreign foes or domestic troubles. It is their false leaders who fail in time of stress. Fortunately for all, a stout heart and clear head direct the ship of state.

CHICAGO THUGS RESENT SLUR.

A few days ago Chicago was confronted with one of those numerous reports charging the city's wickedness to a three-cornered alliance of politicians, gangsters and corrupt police. Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson must have resented this, but he didn't do anything about it. Apparently gangdom resented it, too, because it countered by robbing the mayor's wife of $18,000 worth of jewelry.

There is something puzzling about this robbery. Chicago is engaged in a campaign against racketeers. The most pernicious villains have been stigmatized "public enemies," and if caught they must face the terrorizing charge of vagrancy. With such dire penalties hanging over their heads, how dare these dastards slug Mrs. Thompson's policeman chauffeur and take her jewels? The mayor, in his rage, is confident that they didn't know who they were robbing, but the public will probably think otherwise.

It is possible that the underworld of the Windy City has not been cowed by the administration's blustering drive. Apparently the proscribed hoodlums object to being thought of as mere bad boys of the neighborhood who can be put to rout by vagrancy warrants. What will the mayor do about it? He has the entire police force busy finding his wife's jewels, but what of the wrist-slapping campaign? Outside of Chicago the robbery will be regarded as a demonstration of the underworld's resentment of the charge that it is so depraved as to be in league with Chicago's police.

WORLD CHAMPIONS.

Brilliant chapters of baseball history have just been written. The Philadelphia Athletics, finally pitted against the St. Louis Cardinals, emerge triumphant as the finest team of players in the world. Millions of baseball lovers, not only in the United States but in Mexico, Cuba, Japan and other countries, have followed the 1930 world series with breathless interest, and are extravagant admirers of the skill displayed at Philadelphia and St. Louis. In Havana the love of baseball has distracted the populace from rumors of national disturbances and noticeably alleviated a critical political situation. In Mexico the sympathies of the crowd were with the St. Louis Cardinals, but cries of "Viva Filadelfia" were not lacking. Throughout this country the frayed voices of radio announcers enabled every citizen, though on the run, to hear a still more rapid running account of the games.

Washington knows the thrill that goes with world championship games. The Nationals held high place at the end of this season and are fully warranted in indulging in dreams of supreme success next year. Only world champions could keep them down this year. The Athletics, under Connie Mack's generalship, are superb artists, individually and in teamwork. They are the best qualified experts in the country to gauge the ability of the Nationals. Doubtless they regard the Nationals as more deadly rivals than the St. Louis Cardinals.

The horsehide and the hickory now go into hibernation until next April. Falling leaves and collapsing South American governments mark the beginning of the autumn season when thudding bootleather against pigskin will make music in the land.

DEMAND FOR READING MATTER.

The insatiable appetite of the public for the printed page is in evidence at every newsstand, at every bookstore and on every crowded corner where newspapers are sold. Never before have such immense volumes of reading matter been distributed. There seems to be no end to the consumer demand for news, opinion, fiction, information and controversy supplied by the press.

A clue on which one may form some judgment as to the volume of periodicals entering American homes is contained in a report from the Postoffice Department. During the year 1879 51,125,500 pounds of second-class mail were handled. By 1929 this class of mail had increased to 1,518,811,125 pounds. This means that during the last 50 years the volume of newspapers and magazines sent through the mails has been multiplied by 30. Nearly 30,000 publications now have a second-class mailing status, and last year more than 4,500 new concerns applied for similar privileges. A large number of publications also dropped out of the field.

This is only an incomplete picture, however, for it does not include the billions of newspapers delivered into homes and sold on the streets, nor millions of magazines that are sold from newsstands without passing through the postal system. Nor does it take account of the enormous number of books that are published every year. The 1,518,811,125 pounds of periodicals that get into the mails, representing many newspapers and several magazines to the pound, must be considered as only a fraction of the total volume of reading matter that is annually supplied to the public.

The press is able to supply this enormous demand at extremely low cost because of advertising. In reality people are paying for their magazines and newspapers when they go marketing and shopping. But they must pay the same price for goods and commodities whether or not they are readers of daily, weekly or monthly publications. This fact suggests that there may be expected further phenomenal increases in the demand for services that current publications have to offer.

MORE CRIME, MORE JUDGES.

The senior circuit court judges who met in conference in Washington last week recommended that five new district judges be appointed as a means of relieving congestion in Federal district courts, and that the sixteen temporary district court judgeships and one circuit court judgeship created in 1922 to handle the increased number of cases that were at that time crowding the dockets, be continued on a permanent basis. "Experience has shown," said the senior judges, "that the need that was considered temporary in 1922 is permanent."

Court congestion constitutes one of America's most pressing problems. The Constitution guarantees the right to speedy trial, but it is physically impossible at present to bring cases to trial at an early date. The crowded condition of the courts makes for easy miscarriage of justice. Time after time when cases finally are brought up for trial it develops that witnesses have disappeared, that time has mitigated the seriousness of the charge and that important facts with respect to the charges have been forgotten. Everywhere individuals and organizations are studying the problem of court congestion.

As temporary relief, expansion of the judicial machine would be satisfactory. Inasmuch as the problem calls for immediate attack, it is probably necessary that such relief be accorded. But the judicial machine can not be indefinitely expanded. Somewhere a point exists beyond which expansion would result in topheaviness. Evidence is not lacking that the point is now being approached. Expanding the judicial machine is akin to treating a symptom instead of a disease.

The problem of court congestion is rooted in the problem of general lawlessness. Court statistics indicate that the American people as years go by are running afoul of the law in ever-increasing numbers. During the year ended June 30 last, for example, 9,500 more cases were introduced into Federal courts than during the preceding year. Some 24,300 civil cases were instituted in Government courts in 1929 as compared with 24,900 in 1930 and some 86,000 criminal cases in 1929 as compared with 87,000 in 1930. Immediate action is required to make possible handling these cases with dispatch, but it is more fundamentally important to ascertain the causes contributing to the increases, to the end that court congestion may be alleviated by reducing law violation.

The law enforcement commission may make important contributions along these lines. It is split internally by a wrangle over prohibition, however, and it may be that the larger purpose for which it was created will be lost sight of in the prohibition squabble. Certain private investigations of law observance, notably one now under way under the direction of Johns Hopkins University, in which the whole State of Ohio is being utilized as a laboratory, hold at least a promise of developing a key to the solution of the problem of court congestion. Expanding the judicial machine is, at best, an empirical remedy.

INTER-AMERICAN MOTOR TRAFFIC.

The convention on the regulation of automotive traffic, signed by representatives of nineteen American republics at the Pan-American Union, promises to become a most important document. The day is approaching when the republics of the Western Hemisphere will be bound together by a cordon of highways. Already the highway building program of the American republics is being forged to a pattern designed to lend itself to this purpose. Today international highway journeys are looked upon as daring achievements, but tomorrow they will be a public habit. When free and easy vehicular progress to all sections of the Western Hemisphere is made possible by the development of international highways the value of the convention on the regulation of automotive traffic will be apparent.

It is specified in the convention that each state has exclusive jurisdiction over the use of its own highways, agreeing, however, to their international use as specified. Before admission to international traffic, vehicles must be registered in the manner specified in the state of origin, in addition to which each vehicle must carry an international registration marker. Evidence of registration in any of the contracting states shall entitle the vehicle to international reciprocity. The convention further lays down certain rules of the road and prescribes minimum mechanical requirements for individual vehicles.

The nations that become party to the convention will have taken a step calculated to stimulate international traffic within their borders. It is highly desirable that the people of the American republics should become acquainted by personal contact. Motor travel is a potent means of making friends and promoting commerce and peace.

The Department of Education reports that 200,000 students in American colleges earned about $33,000,000 in 1928. We didn't realize football squads required so many men.

MUSEUM OF INDUSTRY

By H. F. J. PORTER,
Secretary National Museum of Engineering and Industry, in New York Times.

Press dispatches from Munich recently, describing the visit of Henry Ford to the Deutsches Museum, are of interest to some of our people who are familiar with that museum, admittedly the largest and most modern industrial museum in the world.

Mr. Ford, according to the dispatches, was so impressed with what he saw that he not only donated some $240,000 to supply what he felt it needed, but promised to present a section of the belt on which his automobiles are assembled at the factory to demonstrate to the people of Europe generally and of Germany in particular one of the methods he uses for mass production.

Unfortunately, this country is far behind the leading nations of Europe in educating the people concerning the methods of production that have placed it in the forefront of the industrial nations of the world. We have the nucleus of a national museum at Washington, but the improvements now under way in that city to make it the most beautiful capital in the world include razing the National Museum Building and storing its contents until it can be replaced on another and larger site.

A group of our leading engineers and industrialists some time ago, stimulated by the success of the Deutsches Museum, became incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia to see what could be done to hasten the development of a great national museum of engineering and industry worthy of this country. The Washington authorities have tentatively assigned to it a site of upward of 100 acres in the eastern section of the city, and last May a hearing was held by the Senate committee of education and labor, which was addressed by representatives of the engineers' societies and industries and representatives of some of the President's Cabinet, favoring a bill to authorize the President to appoint a commission to make a survey of the industrial museum situation in this country and Europe and report its recommendations to Congress. This is Senate bill 911 and will be pressed for passage in both houses of Congress in December.

When this project first was broached it was felt that simply because a museum would be located in the Capital City of the Nation would not make it de facto national in respect to benefits accruing to all the people, particularly in a nation so widespread as ours. Therefore, the members proposed establishing local museums in the different States affiliated with the central museum in Washington, to carry the museum's benefits to the people by books, pamphlets, photographs, models, motion pictures, radio, television, &c.

Since then such local museums have been started in New York City, Philadelphia, Chicago and elsewhere, and Mr. Ford has one well advanced at Dearborn.

It is hoped that the bill now in Congress will be passed promptly so as to give our people the opportunity to learn how our industries are operated without having to go to Germany for the purpose.

THE "LONE WOLF."

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

JANET'S VIEWPOINT.

It was bed time but she said:
"I don't want to go to bed!"
And I took her on my knee, Saying: "Weary you must be.
From the rising of the sun
Here and there those legs have run.
Though they're very strong and stout,
Now they must be quite worn out.

"Had I played as hard as you
I should now be weary, too,
Had my feet so far have run,
Had I done all you have done,
Had I raced and romped about,
I should now be quite worn out
And be glad to have it said:
"'Now it's time to go to bed.'"

But my Janet, rather bold,
Said: "If you were eight years old,
Not so very tired you'd be.
Though you'd played all day like me.
And perhaps if you were eight
You would want to sit up late,
And would grumble when they said:
"'Come, it's time to go to bed.'"

If Your Heifer Plows for the Neighbors She Can't Plow Much for You.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SPEECH is a substitute for action.

It gives to the speaker, as work does to the worker, a sense of satisfaction in duty well done.

When money must be raised, or a community work done, or an enemy defeated, there are people whose contributions to the enterprise take the form of speech. And when they have done their eloquent best to show others the path of duty and righteousness they feel relieved of any further obligation.

Their vocal labors exhaust their zeal and give them the same sense of accomplishment enjoyed by workers.

When angry men are on the point of coming to blows their quarrel can be ended without violence if they are given time to talk. Speech acts as a safety valve, and the energy expended in describing his grievance cools the belligerent's anger and gives him a satisfaction almost equal to that of striking blows.

Thus it is that a man who has resolved to reform or accomplish a great work for the world defeats himself when he indulges in boastful speech before the labor is begun. Telling others what he intends to do not only exhausts his energy but gives him such a sense of satisfaction that he has no incentive to make further effort.

This treachery of speech—this ability of talk to substitute itself for accomplishment—explains the worthlessness of people who habitually discuss their neighbors.

As in the world of sport the onlookers who discuss the game and the players enjoy their partisanship without taking an active part in the struggle and are weary when it is finished, so the habit of getting excited about other people's affairs affords a vicarious thrill and so exhausts the individual's capacity for being interested that he has no energy left for his own affairs.

Those who talk about their neighbors almost invariably are failures—not because they are inherently lazy, but because they have become habitual onlookers, content to get their enjoyment of accomplishment by watching it.

Each individual has just so much mental energy. If he exhausts it in discussing his neighbor's faults and affairs, he will have none left for affairs and faults of his own.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

No Drought in Politics.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

It is plainly on the cards for the wets to win in New York, California and Illinois, as well as in New Jersey, Maryland, Rhode Island, Connecticut and perhaps in Massachusetts and Montana. The year 1930 seems destined to be distinguished for its drought in the summer and its wetness in November. Politically, it is a wet year.

Lack of leadership among the drys and continued division of counsel among those aspiring to leadership is resulting in giving the wets the whip-hand in many States. The dry forces may as well face the situation as it is. Bold assurances of some dry leaders that "the amendment will never be repealed" lack much of being adequate security for the prohibition cause. There has been too much of that sort of talk for the safety of prohibition.

Nebraska's Twisted Campaign.

With a rather general feeling prevailing among politicians and others here that the Democratic candidate for United States senator, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, has an inferior chance of defeating his competitor, Senator George W. Norris, leader of the insurgent Republican group in the Senate, leading Democrats are finding compensating comfort in the prospect that their party will capture four or perhaps five of Nebraska's six seats in the House of Representatives.

The prohibition issue, while it has not appeared openly in the senatorial contest, has entered into some of the congressional battles and there is certainty of a wet gain from this State in the Congress to be elected in November.

The Nebraska delegation in the present House stands, four Republicans and two Democrats. Both of the Democrats, who are candidates for reelection, are regarded as certain to be returned. The only Republican candidate certain of election is Representative Robert G. Simmons, of the Sixth District.

Senator Norris occupies a unique position in Nebraska politics. He has the assurance of strong Democratic support at the polls. That many Democrats took advantage of the State's loosely-drawn primary statutes by going into the Republican primaries to vote for Norris is generally conceded. How many of them adopted that course there is no means of ascertaining, but estimates of their number range up to 25,000.

Gratitude to Senator Norris for bolting the Hoover-Curtis presidential ticket in 1928 and declaring for the Democratic candidates, Smith and Robinson, is given as the chief reason for the Democrats' defection.

Another factor in attracting Democratic support for Norris is the coalition of his insurgent Republican group with the Senate Democrats. Many Republican critics of Senator Norris are saying with grim humor that whichever way the senatorial contest is decided, Nebraska will elect a Democrat to the Senate.

Democrats and the Tariff.

Chicago Tribune.

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, says there were nineteen Democratic senators who took every tariff boost they could get in the Hawley-Smoot law to acquire merit with their local manufacturers in the legislation which they describe as a Republican monstrosity. The record very likely would fully sustain him in showing that wherever a Democratic senator saw a State advantage in higher rates he went after them like any Grundy. The tariff is a political iniquity when it boosts the other fellow's rates, but a Jeffersonian who went low tariff where his own folk were involved would be regarded as too much of a doctrinaire for service in a pragmatic world. He would be retired to the cloister where his devotion to principle would not have an effect on the supply of side meat and meal for the winter.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Italian-American Resents Claims That Columbus Was a Catalonian, Spaniard, Frenchman or Anything But an Italian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me, that every year in October, the nationality of Christopher Columbus is questioned. This year's honor goes to a Peruvian professor, Luis Ulloa, who tells us that Columbus was a Catalonian corsair.

Spain, last year, more than four hundred years after putting Columbus in chains, was claiming him as her own. A Madrid newspaper went so far as to offer a prize of fifty thousand pesetas for the best proof that Columbus was a Spaniard. Well, I can still assure the Madrid newspaper that they will never part with the pesetas.

That Columbus was Italian is accepted by scholars and historians everywhere, except in Spain, where nationalist pride would like to have him pass as a local product, and in Germany where pedagogues are always trying to prove anything that is hard to prove, just to keep themselves from rusting.

To the Italian people, who are justly proud of their great navigator, the ridiculous efforts of the Peruvian, Spanish, German, French and other professors who would have us believe that Columbus was just a fakir, are mere flatteries.

There is not a great man in Italian history who has not been claimed by other peoples. Have we not been told that Da Vinci and Michael Angelo were Nordics? A great man is an honor to any people, and they will make an effort to add to their glory whenever they can do so. Italy has so many great men she has never felt the need to borrowing or stealing from other countries.

Once again the Italians of the United States are preparing to celebrate Columbus Day. The discovery of America is the main historic tie that binds Italy and America. The millions of Italian workers who have followed in the trail of Columbus, who have helped to make America what it is, and who have in turn greatly benefited by America's opportunities, owe it to themselves and to their country of origin to honor the memory of the first of their own to set foot on American soil. In doing so they honor themselves.

OSWALD FABRIZIO.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Automobile installments are running many people into debt as well as into the ditch. I am not a joy killer, but even a squirrel knows enough to bury an acorn for the rainy day. Speaking of installments, if the movies would only sell tickets of admission on the installment plan and Rockefeller would only sell gas on the installment plan, the American people would receive the finishing blow.

I think the pension system is wrong in principle, except where the beneficiaries are obliged to pay for protection in old age. There is danger that it will encourage improvidence. Too many people believe the world owes them a living. Even labor unions, whose members are employed part time, demand that their wages should cover full time. Who gives such a guaranty to merchants, professional men and the myriad of clerks? Does any one guarantee full-time sales for merchants, full-time salaries to clerks, or full quotas of clients and patients to professional men?

Why not tax everybody to pension everybody until the structure of our body politic becomes so unwieldy that it will fall of its own weight? Heaven help us! J. N. SLAYTON.

Oliver Cromwell's Views on Prohibition Requoted by Mr. Roberts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Reading recently Samuel Hardin Church's biography of Oliver Cromwell, I was struck by a statement made by the lord protector of England in a communication to the Scotch Presbyterian ministers. It was in 1650, when he was in Scotland after his great victory at Dunbar. He was engaged in polemical communication with these ministers, who were at variance with the English Puritans and Independents on certain matters of doctrine and church government. In one of these communications, Cromwell wrote:

"Your pretended fear lest error should step in, is like the man who would keep all wine out of the country lest men should be drunk. It will be found an unwise and unjust jealousy to deprive a man of his natural liberty upon a supposition that he may abuse it. When he doth abuse it, judge."

It would be well for rabid drys to ponder this statement by Oliver Cromwell. It is just as true and applicable today as it was when he wrote it, nearly 300 years ago.

JOHN F. ROBERTS.

Jimmy Foxx's Home Run the Outstanding Feature of the World Series.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Athletics are worthy champions. They defeated a ball team, the splendid quality of which can not be disputed. In the first two games St. Louis appeared to such poor advantage that it looked as though the series would be a walkaway for the champions of the American League, but in the next two games St. Louis exhibited the brand of baseball that enabled it to triumph in the National League race. The fifth game was decided by Jimmy Foxx's home run in the ninth inning.

The crisis of the whole series came in this ninth inning of the fifth game. Jimmy Foxx is a batter of extraordinary ability but, nevertheless, he must be counted lucky in having smashed out a four-bagger at the critical moment. OLD FAN.

BERLIN MAYOR QUITS ON $7,137 FOR LIFE

Resignation Announced as City Report Reveals $14,000,000 Deficit.

OTHER CITIES HARD HIT

Berlin, Oct. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Gustav Boess, Mayor of Berlin, will retire November 1 with a life pension of 30,000 marks ($7,137) a year. The retirement will be at his own request.

The announcement comes simultaneously with the making public of the report of the city chamberlain of Berlin showing a deficit for the year of between 60,000,000 marks ($14,274,000) and 70,000,000 marks ($16,653,000). The report discloses that revenues have fallen off by 20,000,000 marks ($4,758,000) and unemployment and coal payments will amount to an extra 40,000,000 marks ($9,516,000). Increases in excise and poll taxes will cover only a portion of the deficit.

Other Cities Pressed.

In this connection it is also reported that Germany's 44 cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants will be in pressing need of money as more than half of loans totaling 4,500,000,000 marks ($1,070,550,000) are falling due. Communal finances throughout the Reich are in similar straits.

These figures indicate the necessity for the economies proposed in Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's program to be presented to the new Reichstag. It will be difficult to get political support for his program, however, because the reductions he demands in the salaries of state and other employes are regarded as only one type of the general economy necessary.

Increases in unemployment are also adding to Germany's worries at the beginning of winter. Krupps announced today that their Essen works will drop another 2,500 men on Saturday.

Cleared of Graft.

Dr. Boess was cleared recently by the Berlin supreme administrative court of a charge of misdemeanor in connection with municipal scandals in the German capital. But he was found guilty of "incorrect" behavior in office and fined a month's salary of 3,000 marks ($714).

Curiously enough this charge grew out of an investigation ordered by Dr. Boess while he was touring America last year. In the midst of his trip he cabled instructions for the investigation of graft charges. Out of this probe grew the charge that the German mayor had bought for his wife a $1,000 fur coat for $90 from a firm accused of defrauding the city.

Dr. Boess was in Los Angeles when the charge against him was made, but he refused to interrupt his tour, nor did the accusation detract from his welcome in Washington and Philadelphia, the last points he visited.

Creecy Board Submits Findings to Secretary

A statement from Secretary of Navy Adams is expected late this week concerning the findings of a special board of inquest of the Marine Corps which investigated the death of Lieut. Col. Richard B. Creecy, found dead with his wounded wife in the Mayflower Hotel recently. The findings were submitted to the Secretary yesterday through Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller.

No information as to the findings was made public by members of the board. Secretary Adams will submit the report to Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, judge advocate general, to pass on its legality and any comment will be made then by the Secretary.

HEART-WARMING WELCOME GIVEN HOOVER IN CAROLINAS

as at present. As it stands they have to get authority from the Interstate Commerce Commission before they can make outlay, in any appreciable amount, for new equipment or construction and the like.

The restrictions were enacted, of course, to guard against the watering of stock, but the President is understood to consider them too severe for modern times.

Coupled with these two propositions, both of the business stimulating sort, was the suggestion at Boston that the antitrust laws—he had particular reference to the coal industry—needed going over.

Democrats Are Silent.

Lessening of the restrictions on business, indeed, seemed to be the theme of his speeches, and certainly nothing apreals more to business.

The manner in which the President got over his thought, too, leaves the Democrats with hardly anything tangible upon which to attack him. There has not been a chirp out of them yet. If they are opposed to any of these propositions the President has not committed himself to them. He simply advanced them as something to be thought over.

When the Republican campaign workers get through with them, they will be definite promises. At least they will be cited as an effective answer to the Democratic criticism, that the Republicans are harrrassing business. Such criticism was most loudly voiced recently by former Sentor "Jim" Reed.

The way in which the tariff promise was developed in the campaign of 1928 is recalled. The President never promised anything more than a limited revision. Yet throughout the East the word was passing from responsible leaders that it was to be a general revision. This is what subsequently got the Republicans into trouble.

Green Praised Cooperation.

Not the least significant item of the President's trip was the apparent excellent understanding or working accord he has with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, which should be mutually helpful in these times of stress.

Mr. Green, in introducing the President to the federation at Boston, told of the studies for the advancement of labor that he and the President had been making together and he emphasized that Mr. Hoover had gone out of his way to advocate the maintenance of the present wage levels. Mr. Green's remarks would have hardly been more pointed had he said, "Mr. Hoover is the man you should look to."

That the President and Mr. Green knew what each other was to say is revealed by the fact that Mr. Hoover's prepared address refererd to Mr. Green's preceding remarks. Mr. Green is right close to the President.

There is, in fact, talk of his being the next Secretary of Labor.

After-Election Trip Seen for President

(Associated Press.)

The possibility that President Hoover might take another trip after the elections next month arose yesterday at the White House as the Chief Executive returned from Kings Mountain, S. C.

The length and destination of the future trip were undisclosed, but it became known that he was considering a proposal for another journey before Congress opens in December. No other speeches or trips are on his program before the elections, however, except his week-end jaunts to his Virginia mountain camp.

Ship Board Announces Merger of Lines

(Associated Press.)

The Shipping Board yesterday announced the completion of an operating agreement with the Dixie Mediterranean Line, of New Orleans, and the Texas Mediterranean Line, of Galveston, to be known in the future as the Gulf Mediterranean Line, with headquarters at New Orleans. The new line will be operated by the Dixie Steamship Co., and the Tampa Interoceanic Steamship Co. will have a 50 per cent interest. The Tampa company owns the Gulf West Mediterranean Line.

The merging of the Dixie and Texas lines involves eleven ships, and the board, under the agreement, has granted a lump sum of $9,500 per voyage, the operator to assume all repair expenses over $2,000 voyage.

IMPERIAL MEETING PLANS TARIFF BOOST

Increases Seen as Safeguard to Empire Against World's "Economic Blizzard."

FREE TRADE IS OPPOSED

London, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Great Britain's imperial conference made plans today to build high tariff walls around the United Kingdom and the Dominions beyond the seas as a protective measure against the "economic blizzard" that has hit the world.

It was J. H. Thomas, for the home government, who called the present depression an "economic blizzard" when he opened today's session, but it was Premier R. B. Bennett, of Canada—where they know how to deal with blizzards—who took the center of the conference stage.

Mr. Bennett quickly aroused interest with a definite proposal of 10 per cent additional preference in the Canadian market for the mother country and for other empire units which would return the favor.

Canada Invites Meeting.

Moreover, the Canadian prime minister invited the empire delegates to meet in Ottawa next spring as guests of the Canadian people for the purpose of building a comprehensive system of British Empire preferential tariffs. There in Ottawa, under the shadow of the United States tariff wall, the empire envoys would prepare their own protective system.

Bennett spoke following Mr. Thomas, who had inaugurated the empire economic survey. Spokesmen of other empire units—Australia, South Africa, Newfoundland, the Irish Free State and India—one after another approved the general principle of empire preference.

Mr. Thomas today merely invited the empire units to give their views without disclosing what the home government will do. This is expected to be revealed tomorrow, but not without the possibility of conflict within the Labor government ranks if Chancellor Philip Snowden is urged to surrender his free trade convictions in favor of the dominion views.

Free Trade Not Meant.

The Canadian premier was emphatic in declaring that empire preference does not mean empire free trade.

The slogan of empire free trade has been voiced loudly in some sections of England recently, particularly by the newspaper peers, Lords Beaverbrook and Rothermere, but Mr. Bennett and other dominion spokesmen, who are satisfied with the tariff walls they have built in the suburbs of the empire, say they have no intention of lowering them.

EUROPEAN BUSINESS SAID TO BE BETTER

BRITISH TRADE STILL OFF

(Associated Press.)

Foreign representatives of the Commerce Department in cable and radio reports compiled this week have reported "a trend toward economic improvement in many countries of Europe and the Far East and unchanged conditions in South America."

A special summary of their opinions was prepared yesterday and officially made public.

The reports attributed "steady, slow progress" to the Irish Free State, a showing of "somewhat greater optimism" in Italian business circles, an increase in railroad traffic in Czechoslovakia and a surplus in the current Norwegian government tax receipts declared to reflect "improved economic conditions." South African mercantile exchange was said to indicate better sentiment.

In the reverse side of the picture was a statement that "no amelioration has occurred in British trade conditions;" in Egypt commercial conditions were said to denote "increasing difficulties" and satisfactory crop returns in Turkey under low prevailing prices had failed to "improve general economic conditions."

Textile operations in Japan are increasing slightly "in response to better conditions in China," and "the situation in north China and Manchuria is also stronger."

In British India and the East Indies the tenor of reports registered trade declines while in the South American territory better agricultural prospects were noted from Argentina but "no business improvement in Brazil."

REDS RAVAGE CHINA; CIVIL WAR NEAR END

40,000 Bandits Pillage Kian in South; Missionaries Not Heard From.

SOVIET WARNS MARSHAL

Shanghai, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Red armies continued to scourge China tonight as cessation of civil warfare seemed near. With the rebellious northern alliance near collapse, Communists increased depredations in south China.

Sweeping over southern Kiangsi Province, 75,000 outlaws laid waste to towns and countryside. Kian, important city, with numerous smaller places nearby, was reported fallen prey to 40,000 bandit Reds who applied the torch.

It was not known whether the Reds simply looted the cities or, as in many other communities, killed many inhabitants.

Many British missionaries in the Kian area have not been heard from since the onslaught.

Lurking behind banks of the Yangtze River, Reds continued to fire upon foreign shipping between Kiukiang and Hankow, 155 miles, undiscouraged by losing a brief engagement yesterday with the United States gunboat Panay near Yochow.

Moscow, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The Soviet consul at Harbin, M. Znamensky, today handed Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang a note protesting against anti-Soviet activities of White Russians on the Chinese Eastern Railway, demanding that Chinese authorities take immediate measures to terminate such activities.

Referring to the Peiping-Mukden agreements of 1924, and also Article IV of the Khabarovsk protocol, the note called the attention of the Manchurian war lord to the forays of armed White guards in his province, asserting that they "terrorized employes of the Chinese Eastern Railway and rob and murder peaceful Soviet and Chinese citizens."

The Soviet government warned Chiang Hsueh-Liang that such provocations endangered the peace of the Far East and demanded the following:

"The Soviet government insists on the immediate disarming of existing White Guard bands and deportation of their members; the closing of all White Russian organizations, with confiscation of their property and arrest of the leaders; the discharge of all White Russians working on the Chinese Eastern Railway, and prohibition of the antisoviet campaign in White Russian press published in Manchuria."

Dreiser May Receive Nobel Letters Prize

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Theodore Dreiser, American novelist, was mentioned prominently in Stockholm newspapers today as a possible winner of this year's Nobel prize in literature.

Although the greatest secrecy is maintained as to the actual winner, it is understood Dreiser has several champions in the Swedish Academy, which annually awards the prize.

Five direct descendants of David Crockett, hero of the Texas revolution, still reside in the Rio Grande valley.

that is needed now is an active nucleus sufficiently large to perform the necessary tactical training work.

In this connection Admiral Pratt announced that a new unit would be established, a new training squadron in the Atlantic. This will consist of the battleships Arkansas and Wyoming, one of which must be shorn of its fighting power under the treaty, and two destroyer divisions.

The destroyers for these two divisions will be obtained by reducing the divisions throughout the fleet from six to four destroyers.

Treaty Submarines Are Now Under Study

(Associated Press.)

The type of submarine which the Navy is to build under the London Treaty has been under discussion by the Navy General Board for the past month, it was learned yesterday, with emphasis in the studies placed on numbers rather than size of the vessels.

Naval opinion has held submarines of the past not entirely successful—the S-boats of about 800 tons displacement have proved too small to be of value with the fleet; the V-boats, of approximately 1,900 to 2,700 tons, are excellent, but so large they reduce too greatly the number which now could be built within treaty tonnage.

A total of approximately 39,000 tons of submarines become over age within the life of the treaty, or at the close of 1936. Those which do not become over age are nine V-boats and eleven S-boats totaling 26,900 tons. Seven of the nine V-boats already are built or building; the other two are appropriated for. The treaty permits 52,700 tons of submarines.

A number of new submarine designs have been considered. It is understood now that the submarine most favored is one which displaces approximately 1,000 tons.

Should a tonnage of between 1,000 and 1,500 be accepted for future submarines, the Navy could build approximately twenty vessels within the 26,000 tons.

Texas Gunman's Cabaret Wrecked by Sudden Fire

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Sudden fire blazing through the flimsy fixtures of Texas Guinan's Argonaut Club in West Fifty-fourth street today wrecked the place while a sizeable crowd watched firemen who came too late to save the furniture.

The blaze started from an electrical short circuit.

New Trial Given Man Convicted of Uxoricide

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The State supreme court today ordered a new trial for Rafe F. King, Sharon farmer, who was sentenced to death after his conviction of the murder of his school teacher wife early last year.

The body of Mrs. King, instructor in French in the Sharon High school, was found in an outhouse on the King farm, and at first her death was ascribed to suicide. Later, however, her husband was charged with slaying her, and at his trial last summer he was convicted. The evidence was circumstantial.

Since the opening of the University of Texas in 1883, a total of 183,121 students have been enrolled in the school.

SILVER LOAN TO END CHINA WARS TALKED

STEP BY POWERS URGED

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—A plan to reestablish peace in China by means of a loan of several hundred million ounces of silver to the hungry, war-ravaged nation is being considered by the Senate subcommittee on foreign relations, Senator Key Pittman, Nevada, announced today.

Such a scheme also has been suggested as a means of reestablishing China's foreign trade. Decline of trade recently has been investigated by the Senate subcommittee in a series of hearings.

"The plan envisions the joint action of China, Great Britain, France, Japan, the United States and other interested governments," Senator Pittman said.

"A silver pool would be organized by such government, making available several hundred million ounces of silver to be advanced to the Chinese National government, as and when needed for peaceful purposes, as provided by a joint commission of such lending powers, such as expenditures as roads, transportaton and restoration of men and women to their homes and employment and to remove present famine conditions."

Such an arrangement, it was explained, probably would require agreement of the four dominant military leaders of China. In the opinion of witnesses who have appeared at the subcommittee's hearings, he added, it would meet the approval of the Chinese National government, the war lords and the people of the country.

The plan, in the opinion of witnesses, would result in the immediate pacification of China, establishment of control of the National government over the whole of China, the opening up of the vast interior and the revivification of all industry, he continued.

Another effect, he predicted, would be to raise the price of silver from 35 to 60 cents an ounce, as at present, to between $1 and $1.29.

Florida used 16,630,667 gallons of gasoline and 1,439,768 gallons of kerosene in July.

Stimson Host To Delegates Of Road Body

Happy Medium of Dash and Dignity in Reception at Pan American.

THERE was a happy medium of dash and dignity in the brilliant reception given last night by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson at the Pan-American Union when representatives from every portion of the globe, delegates to the sixth international permanent road conference, and their wives and daughters were the guests of honor.

The Secretary was assisted in receiving by the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. William R. Castle, jr., as Mrs. Stimson is still lingering at the Long Island estate.

The building itself was in festive array. Radiating a distinct atmosphere of hospitality, the Hall of the Americas, the wide starways and the patio, sparkling with lights and colorful flowers, seemed a fitting background for a reception in the Western World to visitors from lands across the sea. Many tongues were being spoken. There was the music of the Marine Band and the buzz and chatter of groups moving through the corridors.

Nearly 2,000 guests mingled in the palm fringed halls, more than half of them numbered among the foreign guests.

They were received at the entrance by Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, the Secretary of State and Mr. and Mrs. Castle taking their places in the hall of flags, at the head of the starway where Mr. Benjamin Cohen made the presentations.

Afterwards there was dancing in the Hall of the Americas, and a buffet supper in the map room, which looks out to the Aztec gardens. Everywhere and, seemingly in every tongue, although translated in halting English or French, were expressions of delight over the beautiful building, which, as always, served as a colorful background for guests of all nations.

Particularly noticeable was the astonishing number of men at the reception last night; they outnumbered the women five to one, which made for a delightful hour of dancing. The amjority of them were from abroad, although Washington galants joined the throngs and one glimpsed many familiar faces. Among the distinguished men from Europe who, last night, evinced favorable notice from everybody was the "Highland man in kilts"—Mr. Gordon-Allen by name—attired in the tartan of the Gordon clan. Mr. Gordon-Allen makes his home in London and is one of the enthusiastic representatives at the Road Congress.

All of the chiefs of mission of the various cuntries and delegates to the congress were present, many of them accompanied by their wives or daughters. The embassy and legation chiefs in Washington, with several members of the Cabinet, the "little cabinet" and other official folk attended, the women lovely in modish evening attire.

Among the Cabinet members in town for the reception were the Attorney General, Mr. William DeWitt Mitchell, with Mrs. Mitchell, the latter in a rich printed velvet of dark shade; the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Arthur M. Hyde, and the Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Robert Patterson Lamont. Neither Mrs. Hyde nor Mrs. Lamont were present, as Mrs. Hyde is at her home in Missouri and Mrs. Lamont absent in Europe. The Secretary of Labor, Mr. James J. Davis, was not present but was charmingly represented by Mrs. Davis, who wore a lace and chiffon frock of gold and black.

Among the interesting guests were the Charge d'Affaires of Roumania, Mr. Frederic C. Nano, and his beautiful wife, Mme. Nano, who has recently returned to this country for the first time since her husband has been here on this appointment. Several years ago she was among the most popular of the diplomatic hostesses in Washington. She is noted not only for her extreme beauty but for her exquisite clothes. Last evening she wore a gown of black velvet fashioned on long slender lines with a short fish tail train, a low decolletage with invisible straps and a single gardenia at the neckline.

Others there were the Charge d'Affaires of Germany and Frau Kiep. The latter has recently returned from a summer in Europe, and was striking in a gown of black tulle embroidered in silver, which contrasted with her blond hair. Mr. Michael MacWhite, Minister of the Irish Free State, was seen in conversation with the Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik, and Miss Loranda Prochnik, who seemed very popular with a group of young Austrian delegates. The Minister of Costa Rica, Senor Don Manuel Castra Quesada, was there without his charming sister who passed last season here with him. The Turkish Ambassador, Mr. Ahmet Mouhtar, and the Albanian Minister, Mr. Faik Konitza, arrived together. The Charge d'Affaires of Jugoslavia, Mr. Bojidar Stojanovitch, and the attache, Mr. Nikola Perazic, were there, and the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy and Lady Broderick arrived with the Charge d'Affaires of Canada and Mrs. Hume Wrong.

Ambassador Claudel Entertains Delegates.

The French Ambassador, M. Paul Claudel, entertained at a reception yesterday afternoon in honor of the French delegates to the Sixth Congress of the Permanent International Association of Roads Congresses.

The Brazilian Ambassador, Senhor S. Gurgel do Amaral, has returned to Washington after passing several months at Lake Placid and Atlantic City.

The First Secretary of the Embassy and Senhora Coelho de Almeida, who are passing some time in Europe, will return to town early next month.

If you are not as well as you want to be, if you are weak, nervous or rundown, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. Take at least three bottles. It will tone up your whole system and help you to eat better, sleep better and feel better.

Mrs. Marie Vriesenga, 2002 Lexington Ave., New York, New York.
"My work is keeping a rooming house in New York. I was weak and tired and didn't seem to feel well at all. Some friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it four times a day. It has helped me very much. I feel better in all ways now."

Mrs. Paulina Pascuzzi, 316 Tremont Ave., East Orange, New Jersey
"I never had any appetite and I could not sleep well, and I was irregular and often suffered from headaches because of my age. I read a booklet left at my door, and so I took eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have also taken the Herb Medicine. I feel stronger in every way now. I have gained weight and am not nearly so nervous and can do my housework without getting too tired."

Edna Sluraff, 1129 DalySt., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
"I was completely rundown from nursing. I took four bottles of your medicine with very good results. I have been a nurse for twenty years without losing a patient, I am proud to say. I will continue to recommend any of the Lydia E. Pinkham products at any time and you may use my name."

THE fact that the National Broadcasting Co. refuses to give its WEAF network programs to a Baltimore station, although considerable pressure has been exerted upon it to do so, revives the rumor that the N. B. C. still has hopes of itself getting into Baltimore with the WRC programs.

The WJZ network programs are now being supplied to Baltimore through Station WBAL. One scheme of the N. B. C. is said to be to synchronize Station WEAF, in New York, with WRC, in Washington, which would enable the latter station to broadcast the red network programs with 50,000 watts power, which under normal atmospheric conditions, would not only cover Baltimore amply, but would greatly enlarge its service area.

If that is the solution, the present frequency of WRC would be devoted entirely to serving the population of the National Capital and its immediate environment with the WJZ network programs.

A proposition originally considered was to locate a high powered station half-way between Baltimore and Washington. This, however, would necessitate drawing upon Maryland which already has its full broadcasting quota.

THE kind of make-up used by radio actors who will perform on television broadcasts in contrast to make-up used on the stage and screen will be discussed today by Charles E. Butterfield, radio editor of the Associated Press (WMAL—11:15 a. m.).

The Girl Scouts Drum and Bugle Corps will do their bit tonight for the Community Chest.

Listeners will be taken back this evening to the days when Caruso made his first records in a musically illustrated story of the development of home entertainment from the earliest phonograph record to the present perfection of radio. (WRC, Radio-Victor Hour, 10 p. m.).

Remember these tomorrow. Damrosch starts his school broadcasts (WRC, 11 a. m.). Paul Whiteman begins nightly broadcasts from WBBM, Chicago (11:15 p. m.). He will also play every Saturday night during the Chicago Variety Hour at 10 o'clock over WMAL.

Mrs. Fred Stone, in the "Wives of Celebrities" series (WJZ network, 10 p. m.). Arthur B. Reeve, with more detective thrillers (WRC, 10 p. m.). Knute Rockne will talk on Saturday's Notre Dame-Navy game (WMAL, 10:30 p. m.).

MILTON CROSS, announcer, recently received a box of grapes from a devoted fan in North Carolina.

"What are you going to do with them, Milt?" some one asked.

"What do people usually do with grapes?" replied Milt.

Complaint comes that Station WRC, to make a station announcement one morning this week, cut into the middle of a joke "Cheerio" was telling.

When WRC again tuned in on the program, those in the New York studio could be heard laughing, and "Cheerio" remarked, "Tonight everybody will be laughing about this joke."

THERE was an exchange during a hearing at the Radio Commission between Frank D. Scott, counsel for on of the stations, and H. A. Bellows, of Station WCCO, Minneapolis.

"Why was the word 'and' used here?" Mr. Scott demanded of Mr. Bellows, indicating a certain part of the radio act of 1927.

"Why do you ask me that?" the gentleman from Minneapolis retorted. "You wrote it!"

Which may have been true inasmuch as Mr. Scott was a former chairman of the House committee which framed the radio act.

It was a coincidence that Mr. Bellows, Sam Pickard and O. H. Caldwell, the only former members of the radio commission, should all be there at the same time yesterday.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, October 8.

"A THING of beauty is a joy forever:
Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness."

Thus said the poet and his words have been more or less misquoted and quoted ever since. Isn't it true that a thing of real beauty never becomes commonplace with possession!

Your desire for a beautiful thing may be consuming and well-nigh unbearable, and it is true that you may not have this burning eagerness for it after you possess it, but this does not mean that "after you have it, you don't want it." After you have the average commonplace thing, perhaps. But the possession of a truly beautiful thing, never. Your joy in it subtly increases with every time you perceive its loveliness through any one of your senses.

That is the reason one does not tire of a truly lovely gown. Haven't you ever possessed a gown that was so truly lovely that it was with the deepest regret that you observed its inevitable aging?

The Gown You Should Have.

Of course, what woman hasn't had such a gown! And that is exactly the kind of gown you should find for yourself whenever it is at all possible to do so.

* * * *

One of the forty-odd sleeves or necklines or both that I have designed for you this week is most assuredly what you need to give that last year's atmosphere. To tell you the truth, all 40 of them are not my own ideas, for many of them are the smartest sleeves and necklines I have seen in various collections of the big couturiers. Better send your stamped-self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for these 40 sleeves and necklines, whether you are going to use them for old dresses or new, or merely for curiosity's sake to assure yourself just what the latest in sleeves and necklines really is.

* * * *

Premet loves to play around with tweeds. And does it very well, in case you want to know it. So well indeed that one just can't resist sketching ensembles of the type of the one I've sketched for you today. It was developed in gray, white, brown and black—oh, a very little of each one, you know—and 'twas touched with white pique. Nice?

* * * *

What night would be gala night if it weren't for gorgeous ladies and their gorgeous gowns? And what a gala night indeed if all are the very newest gowns from the very newest collections. Here are a few comments on gowns seen at a recent gathering that may be of interest to you.

Either black gowns or white gowns, but no black and white in the same gown. Much soft peach and rose shades. All the evening gowns showing normal waistlines or higher, and in general a long, slender silhouette. Evening shoes very elegant and expensive, optically and actually. Long gloves indispensible to real evening wear elegance. Jewelry less garish and glittering.

Only in The Sunday Post, in Washington, can you find Dare's weekly fashion letter. Do look for it.

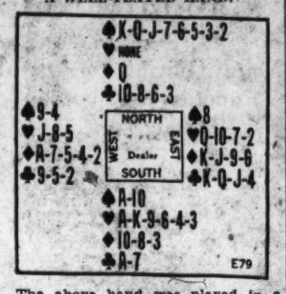
A WELL-PLAYED HAND.



The above hand was played in a game of Auction. South opened the bidding with one Heart, West passed, and North became the Declarer with a bid of three Spades. East held a good hand, but not good enough to overcall three Spades, especially with a partner who had passed.

At Contract South would have started with a bid of two Hearts showing at least three high-card tricks and a total of six very probable tricks for Hearts or No Trump. West would have passed, and North would have bid four or five Spades. Four would have shown that Spades must be the declaration, but would not have been a command either to stop or continue the bidding. South would be anxious to bid further, but with three small Diamonds slam bidding would be dangerous. Five would be a slam invitation and South, with the Aces of Spades and Clubs in addition to his Hearts, would bid six Spades.

In the Auction play, East started by leading the King of Clubs and the Declarer could see that if the outstanding trumps were divided two and one, which was very probable, only two rounds of trumps were necessary, and that if the adverse Hearts were distributed normally—three and four—he could make a grand slam as he could discard his Queen of Diamonds and three losing Clubs on South's good Hearts.

He won the first trick with the Ace of Clubs and led a small Heart which he ruffed with a high trump. It did not look as though either adversary was void of Hearts, but it never pays to take an unnecessary chance. After winning the second trick, Declarer led a small trump winning in dummy with the Ace. When both adversaries followed, the trump danger was eliminated. Next another small Heart which was ruffed with another high trump. Declarer then knew that he must make five-odd and with the remaining adverse Hearts divided 2-1, a grand slam was assured. Another round of trumps won with the Ten and then four leads of Hearts gave him all the discards he needed. Thirteen tricks.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Love at 15.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am a sophomore in senior high school and I think I am in love, but am thoroughly disgusted with what I see and hear every day of my life. It is pathetic to hear girls tell their experiences with boy friends in a boastful way without realizing that they should be told with deepest shame. This type, through ignorance, seems to accept the idea that a girl's school life isn't complete without these disastrous experiences.

The little bit of respect that a boy has for a girl is a crime. They can not seem to realize that at least a few girls deserve respect. They are so used to thinking of girls only as something plastic in their hands, to be used for their pleasure, that they have accepted that as an explanation for our presence on this earth. In my class of over 100 I couldn't name more than a dozen boys fit to associate with. Most of our boys come from good families, but I know that their parents wouldn't dream of how their sons are spending their spare time. I could say the same for the girls. It's the truth, Miss McDonald. I stand almost alone looking at this subject from my viewpoint. I scarcely ever express my opinion on the subject any more, because whenever I do I'm labeled midvictorian.

They all go in for "experience," instead of respect, which would mean more to them than anything else in later life. They would lose an early life of thrills only to grow into a large life of real happiness. Do we want to have a life of pleasure, followed by misery, or to live one of joy? Is it hard to decide? Compared to all the other scientific studies it seems this is the most important of all.

I hold love sacred and despise these short-lived "crushes." The boy that I really think I love seems different. I can't believe that it's a "crush" because I've felt that way for over two years. Am I too young to think of things like this? I only know this boy from what I've seen of him at school. Could it be possible that I really love him? I feel so sure I do.

FIFTEEN.

A girl of your mental maturity might indeed know her own mind at 15 as well as the average girl would at 18. But the fact is that even at 18 attachments are more likely to be passing than permanent. We begin to recognize in the men we meet the qualities or characteristics we admire and tell ourselves that we are in love. Love should be based upon reason as well at attraction, and that necessitates long acquaintance. Just seeing a man is not enough. You must know his reactions to various situations, his attitude toward life and the rest of the world. Some very attractive men are abominably self-centered, egotistic, and uninspiring generally, when you really know them. As for instance, most of the movie stars. No truly experienced or intelligent woman could endure them, though acquaintance is absolutely essential before any woman of any age can feel certain that she is in love. And even then there is always plenty of room for doubt! Take your time little Miss Fifteen, and make your decision when you are 30!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE help me. We have about 167 narcissus plants in one place in our garden. This spring we had 60 blooms and 107 blights, I mean plants which produced buds which failed to open. Two years ago, on the advice of our florist, we lifted and reret all these bulbs. The plants are seemingly thrifty. But we want flowers and not foliage. What do you suggest? MRS. BESSIE T. S.

It may be possible that your bulbs have outlived their usefulness. Usually lifting and resetting in well-manured ground will cause them to bloom the second year. Of course, if they are very old there is nothing to be done but discard them and plant new bulbs.

The double poet's eye, also known as the alba plena, requires plenty of moisture under the surface of the soil. Sometimes violent changes in temperature are said to cause blasting of this variety. Being late in blooming, the buds are thought to get stunted by the warm sunshine. Try shading lightly and if you have the patience, cut the tips of some of the scapes confining the buds, with a pair of scissors. Sometimes if the expanding petals do not seem to be able to develop enough energy to burst the tough outer skin, the condensing moisture inside may cause the rot.

Will you kindly tell me what causes the leaves of two rather young lilac bushes to be in the condition of the ones I am inclosing? They have plenty of moisture and I have given them bonemeal. JULIA S. W.

Your lilacs are covered with scale. Better spray them now, again in late fall and in the early spring before growth starts. Bordeaux mixture is the spray to use for this purpose.

I have a bed of roses which I want to move this fall. When would you advise me to do this work?

D. J. E.

In your locality I would advise moving these bushes in early October. Water well after planting and apply a light manure mulch.

We have some roses which we want to move this fall. Please tell me when to begin the work.

MRS. W. J. F.

By reading the answer to D. J. E. in this column you will get the desired information. Be sure to spread the roots at the time of planting; in other words, dig the holes of sufficient size to accommodate the roots without crowding.

I have a young Jerusalem cherry tree about 1 foot high which is now beginning to set buds. The leaves seem unusually dry and are beginning to drop off. I have been spraying it with cold, soapy water. Please tell me how to care for it from now on until after the fruit is matured.

MRS. ORA B.

Keep the plant in a cool but very sunny place and water it every day. If it is kept in too warm a place, the fruit and foliage will drop off. Keep up the good work of spraying weekly.

Please let me know if the inclosed is a piece of poison ivy. H. J. E.

The leaves you sent me were from the poison ivy.

I bought a beautiful fern a month ago. Now the foliage is turning pale and there are appearing many such branches as the inclosed. Please tell me what to do with these shoots.

MRS. S. L. G.

The stems submitted were runners. Better transplant your fern, using a soil composed of leaf mold, sand and good garden loam. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you a circular on the "Care of Ferns in the House."

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 10:30 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:45 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

The real secrets of this date will not be unraveled, or the riddles read until a later day in your life. There will be much to perplex, much to enjoy, much to overcome—a great deal depends upon yourself. Do not enter into disputes, and do not go to law at this time.

The child born on this October 9 will have an obstinate and very self-possessed nature. It will have a good mind, moral courage, and a good nerve. It will be fond of all outdoor activities and will desire an energetic life. It will be a good student in most subjects, especially so in mathematics.

You have a combination of good qualities, success bringing qualities—foresight, imagination, determination and optimism. You do not care for an easy life, nor a safe life—you are looking for adventure. You keep a vigilant gaze on opportunities, and not many of them slip through your fingers. You make use of chance advantages which many pass by—the casual acquaintance with a pull, an invitation which means boredom but other return, and all kindly offers of assistance. You know how to make use of a genial smile, and when to display your best charms and manners. You study humanity, and you are a very keen judge of character, and you know when to praise and when to flatter.

If you be a woman, you are popular with those of the opposite sex, for you play the passive role with with them, and you are content to listen while they talk. You are sympathetic, good natured, do not nag, and are humorous enough to understand and appreciate wit in others, although you do not express much yourself. You are very quiet and unobtrusive about your own cleverness, and you need to be known very well to be fully appreciated. You are neither envious nor jealous, and you always stand ready to help others, to rejoice with them in their good luck, or to help when they have bad luck. Seek your happiness within a home.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

INCREASE IN SOME DISEASES.

APPENDICITIS and cancer are increasing yearly in importance. At least that is what vital statistics show. Both are regarded as surgical diseases, and for them the surgeon assumes responsibility.

Figures on appendicitis found in a Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. bulletin show an increase of fatality rate of from 13 to 20 per cent in the last twenty years. In males there has been an increase at all age periods except 10 to 19 years, and in females at all age periods except 10 to 34 years.

This is not the fault of the technical skill of the surgeons, either as diagnosticians or operators. The fault lies with them as preventers. If they are to claim the disease they must carry the responsibility for it in all of its phases. But if it be the result of wrong methods of living, including wrong diet, the people must carry their share of the responsibility. If the surgeons are to supply leadership the people must supply followship.

The bulletin says the increase in fatal appendicitis may be due to one or more of the following: Infections from neglected foci, diet, and diet fads, abuse of the roughage of philosophy, habits of living, abuse of laxatives, and especially self-medication of laxatives, including mineral oils. It supplies no proof as to any of the suggestions, but thinks all of them should be investigated.

It is more important that we find how to prevent appendicitis and apply the information than it is that we further improve methods of operation.

The cancer problem presents many points of similarity. Cancer is on the increase. It is regarded as a surgical disease. Surgeons are diagnosing and operating on it better than they ever did before. But in spite of that the proof is conclusive that the disease is increasingly fatal.

The need is for prevention. The responsibility for controlling cancer is up to the surgeons. The community is not willing to let them off with the plea that they are mechanics and that alone. The important thing is that the disease be suppressed, and the community will not be satisfied with less.

A few causes are known and a few methods of prevention are available. Among these are: Avoidance of certain chemicals, prevention of certain chronic inflammations and irritations, cure of certain precancerous conditions.

Something must be done to tell the public what is known and to get such prevention as we know into action.

W. T. T. writes:
1. What is Bright's disease?
2. What is the cause?
3. What is the best remedy and treatment therefor?
4. Is it curable?

REPLY.

1. The term was originally applied to a slowly progressive form of chronic inflammation of the kidney. It is now rather loosely applied to several kinds of inflammation of the kidney.
2. Among the many causes of the different varieties are infections such as pneumonia and scarlet fever, arteriosclerosis, heart disease, chronic alcoholism, lead poisoning, wrong eating habits.
3. The proper treatment depends on the variety and on other factors.
4. Many cases are.

COTTAGE CHEESE.

(Bureau of Dairy Industry.)

To a thick mayonnaise dressing made with the usual quantity of oil and eggs add a half cupful of fine grained cottage cheese and mix thoroughly. This dressing will keep for some time without separating.

Cottage Cheese Dressing.

1 egg.
1 cupful sour cream, whipped.
1 teaspoonful salt.
1 teaspoonful mustard.
2 teaspoonfuls flour.

Method: Mix the dry ingredients together and cream them with the melted butter. Add the creamed mixture to the heated milk and stir until very thick. After the mixture has boiled, add vinegar slowly, stirring all the while. Cool slightly and add beaten egg. Put the cottage cheese through a sieve, if necessary, to break up lumps. Using an egg beater, beat the cottage cheese gradually into the dressing until smooth. Lastly, fold whipped cream into dressing.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Cooperative Helps.

When Judy was given a room of her own, her mother explained to her what a help it would be if she would learn to keep it tidy, to hang up her clothes and put things where they belonged.

Judy, who in the nursery with her small brother, had been most careless, became over night a model of neatness.

She was pleased with herself, pleased with the attractiveness of her room and pleased with the approval that came to her as a result.

Billy's was an established case of enuresis. He had been punished, threatened, bribed and shamed without effect. There was no improvement, however, until mother made a fresh start.

She assumed that Billy himself was eager to leave behind his babyish habit. Voluntarily then he submitted to the necessary routine. He got up cheerfully when wakened at night. He denied himself liquids at the supper table.

One evening he even gave up watermelon, asking only that his mother "save it, please, in the ice box for my lunch."

The moment we get a child to cooperate with us in trying to break some bad habit, we have him working with us instead of against us. He will persevere amazingly. He will make self-denials and exercise a degree of self-control which we could never hope to obtain by coercion or the pressure of disapproval.

In order to win him to our side, it is necessary for us to feel for him a genuine friendliness.

We must take pains to see to it that what we ask of him seems reasonable from his point of view.

With a little imagination and patience, it is usually quite possible to make necessary explanations in terms which he can fully understand and appreciate.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

READ THIS FIRST!

Robin Smith, a young and rising but extremely sensitive poet, is invited to make one of a country house party. He accepts because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present. At the house party Robin meets Lady Gwendolen, the Earl of Winston, her brother, Donald Flint, wealthy business man, and Andree Opie, with whom Robin had once been in love. Prince Pavelovsky snubs Lord Winston, and Lady Dorothy, who has arranged the party, believes it will be a failure.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER IV.

Lady Dorothy's fears, however, were not quite borne out. The dinner passed off quietly and decorously. This happy state of affairs, it must be said, was due largely to the presence of Bruce Armstrong, the explorer, who arrived just before dinner, in time to pour balm on troubled waters. He did this, not only by his presence, which was strong and calm and persuasive, but also by his gifts of speech which he used well in recounting his adventures in the jungles of Africa.

He was a tall, well-set-up man, at least 6 foot 2 in his stockinged feet. He had a high, square forehead, with hardly a wrinkle, in spite of his 50 years; a firm, virile nose, a mouth which betokened willpower, clear, blue eyes, topped by bushy brows, and a strikingly long square beard. Such a man was sure to be noticed anywhere, and bound to inspire respect, too. He was in every sense big and statuesque, and petty quarrels vanished before the respect his presence aroused. What were civilized, sophisticated people's quarrels to him, who had lived for months at a time in remote places, threatened by savage men and still more savage beasts, who in self-defense had to kill both, and did so without qualm or scruple? Yet there seemed a kindliness about him, too, an attitude, if you like, of being sorry for folk caught in what appeared to him the infinitely worse jungle of civilized life. Nor did he hesitate to express himself in a way that left no doubt as to what he thought of the matter.

It was after dinner, during coffee and liquors, that the hostess and her guests plied him with questions concerning his views as regards the comparative merits of wild and civilized life.

"But, surely, Mr. Armstrong," asked Muriel Haddon, "you don't mean to say that you consider heathen life preferable to our own?"

Bruce Armstrong raised his eyes to the serious blue ones which seemed to be searching his face for an answer to her question. Miss Haddon looked so unbelievably young, with her piquant little face, and slightly tilted nose; so sweet and helpless that a queer sadness fell upon him, and for an instant he couldn't find the answer to her question.

"Well," said he at last, speaking slowly, "what's the difference, anyhow? Take one aspect of life. There's a country in Africa, where, before the war, a man used to be able to buy a wife for two cows. Since the war—for the war has affected life there as here—the price has gone up to four cows. And in civilized countries nowadays a man is enabled to get the wife he wants because of his wealth. What's the difference?"

There were protests from the women. And only Robin Smith, more intensely interested in the explorer's remarks than any one else in the room, came out with unwonted vigor and obvious excitement:

The explorer, unruffled and smiling, calmly regarded the large, handsome tiger rug at his feet. The glass eyes of the head seemed to look up straight into his.

"What's civilization," he said, without raising his eyes from the rug, "but another kind of a jungle in which murderous instincts are sometimes repressed, but never wholly crushed? Take this matter of killing. The whole world, heathen as you call it or civilized, is engaged in killing. Only the heathen doesn't make such a fuss about it. You kill in war and in peace. You think it right to kill in one instance, but not in the other. Yet murders go on very day. And all civilized society is intent on killing the murderer. Why?"

"You surely don't defend murder?" asked Sir George Opie, aghast.

"No. I don't either defend it or criticize it. Only it does seem odd, when you think of it, that you should be able to kill an abstract enemy because he happens to be a foreigner, and not your own personal enemy at home against whom you may have a real grudge. Courts of law apparently exist only to hinder private revenge. A wise providence, too, since it is too much to expect of men to be sufficiently good Christians not to need it."

"I agree!" exclaimed the poet, in a high-pitched voice, the obvious excitement in which did not escape any of the listeners. Robin, indeed, was strongly affected. The man appeared to echo his own thoughts, which in ordinary circumstances he would not have ventured to utter. But this strong man spoke with the experience of authority, and Robin seconded him in his every observation.

"I didn't know you were such a fire-eater!" said Lady Opie, laughing.

But the poet did not respond to these teasings. He looked glum, wrapped in his own thoughts.

"We've had enough talk of killing and murder," interpolated Lady Dorothy, rising. "The evening is lovely. Let's go into the garden!"

All spontaneously rose, apparently pleased at the suggestion, and filed out of the French doors into the garden. Here, except for the monotonous song of the crickets, everything was still and peaceful. It was warm. The air was soft. But the stars shone only faintly. The aroma of the flowers filled the air. It was an evening fit for lovers.

The party walked up the paths in odd groups, and the distances between them widened. Voices rose and fell. Faint whisperings went on, now here, now there. The women's laughter sounded gay and wistful in the half darkness.

Robin Smith was sad as he never felt sad before. He was walking with Andre on his arm. But just ahead of him the forms of a man and a woman troubled him, filled him with an inexpressible longing. It was Donald Flint and Lady Gwendolen. He had seen Flint take possession of her at the very start, as though there could be no question of his prerogative. At the sight he was shot through with a pain such as lovers feel on seeing their beloved in the arms of another. At one moment he heard them whispering, which was followed by the girl's tinkinnabulous laughter and the man's more throaty chorties, and he wondered whether they were laughing at him.

He hardly listened to his companion's lively chatter, and Andree, finally letting his arm go, flung at him with feminine petulance:

"You rude man!"

He was glad to be left alone. He knew he was being rude. But at this moment he did not care. If he couldn't walk with Gwen he didn't want to walk with anyone. The thought of that man Flint farther up the path walking arm-in-arm with his goddess tortured him. He walked on slowly, and saw the pair entering one of the many arbours bordering on the pond.

He followed them. Robin knew it wasn't well bred, but he didn't care at that moment. After all, why should he, of all people, bother about breeding? Wasn't his father just a Cornish fisherman?

He followed them. The figures at the short distance seemed to merge into one. The twilight was fading. It was difficult to see far ahead in the dense foliage which surrounded him. But Robin kept doggedly on.

He no longer knew if he were following them. He could see no one; there was no sound of voices. Robin paused at the intersection of three paths, and after considerable hesitation, chose the one to the left. He walked for some distance, feeling more and more lost. Suddenly he came to an opening where the light was better. He heard the low murmur of voices. It grew louder. Then he heard quite distinctly: "Don't, please! I am angry. You have no right!" The voice was nervous, even alarmed. It was Lady Gwendolyn's.

In an instant Robin had leaped over a bed of roses, and was beside a bench on which Mr. Flint and Lady Gwendolyn were seated. In the dim light it seemed to Robin that she was struggling to free herself from this man's embrace. A resolution quickly forming in his mind, he walked up determinedly and faced the great magnate. He felt like a king!

"Mr. Flint," he heard his own voice saying, sternly and peremptorily, "I must insist that you leave Lady Gwendolyn at once. * * * I * * * I * * *"

At the sound of the unexpected voice Mr. Flint had turned angrily, and half-risen from his seat, releasing Lady Gwendolyn. When he recognized the poet, he threw himself back on the bench and burst into a hearty, uncontrolled laugh.

"The knight-errant * * *" he murmured between guffaws. "You are too good to be true! Oh, you will be the death of me!"

"I am serious, Mr. Flint. I find this no laughing matter. * * *" Robin stuttered furiously. "I mean to protect Lady Gwendolyn!"

"I think we may dispense with your services, Mr. Smith," interrupted the cutting voice of Lord Winston, as he suddenly emerged from the darkness. "I am capable of defending my sister. Mr. Flint will answer to me."

BRAZIL MASSES MEN AGAINST REVOLUTION

Special Attention Is Devoted to Revolt in North and South.

PLANES CONTINUE WORK

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The federal government of Brazil, faced with revolutionary movements in the north and south, today poured out army and naval forces to crush the rebel armies.

The government devoted particular attention to the rebels in the states of Minas Gereas to the northwest and Pernambuco in the north, a concentration of troops also was being carried out in the State of Santa Catharina.

The main purpose of these movements was to prepare the ground for the ultimate overthrow of the rebel forces in the State of Rio Grande do Sul, where the insurrectionary movement has been centering.

Planes Continue Bombing.

Army planes today continued bombing operations in the State of Minas Geraes, the planes flying over the capital city of Bello Horizonte. The Capitol building itself was reported to have been hit.

A warship has been sent northward to the city of Pernambuco which was reported in the hands of the insurgents and a new army commander with reinforcements also was started northward.

The same measures were taken for dealing with the seaport of Florianopolis in the southern State of Santa Catharina. It was understood the government was planning to base its later activities against the rebels in Rio Grande do Sul from this city.

The federal forces have reoccupied several towns in the State of Minas Geraes along the Central Railway.

Food Supplies Reach City.

Food supplies, about which there had been some concern, are now coming into Rio de Janeiro regularly from the nearest parts of Minas Geraes. The government also has issued a decree fixing the prices of necessities in Rio de Janeiro and providing for the taking over of private stocks should this become necessary.

Railway traffic from Rio de Janeiro to Minas Geraes is slowly being reestablished and bridges which were blown up by the rebels are being repaired. The government has taken over the Southern Minas Geraes Railway for the movement of troops and supplies.

Famous Polo Player Of Britain Is Suicide

Rugby, England, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Harry Rich, famed international polo player, was found shot to death today, and authorities said it apparently was a case of suicide. The sportsman's valet found the body and said that an hour before the tragedy Rich had appeared normal. The polo player was lying in his bedroom only partly dressed when found. A double barrel shotgun was nearby.

Rich, who was a member of the Rugby Polo Club and played for England against America at Hurlingham in 1909, was long prominent in British polo circles. His brother, Frank Rich, is a polo instructor for the Prince of Wales.

Clash Brings Death In Malaga Dock Strike

Malaga, Spain, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The first fatality of a dockworkers' strike which had been in progress for three weeks occurred today when Juan Gutierrez Calderon was shot to death in a clash between strikers and strikebreakers.

A motorbus carrying strikebreakers to work was fired upon by a group of strikers. The occupants abandoned the bus, and a short battle, with stones augmenting the gunfire, followed. It was feared tonight that the killing might cause a spread of the strike.

Patterson's Daughter Files Suit for Divorce

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Alicia Simpson, daughter of James Medill Patterson, part owner of Liberty Magazine, filed suit today for divorce from her husband, James Simpson, jr., son of the chairman of the board of Marshall Field & Co.

The petition charges desertion September 20, 1928. The Simpsons were married in Libertyville, Ill., September 27, 1927.

Geologist Is Killed As His Plane Crashes

Houston, Tex., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Dr. George Steiner, 35, Houston geologist and geophysicist, was burned to death today in the crash of his cabin monoplane, 20 miles from Kountze, Tex.

The ship, taking off in a wooded section, was dashed to earth as its wing tip hit a pine tree. It caught fire within sight of Earl Callahan, one of Dr. Steiner's assistants, who was on the ground. Callahan's efforts to drag his employer from the flaming cabin were unavailing.

flight which he made when he was governor in 1911.

Automobiles filled with shouting groups made their way through the city while the populace showed great enthusiasm. High school boys who took part in the fighting were greeted as popular heroes. The crowd shouted, "Viva revolution," and paid tribute to the memory of Joao Pessoa, former president of the state of Parahyba and a candidate of the Liberals for the vice presidency in the march 1 elections, who was shot and killed here.

It was reported that the assassins of Pessoa, who were being held in Pernambuco Jail, committed suicide.

Commerce Is Resumed.

A provisional government was established yesterday under the direction of Gen. Juarez Tavora, head of the revolution in the north. Gov. Cavalcanti has appointed officials to put down excesses and to reestablish order. Today commerce was resumed.

It was reported that the Governor of Rio Grande do Norte fled to Rio de Janeiro and that the governor of the State of Parahyba was being held in jail. Gen. Lavenere, commander of the federal forces which were stationed in Parahyba a week ago, died during the fighting. The acting Governor or Parahyba is now the former chief of the state police who is a great admirer of the late Gov. Pessoa.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Brazilian revolutionary authorities issued a communique in Rivera tonight which said that four federal airplanes sent to bomb the city of Bello Horizonte, state of Minas Geraes, had joined the revolution.

The communique added that six other military planes at Natal, capital of the State of Rio Grande do Norte, also had gone over to the rebels.

Insurgents Claim Gains.

It was added that the remaining personnel of the federal air force was under arrest because of refusal to obey orders.

The same communique said that revolutionary troops from Minas Geraes had invaded the State of Espirito Santo.

Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Sweeping revolutionary gains both in the north and south of Brazil tonight were claimed at the revolutionary headquarters here.

The revolutionary leaders in general asserted that they had captured several important strategical towns; that they were negotiating with two destroyers; that successful operations were being carried out in the southern revolutionary area; that the City of Pernambuco in the north was being consolidated and that revolutionary forces were marching on the important City of Bahia.

Chief Urged to Resign.

Revolutionary forces from Vaccari and Dom Jesus were stated to have occupied Villa Lages and to be continuing to the northward, forming part of a general rebel advance toward Sao Paulo.

"We have done everything for peace, even imploring for it, looking more toward the advantage to the country than to our own.

"We have been accused and assaulted, and now we have taken up arms. All garrisons are making common cause with the people here and in the interior. Gen Gil and his staff have been arrested, as have Gens. Medeiros and Rondon.

"We expect now that your spirit as a Brazilian will motivate your resignation to end the existing crisis.

"Osvaldo Aranha."

Rumors and counter rumors of isolated successes claimed for each side in the Brazilian revolt continued to reach Washington last night, but left officials at a loss to understand the actual status of the insurrection.

Adding to the confusion, word reached here yesterday that a strict censorship had been imposed on all press and private dispatches from Brazil to other parts of the world.

Losses to Americans.

Reports of $2,000,000 damage done by rioters in Bahia to a subsidiary of the Electric Bond & Share Co. brought attention to the enormous investments that have been made by United States citizens in the republic.

The total runs to a figure between $575,000,000 and $675,000,000, more than $4,00,000,000 of which is invested in government bonds. The remainder was listed by the Department of Commerce under manufacturing enterprises, public utilities and miscellaneous enterprises.

Among the large American investors are the Electric Bond & Share Co., the Standard and Texas Oil companies through subsidiaries, the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., the International General Electric Co., and several meat packing firms.

Banish Car Lights, Illuminator Urges

Richmond, Va., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Increased street lighting to make automobile headlights superflous was suggested by Preston S. Millar, president of the Electrical Testing Laboratories of New York, today at the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Illuminating Engineering Society.

Street lighting in most cities has not kept pace with traffic requirements and streets are less safe at night than they should be, Mr. Millar said. Glaring headlights have been employed because of inadequate municipal lighting, providing not a solution but a complication of the problem.

Mr. Millar reported an investigation by the Illuminating Engineering Society's committee on street light showed the average per capita cost of street lighting to be $1 a year. For $1.50 or $2 illumination sufficient for automobiles could be provided, the report said.

Mysterious Fall Injures Youth, 12

Omar Van Tassel, 12 years old, of Edmonston, Md., is in a serious condition at Providence Hospital, the result of injuries received in a mysterious fall or collision. Police last night were endeavoring to learn how the boy received severe head injuries and possibly a fractured skull.

The youth was brought to the hospital early last night by a man identified only as a Mr. Butler, evidently a farmer, who told nurses at the institution that the boy fell from an auto. The mysterious Mr. Butler handed the nurses a slip of paper bearing the boy's name and address and then disappeared.

Shortly afterward the boy's parents appeared at Providence Hospital, saying they had been called on the telephone and informed that their son was seriously injured. They claimed to have no knowledge of any Mr. Butler or how their son was injured.

Amazing Kotex Offer!
You buy two boxes of Kotex
Get one 50c box of Kleenex
FREE!

Get FREE 50c Package of Kleenex Cleansing Tissues—the modern way to remove cold cream

THROUGH a special arrangement with the Kleenex Company, makers of Kleenex Cleansing Tissues, we are able to make the most unique offer in our history . . . with two regular 45-cent boxes of Kotex, you will be given absolutely free a full-size 50-cent package of Kleenex Cleansing Tissues. $1.40 value for only 78 cents.

Go to your dealer's today. Don't delay. Dealers' stocks are limited and will not last long. This offer is made, not only to give the millions of Kotex users a remarkable Kotex value—but to enable women everywhere who may not be users of Kleenex Cleansing Tissues to try, without expense, this important toilet accessory.

Once women do try it, the Kleenex Company has found, an overwhelming majority will accept no other way to remove cold cream. Kleenex Cleansing Tissues are used and recommended by many important stage and screen stars, and leading beauty shops everywhere.

Kotex—more than a "sanitary" pad

Kotex is utterly different from all other sanitary pads. There is no other "like" Kotex.

Thus Kotex has the amazing power of absorbing 16 times its weight in moisture. That's 5 times more, by actual test, than surgical cotton. Think what this means in protection! Think of the ease of mind during busy days to feel sure of your sanitary protection.

Quickly, easily disposable

You use Kotex, then dispose of it . . . simply and quickly. No laundry problem. No disposal worries. Think of the relief in that feature alone.

Modern women appreciate these advantages of Kotex: it is shaped to fit, under sheerest, tight-fitting or filmy frocks; it deodorizes thoroughly and absolutely. Keeps one dainty at all times. Banishes a one-time worry completely.

85% of hospitals use Kotex absorbent

Here's final, medical proof of Kotex' superiority: 85% of the country's leading hospitals use the identical material of which Kotex is made. They've tried everything. They consider Kotex best. They use it, not only for sanitary pads, but for the most serious surgical operations.

You must act at once—
Dealer's stock strictly limited!
Because of the extremely liberal nature of this offer, your dealer has been allowed only a limited supply for this purpose. First come — first served. If you come late, do not blame your dealer. When his supply is exhausted, he cannot get any more. Act at once!

Accept this offer

Go today to any store in this city where Kotex is sold and take advantage of this opportunity. But do not delay. All dealers' stocks are limited. If you come late you cannot be supplied.

STAGE and screen stars declare Kleenex to be the only safe and sanitary way of removing cold cream. It is so soft, so absorbent, that it blots up all dirt and cosmetics along with the cream. The skin is left scrupulously clean, free of the germs that endanger beauty. Towels are spared the ruinous stains left by cosmetics.

Doctors are recommending Kleenex for handkerchief use, especially for colds and hay fever. You use each tissue but once—then throw it away. Cold germs are discarded, too. Thus you avoid reinfecting yourself from an unsanitary handkerchief.

Kleenex comes in a smart, modern box which makes an attractive addition to your bathroom or dressing table. It is cleverly designed to give you two sheets at a time, just as you use them.

ONE DIES, FOUR HURT IN REVOLVER BATTLE

Alleged Postoffice Robbers Kill Police Chief in Carolina Town.

DOGS TRAILING ANOTHER

Murphy, N. C., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Seven men, four policemen and three alleged postoffice robbers, fought with pistols on the outskirts of Murphy early today.

Tonight Chief of Police Mack Carringer was dead, Officers George Leatherwood and Burt Savage had serious wounds, Walter Bryson, long sought for the slaying of his father-in-law years ago, and Jeff McPherson, lay at the point of death in the county jail here, and K. Bryson, brother of Walter, was being sought with bloodhounds. He was believed wounded. Only Policeman Toby Fain escaped unhurt.

Late yesterday Fain said C. C. Linderman, postmaster and storekeeper at Coker Creek, Tenn., telephoned Chief Carringer that he had been set upon by three men, robbed, bound and gagged, carried into mountain country and tied to a tree. He loosed his bonds and made his way to a telephone, advising Carringer the men were headed toward Murphy.

Early today Carringer and his men, keeping watch on the outskirts of the town, sighted an automobile answering Linderman's description. He halted it and began questioning the occupants. One man fired point blank. The chief died instantly, a bullet in his heart.

Out of the subsequent firing, a scream sounded and one man fled into dense woods, later identified by the wounded man as his brother.

Walter Bryson has wounds in the lungs, arm and shoulder. McPherson, who says he is a native of Kentucky, but refuses to divulge of what city, is shot in the hip and abdomen.

Cleveland News Backs Democrat for Senate

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 7 (A.P.).—The Cleveland News, published by descendants of Marcus Alonzo Hanna, famous Republican leader, came out editorially today in support of Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic candidate for United States senator.

The News, traditionally Republican, announced it would support Bulkley because the Republicans had failed to adopt the newspaper's suggestion that the party place a prohibition reform candidate in the field in the primary. The News added that while it would support Bulkley because he desired "prohibition reform," it reserved the right to differ with him on certain issues.

partment of Justice. The three men were arrested, brought to Baltimore and released in $1,500 bond, each, for trial.

At the conclusion of the Government's case, Herrick took the stand in his own defense. He had previously requested that all witnesses be excluded from the courtroom until required to testify. This request was granted by Judge Soper. Herrick told how he had gone to see Amos W. Woodcock, prohibition director, last July for the purpose of arranging to supply information on dry law violations. Failing to see Mr. Woodcock, Herrick took the matter up with J. P. Moore, a chief clerk in Mr. Woodcock's office.

Mr. Moore later testified that the former representative had come to see him and wanted to become an informer. "I told him there wasn't a chance," Moore said, but added that the department would be glad to receive any information which would lead to the seizure of a still or the arrest of dry law violators.

"I warned Mr. Herrick, however, that if he went to work at a still and was caught by any of the boys, he would receive no protection from us, but he would be considered as any other violator of the law," Mr. Moore declared.

Mr. Herrick told him, he said, that he was on his way to St. Marys County to get a job at a still.

Job Paid $2 a Day.

Herrick testified that he had gone to Airey's place to get a job, and had succeeded in securing work cutting cord wood, at $2 a day, living, meanwhile, at a small shack nearby.

"On August 3, a tall, dark complexioned white man told me he was running a still and one of his men had quit; he asked me if I would help him out, thinking to learn the identity of the still owner, I agreed, and fired his boiler for twelve hours for which I received no pay," the former law-maker asserted, adding that he did not learn who the man was, and was unable to communicate with Washington before he was arrested.

He also contended that his presence at the still on the night of the raid was due to his desire to help enforce the dry laws.

Robert D. Ford, assistant prohibition administrator for this district, and Morris McGrath, a former agent, were both called as witnesses by Herrick, who sought to show by them that he had on previous occasions attempted to supply information about moonshiners.

The testimony of the former representative occupied a considerable time, and appeared to act as a narcotic upon Ennels, who went sound asleep on three different occasions during his trial, his dreams being interrupted each time by a court bailiff.

Herrick Addresses Jury.

At the conclusion of the testimony for the defense, Herrick addressed the jury, charging insincerity on the part of those entrusted with enforcing the law.

"I suspicion that prohibition enforcement is not sincere: I suspect that it is a source of revenue for certain people," he said.

In summing up the case for the prosecution, Stanley E. Hartman, assistant United States district attorney, who represented the Government, said: "Congressmen, who make our laws, should be the last people to break them."

It was the contention of the two other defendants that they were merely delivering supplies to the still and were not engaged in the operation of it.

Herrick, a Republican, was elected to Congress from the Eighth Oklahoma district and served from March 4, 1921, until March 4, 1923, when he ran for reelection, but was defeated.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Sentences of 20 years' imprisonment in the State penitentiary at hard labor were imposed today upon Frank D. Hyde and C. K. Slayton, convicted Saturday night of the second degree murder of Joe Durrance during a bootleggers' war.

Four other men, indicted with Hyde and Slayton on first degree murder and kidnaping charges in connection with Durrance's death, are to be tried later. Evidence disclosed that Durrance was abducted, flogged at intervals all night and finally killed.

Budapest Reports Prince's Betrothal

Otto, Hapsburg Pretender, May Wed Princess Maria of Italy.

Budapest, Oct. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Prince Otto of Hapsburg, legitimist pretender to the Hungarian throne, who will shortly reach his legal majority of 18 years, will become engaged this winter, it is reported here, to Princess Maria, youngest daughter of the King of Italy, who will be 18 this December.

In diplomatic circles in Budapest it is said that this marriage has long been under discussion and it is known to fit in with the Fascist foreign policy of seeking to make family alliances in central Europe.

On account of the youth of Otto and Maria, denial of their engagement is expected to be forthcoming as soon as it is made, but such denial is discounted in advance. It is pointed out that when Princess Giovanna became engaged to Boris III, Czar of Bulgaria, there was a prompt denial of their betrothal.

Former G. O. P. Leader Hit by Lowden "Slush-Fund" Expose.

Mr. Morse suffered a heart attack Sunday, the second within ten days. Yesterday his condition became steadily worse. The strong influence he wielded for years in State and national Republican affairs began to wane after disclosure of his connection with the distribution of an alleged "slush fund" in behalf of the presidential candidacy of Frank O. Lowden which contributed to the collapse of the former Illinois governor's race for the Republican nomination in 1920.

M. Lullius Lirs, Cicero's stenographer, in 60 B. C., used individual symbols for most all words. It required 4-5 years to memorize the symbols. LABOR MAN ASSAILS LAW OF BAY STATE

Frey Also Raps Court for Acting on Legislation as Yet Unpassed.

COMMUNISTS DRIVEN OFF

Boston, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Massachusetts law, which permits the judiciary to act on the constitutionality of legislation before it is passed was criticized today before the American Federation of Labor convention here by John P. Frey, secretary of the metal trades department. Mr. Frey spoke on the so-called yellow dog contract.

The criticism was made, Mr. Frey said, because a recent opinion of the supreme court of this State, which declared proposed antiyellow dog contract legislation to be unconstitutional, would undoubtedly be used against labor in other States. The only State in the Union that has adopted legislation prohibiting the yellow dog contract is Wisconsin, Mr. Frey said. Such legislation has been indorsed by many State labor federations.

Frey said the interference of the judiciary with the legislative branch of the Massachusetts government was contrary to the Federal Constitution and destructive of human rights. He criticized the supreme court for taking advantage of the provisions in the law which allowed it to render such opinions.

Contract Binds Employe.

The yellow dog contract is an agreement whereby an employer prohibits an employe from doing certain things, usually affiliating with unions. It was because of a decision unfavorable to labor on such a contract that organized labor opposed the nomination of Judge J. J. Parker for a place on the United States Supreme Court bench recently.

An attempt by a group of 50 Communists to gain entrance to the Convention Hall was thwarted by Federation officials. The Communists, who said they were workers and entitled to entrance, departed only when police threatened them with arrest for trespassing.

Hanford MacNider, United States Minister to Canada, Patrick H. Hurley, Secretary of War, and Eugene P. Carver, jr., past commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, addressed the convention. MacNider and Secretary Hurley both made reference to Communistic movements in this country but said they were not dangerous here because of the strength of the A. F. of L.

Import Curb Asked.

Although precedent had indicated the federation's desire to avoid tariff issues, Holt Ross, of the Mississippi State federation, offered a resolution which asked that the President of the United States exercise the power granted in the recently enacted tariff act and prohibit the importation of products when there was a strong probability that such products were made by convicts or forced labor.

Other resolutions favored recognition of Philippine independence, regulation of immigration from the Philippines, national 48-hour week legislation similar to that in force in Massachusetts, and support for the striking textile workers of Danville, Va.

Mr. Green delivered an address before the business session of the American Legion convention after he had concluded the federation session.

LINDBERGH TO ALLOW SON TO PICK CAREER

charitable organization would be glad to get them, but to give them away, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh feel, would appear that they were unappreciated, so at present, apparently the Lindbergh heir still has them all.

The interview, apparently obtained before the present series of revolutions started, indicated that Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were contemplating a tour of South America as their next long trip.

"We are both anxious to see some of the other modern South American Republics," Col. Lindbergh said, remarking that they had already visited the northern section of the continent.

"We may visit Mexico again—probably shall—as both Mrs. Lindberg and I have a great deal of affection for Mexico for many reasons."

The article quotes him at length on aviation and the possibilities of future regular airplane travel across the Atlantic.

"In general there are four possible air routes across the North Atlantic," Col. Lindbergh said, "the far Northern, the Great Circle, the Shipping Lane and the Bermuda-Azores."

Because of weather conditions and the ability limitations of the present-day airplane, he believed the Bermuda-Azores route to be the most practicable for regular operation and predicted that within three or four years air mail lines would be operating on regular schedules across the Atlantic and that passenger service would follow within a decade.

When asked what thing, more than another, was likely to produce accidents in the air, Col. Lindbergh replied:

"Youth and the daring of pilots. There are many times when no plane has a right to leave the earth, and accidents usually occur through daring and courage overriding judgment."

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL.

HABING been intrusted with the pleasant duty of publicizing, exploiting, 24 sheeting and otherwise modestly promoting the first 20-odd of the total 25 or 30 weeks Waring's Pennsylvanians, now appearing at the Earle Theater, have appeared on the stage of Washington motion-picture theaters, it has been particularly interesting to this typewriter to observe the manner in which this gifted organization, under the shrewd guidance of its founder, Fred Waring, has risen from virtual obscurity to the high estate of the most finished and most thoroughly rounded stage act of its kind known to American showdom.

If this seems an extravagant appraisal, the idea is not wholly my own. It is predicated largely upon the estimate of others whose judgment is reflected in the weekly stipend the band is now able to command. The boys have only a little less than quadrupled the price of their services during these past five or six years—and it was quite a price to begin with. Right no wit runs into excessively important dough.

The answer, it seems to me, is not to be found so much in instrumentation, choice of selections or interpretative skill as in another quality with which this particular orchestra is heavily and happily endowed. It was first brought to my attention when the board of directors of the Metropolitan Theater adjourned in a body to sneak down from the Crandall executive offices into the theater proper to hear the Waring lads during the first week they ever played in Washington. They were proving then, as they have always proved since, the greatest stage band in the business in the matters of audience appeal and applause. Everybody about the place was wondering why they should stand out so far above all competitors in the item of popularity bfore a strange public.

One of the sapient directors of the institution that had hired them suggested what has always impressed me as the sanest solution ever offered.

"The public," he said, after listening to a group of numbers and the thunders of applause with which they were greeted, "is not clapping its hands over the particular tunes that it hears, or the skill with which they are played, so much as it is applauding the spirit of youth."

Waring's Pennsylvanians are, in fact, the embodiment of clean, ebullient and wholesome youth. They aprproach their work with a zest, an enthusiasm, a spontaneity and a swift desire to get all the fun possible out of it that no other orchestra in America is able to approximate, with the possible single exception of Horace Heidt's Californians. When, as and if the passing years rob them of this priceless gift of effervescent youth, they will slip back into the ruck with the rest of the lackadaisical saxophone tooters and drum thumpers—unless in the meantime they have al lretired to their grouse preserves and shooting lodges.

At the moment, however, they are at the top of their form—and that's plenty high peak. More steam to them!

As this appears in print, Sam Rubin, cymbal whanger for th eLoew interests in Washington these last few years, will be preparing to throw his roadster over the highways in the general direction of Detroit, Mich., where he will assume a post of importance in the publicity department of the Publix Theaters, formerly the Kunsky chain, the most important in the capital of motordom.

Mr. Rubin, whose cherubic countenance will be missed around the dramatic departments, arose at daybreak—unles sthe alarm clock failed to explode—to tune up for the West, into which he will carry with him the best wishes of a large number of friends and coworkers. As this goes to press, Mr. Cullen has not announced his successor—if any.

In other columns of today's issue of The Post, if I have my guesser on straight, you will find an outline of the new Warner Bros. project that has in view the construction of a new neighborhood theater to supplant the present Avenue Grand at 645 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. This new 2,000-seater is just another step in the program of residential expansion, of which the first manifestation was the anouncement of the enlarged Apollo on H street northeast.

After eight years of valuable service to the organization, A. Julian Brylawski, now associated with the Warner Bros. local interests, this week retired from the presidency of the Motion Picture Theater Owners Association of Washington. Mr. Brylawski leaves the post he has adorned so long beearing many honorable scars of battle and the friendship and respect of all with whom his duties have brought him in contact. He is succeeded by Sidney Lust, well known local exhibitor, who operates the most extensive chain of independent picture houses in the Washington territory.

Pursuant to a persistent yen to celebrate all instances of rewarded merit that come to the attention of this column, it is gratifying to report that Harry L. Kraft, long a valued attache of the Metropolitan Theater, now is serving as assistant manager of the Tivoli, Fourteneth and Park Road, in association with Harry E. Lohmeyer, manager.

Beginning next week, the Earle Theater will revive its former combination stage and screen policy, with Ann Harding and James Rennie in "The Girl of the Golden West" as the feature picture and Ted Healy's Racketeers the living attraction. The opening day of new bills will revert to Saturday this week-end.

Other attractions for the approaching week will be as follows: Fox, Charles Farrell and Estelle Taylor in "Liliom;" Palace, Nancy Carroll and Buddy Rogers in "Rollow Thru;" RKO-Keith's, Phillips Holmes and Helen Twelvetrees in "Her Man;" Metropolitan, Ruth Roland and Kenneth Thomson in "Reno;" Columbia, Gloria Swanson in "What a Widow," second week; Rialto, Lewis Ayres and Louis Wilheim in "All Quiet on the Western Front," third week.

In a powerful monograph on pyromania, an afternoon contemporary refers to the late Rudolph Valentino's former vehicle, "The Four Horses of the Apocalypse." Obviously the Laurel influence.

CRIME COMMISSION PLANS RUM REPORT

with prohibition alone, Wickersham said, adding that matters arising from the dry law "have been and are now one of the main problems with which the commission is dealing."

"We discussed it today and we will probably discuss it tomorrow," he asserted. "The discussion so far has been general and members of the commission have not divided on the subject, nor have we reached any conclusions. We do intend to reach the best conclusions we can."

Mr. Wickersham declined to say whether the considerable prohibition investigation he revealed had been made had changed his own views on the enforceability of the law.

"I have never been a wet; I have never been a dry," he said. "Some people have characterized me as a 'moist,' but I am firm in the belief that the laws we have should be enforced."

It was learned later that although voluminous reports on prohibition enforcement conditions have been gathered by the commission, no definite proposal concerning a stand upon the advisability of the law has yet been placed before it.

There has been some demand within the commission for a report on prohibition at an earlier date than the "early in December" mentioned by the chairman, and a group within the body is considering making a determined effort that some stand be taken.

One of the members, Kenneth Mackintosh, of Washington, already has said he would urge that the commission probe to the heart of the entire prohibition question.

The commission members probably will continue in conference all this week, with a possibility that the sessions may run over into next week also.

The preliminary report on the costs of crime, prepared by the commission's investigators, Sidney P. Simpson and Goldthwaite H. Dorr, of New York, was the first matter to come before the commission at its opening session.

It contained the first figures yet gathered for the commission on the direct cost of crime in any one city, placing this cost at $1,475,000 for Rochester, N. Y., during 1929.

This figure was described by Mr. Simpson, who appeared personally, as representing only the cost of administration of justice, maintaining criminal courts, providing adequate prosecution and maintaining the city's jails.

The report on Rochester, Mr. Wickersham said, was made possible through cooperation of the Municipal Research Bureau. He explained it was planned to seek similar help, together with aid from graduate students in the social sciences, on obtaining direct crime-cost reports from other cities.

In discussing causes of crime the commission chairman said he believed there was no doubt "the opportunity of getting away with it is making the thief." He added he believed "more people escape punishment from crime in proportion to the number of crimes in the United States than in any other country in the world."

Mr. Wickersham announced the commission had accepted the resignation of Max Lowenthal as secretary, but would make no comment on the resignation. W. F. Barry, the acting secretary, was elected yesterday to the post.

FOUR THOUGHT DEAD IN COAL MINE BLAZE

THREE OTHERS TRAPPED

Massillon, Ohio, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—A fire that destroyed buildings of the Dalton Coal Co. mine, two miles south of Dalton, and spread into the mine today caused the death of a rescue worker and trapped three miners for whom hope was abandoned by officials tonight.

The trapped men, Robert Douglas, 58; Harvey Sword, 47, and Russel Shanklin, 38, part owner of the Wagon Mine, were believed dead either from asphyxiation or drowning. Rescue workers believed that water used in fighting the fire, which cut off rescue attempts, had penetrated the place 800 feet back in the workings where they were believed to have taken refuge. They believed that even if the trio escaped death by gas they would have drowned.

Rush D. Hiller, 47, Canton undertaker, who headed a rescue squad that entered the Drift Mine, was overcome by monoxide fumes about 500 feet from the entrance and died a short time later.

Hiller was removed from the workings by two companions who told officials that Hiller took off his gas mask when the air appeared to be clear. Within a few seconds the undertaker fell to the floor of the mine unconscious. His companions took him to the surface where he succumbed from effects of the gas.

The mine fire was discovered early today after it had destroyed the buildings at the mouth of the tunnel and burned approximately 300 feet into the workings.

FIVE PERSONS HELD ON FALSE COIN COUNT

Barnes held for grand jury action, and set hearing on the charges against McCaffrey for October 16.

McCaffrey is alleged to have passed a bogus $20 bill in Washington on September 6. That much was brought out in the warrant, but secret service agents who arrested him refused to give more data.

Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher during the two hearings and the one arraignment sought to show that there was a link, but despite the fact that in the Trachtenberg hearing he developed that Trachtenberg knew McCaffery, the United States Commissioner ordered the question and the answer stricken from the record. The same thing was done when the assistant United States attorney asked in the Barnes case if there was an acquaintances.

Trachtenberg was arrested several days ago in Washington on a Federal warrant that charged he had passed counterfeit money in Hyattsville, Md. Removal proceedings then were begun before the commissioner. Yesterday Mr. Turnage heard all of Trachtenberg's alibi witnesses and held his decision in abatement until he could read over the record.

New alibi witnesses presented yesterday testified that the man was in Atlantic City at a hotel with his wife on the date on which he is alleged to have passed the "bad" money.

Rheumatism!

"I tried various treatments for Rheumatism without much relief. Then Mountain Valley Mineral Water brought much benefit and great improvement"—says a letter. Another says, "Mountain Valley Mineral Water without a doubt banished Rheumatism for me." And another, "The pains of Rheumatism are gone. Five weeks of Mountain Valley Mineral Water brought me relief." Take hope, Rheumatic sufferer—this famous mineral water from Hot Springs, Arkansas, should do for you what it has done for thousands of others. Physiologically balanced, its action is natural, scientific—it helps Nature to neutralize the irritating uric acid and by inducing elimination through the kidneys tends to prevent the accumulation of trouble-making toxins and waste products of digestion. NASH

Announces . . .

3 new EIGHTS and a new SIX

NEVER was such motor car quality offered at prices so sensationally low. The literally startling difference becomes at once apparent when you contrast the prices of the new and finer Nash series, with prices of corresponding models a year ago.

Coming at this time, these wholly remarkable values constitute an achievement of special import, not only to those who buy—but to those who manufacture motor cars, as well.

This unique example in value-giving was planned last November. At that time, C. W. Nash and the strong group of executives surrounding him, clearly foresaw present conditions. They at once began to design cars affording value so great, so unmistakable, as to overcome all buying reluctance.

The result is instantly apparent. Even casual inspection of the four new Nash cars establishes the fact that nothing even remotely approaching them in downright dollar value has ever been available in their respective price fields.

The low non-productive Nash overhead, the fact that Nash operates entirely without the heavy financial burden of borrowed capital, and the foresightedness of the Nash organization, alone enable Nash to offer so much for so little.

These three factors have combined to produce in these cars beauty and luxury and performance so notable, at prices so low by contrast, as to win for Nash a still larger place in the minds and the hearts of the motoring public.

Whatever style of car you desire, there is a Nash suited to your needs. Come in at once—drive one of these thrilling new cars—let us appraise your present car.

SENSATIONALLY PRICED !

STUDY THESE SENSATIONAL PRICES!

Compare what is probably the most remarkable achievement of Nash in greater value-giving—the New Six—with the Single Six it succeeds. The New Six offers a multitude of superiorities—at prices which range from $160 to $140 below the prices of the Single Six.

Body Style	The New Six W. B. 114½"	Last Year's Six W. B. 114½"	Price Difference
Sedan (4-door)	$845	~~$1005~~	—$160
Coupe	$795	~~$940~~	—$145
Coupe (rumble seat)	$825	~~$980~~	—$155
Sedan (2-door)	$795	~~$935~~	—$140

Compare the New Eight-70 with its two additional cylinders, its longer wheelbase, its larger, more luxurious body, with the six-cylinder car it replaces. Then consider the remarkable fact that there is actually a basic price differential in favor of the new Eight!

Body Style	The New Eight-70 W. B. 116½"	Last Year's Six W. B. 114½"	Price Difference

Special Sedan (4-door)	$955

Compare the New Twin-Ignition Eight-80 Series with the 6-cylinder car it replaces. The Eight-80 is larger, longer. Design, appointments, upholstery are finer—prices are radically lower.

Compare the New Twin-Ignition Eight-90 Series, now with a 115 H. P. Engine, with the last year's 100 H. P. Eight. Body appointments are finer, upholstery more luxurious, and prices are far lower!

STOCK AVERAGES HIT NEW 1930 BOTTOM

U. S. STEEL OFF 2 POINTS

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The financial markets drifted lower today, impelled by another attack of the blues which had its origin in some disappointing statistics on business.

Ninety leading stocks established a new low average for the year. Wheat and corn were heavy, the bond market continued highly irregular, for domestic issues had a tendency to ease in sympathy with the declines in Latin Americans.

Losses in stocks were not large, except in a few instances, nor was the selling active, but the market lacked impressive support and many important shares, including U. S. Steel General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and Western Union touched new minimums. There was a mild recovery toward the close on scattered short covering. Sales totaled 2,086,960 shares, about 1,500,000 less than yesterday.

Business News Pessimistic.

A 3 per cent reduction in steel operations during the past week, another decline in car loadings and a 7 per cent drop in department store sales last month were hardly stimulating to the cause of price recovery and the market sagged almost steadily after a fair rally at the opening. The steel group was especially soft, but utilities and office equipment stocks fared little better.

The Steel reviews called attention to the September declines in pig iron and ingot production and found that the demand was flattening out. September's improvement, said Iron Age, "was apparently too small to absorb the surplus stocks of raw steel accumulated in August." Contracting, it added, has been checked by the realization that the gain in bookings last month was overestimated. Renewal of price pressure was also noted. Production was placed at 58 per cent of theoretical capacity against 61 per cent a week ago.

The drop in car loadings for the week ended September 27 was 21 per cent, the largest of the year in comparison with 1929, although the loss from the previous week was only 2,131 cars, leading to a belief that the worst of the decline was probably passing.

On the basis of the average, the market sagged 1.8 points to 146.1, which compares with last year's low of 140.3. U. S. Steel dipped to 150½, only half a point above its November, 1929, minimum, rallying to close at 151⅛ for a net loss of 2⅝. Bethlehem Steel dropped to 75¼ against its year's minimum of 75. Youngstown Sheet & Tube slumped 6 points to 99 on small sales. McKeesport Tin Plate, Vanadium and Republic Steel preferred were also heavy.

American Telephone at its lowest level was ⅝ above yesterday's low, although it closed at 200¾, off a point net. General Electric slid just under the Tuesday low and then rallied a point for a 1-point loss. American Can and General Motors were somewhat steadier, finishing with fractional declines. Westinghouse, selling down to the new low of 119½, yielded 4 points net, the largest recession among the active stocks.

Selling of the rails were less aggressive, but Atchison, New York Central, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific and Chicago Northwestern lost a point or more.

Montgomery Ward Rises.

Gillette tumbled 8 points under liquidation stimulated by prospective bond financing in connection with the Autostropp merger. International Business Machines and Ingersoll Rand yielded 7 and 4, respectively, Allied Chemical 5, Case and Auburn 3 and American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone, Electric Power & Light, Western Union, Woolworth and Warner Brothers, 1 to 2 points. North American, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Montgomery Ward made small gains. International Paper "A" reacted to a new low in anticipation of the dividend omission, announced after the close.

Wheat was off more than a cent in sympathy with the stock market and weakness in Liverpool. Corn closed ¼ to ¾ lower, reflecting bearish Government weather reports and disappointing consumers' demand. The Government cotton estimate prompted covering in that staple, which was up 7 to 8 points net.

Foreign exchanges were again featured by the weakness in South Americans. The Brazilian milreis was quoted nominally at slightly under 10 cents.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The Government cotton crop report today was preceded by a decline which carried all the active months into new low ground for the season, and followed by an advance. New December contracts sold off to 10.03 during the early trading under liquidation and Southern selling, but when business was resumed after publication of the crop figures advanced to 10.38 on trade covering or some rebuying. That delivery closed at 10.32, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 7 to 8 points.

LATIN-AMERICA LIST CONTINUES TO DROP

RAILS IRREGULARLY OFF

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Latin American bonds slid down to unprecedented prices for the year today with losses ranging from 1 to 11 points. Foreign bonds were generally lower and domestic issues lost ground in an irregular market.

Some of the force of the selling movement appeared to have spent itself in the violent break of the previous session. The decline of Latin Americans was less severe, but there was no let-up in the liquidation of Brazilian bonds, a reaction to the reports of gains by the rebel army in the South American republic.

Indicating the present attitude of some American investors, one report in dealers' circles said that some Peruvian and other bonds offered today attracted no bids. The cumulative effect of three days of selling has been to reduce by as much as one-third the market price of some South Americans.

Coffee Sinking Fund Firm.

Brazil 6½s of 1926-1957 tumbled 9 points and the 6½s of 1927-1957 were down 11 after drops of 8 points each in the previous sessions. Brazil 8s were only ½ net lower. The coffee security sinking fund 7½s were firm, and Sao Paulo State 7s rallied ¾. They were the only Brazilian issues to move against the trend.

Losses among Brazilians also included Rio de Janeiro 6½s and 8s, both down 8 and 9 points respectively; Rio Grande do Sul 6s and 7s, off more than 7. Sao Paulo State 7s, down 9; Minas Geraes 6½s of 1928, 9.

Sharp declines were registered by Chilean and Bolivian bonds. Chile 6s of February, 1961, and Bolivian 8s slumped 8 points each. Bolivian 7s found good buying support to rally 4¼ above the previous close, and Uruguay 6s of 1960 and 1964 gained 1 point. Uruguay 8s, however, were off nearly 3. Argentina issues were 1 to 3 lower. Costa Rica 7s slid 6 points to 75.

German Issues Decline.

Nearly all German bonds moved lower and were the most reactionary in the European list. The 5½s touched 75½, off 16 from its year's high, and German Agricultural Bank issues sagged 2 to 4. Roumanian 7s reacted 3, and Polish 7s and 8s set new lows for the year. French and British governments were virtually unchanged.

The reversed trend of the domestic list generally ascribed to the adverse effect of the weak foreign market was mirrored in the averages. They were off 3-10 of a point from the previous day and 1.3 from the 1930 high reached several weeks ago. Price movements followed a narrow groove compared with recent sessions, but a majority of changes were on the downside.

Railroad bonds were irregularly lower. St. Paul 5s of 1975 slumped 2¾ points on a large turnover. The adjustment 5s recovered ¾ from the year's minimum. Chicago & Northwestern 4½s were steady. Convertible railroad issues were the most active and generally lower. Utilities were steady.

U. S. Governments were moderately active and slightly lower.

Offerings tomorrow will include $2,940,000 City of Passaic, N. J., 4¼s and $1,000,000 Dallas County 4½s.

STOCK EXCHANGE AID TO MAKE TALK HERE

New Yorker Will Address First Bank Institute Forum of Season.

MEETING TUESDAY NIGHT

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Dr. Birl E. Shultz, educational director of the personnel division of the New York Stock Exchange, will address the first forum meeting of the season of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, Tuesday evening in the Willard room of the Willard Hotel. His address will deal with the operations of the New York Stock Exchange.

A booklet, published as a tribute to the memory of the late Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, former director of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., has just been issued by that institution. It contains a copy of a resolution of respect passed by the company's board of directors, a portrait of Dr. Wiley and a personal tribute to him written by John B. Larner, president of the company.

Wiley Tribute by Larner.

The latter states, in part:

"There is a sweet halo that seems to surround certain men. Their lives stand out in bold relief. We listen with rapt attention for words of wisdom, which come like sparkling diamonds from their lips. Life to such men is a constant uplift of soul. They give inspiration and encouragement. They live not for themselves, but for others.

"Such a picture fits directly, though inadequately, into the life of Harvey W. Wiley. Tall, commanding in appearance, flashing of eye, erect, dominant; speech, gold unalloyed; and reverence for the truth unbounded. Life to him was a constant and vigilant effort to do something for mankind. How well he succeeded the world will testify. Through storm and even peril he worked out the salvation of others. He was thoroughly imbued with the correctness of his own investigations, and, like the man he was, worked courageously and unflinchingly for the principles for which he stood."

Tri-Continental Corporation Data.

Tri-Continental Corporation reports for the nine months ended September 30, net profit, after taxes and expenses, of $5,132,604. Important changes in portfolio have been made since the corporation's last statement on June 30, it is revealed in the report being sent to stockholders by Earle Baillie, president. These changes include an increase in cash and short-term obligations from $8,924,695 to $18,066,151 and a reduction of common stock holdings from 53.5 per cent to 41.5 per cent of total assets.

Charles M. O'Hearn, outstanding football, baseball and hockey star at Yale several seasons ago, has become associated with Young & Ottley, Inc., managers of investment funds. After being graduated from Sheffield Scientific School of Yale in 1924, Mr. O'Hearn went with the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. as sales manager for the central district, but for the past few years he has been Eastern sales manager. While at Yale, he was captain of the baseball team, quarter back on the football team and captain of the hockey team.

Miss Mary J. Winfree, assistant cashier, Commercial National Bank and past president of the Bank Women's Club of Washington, has returned from the American Bankers Association and Association of Bank Women's convention at Cleveland.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Grain prices succumbed today to the influence of breaks in the stock market, and finished flat at virtually the day's lowest level. Contributing to the downward course of wheat values were reports that rains had improved Southern Hemisphere crop prospects, and that Russia was now shipping wheat out of her northern ports as well as by way of the Black Sea. Wheat closed unsettled, 1¼ cents net lower, after having accompanied news of threshing delays and damage to crops in Canada failed to last.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 3¼ to 3½ cents a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to 1¼c down, oats ⅛ to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

Sympathy with stock market weakness shewed itself most conspicuously in the wheat pit after word came that United States Steel shares had sold at new low record prices. Before this the wheat market had shown notable rallying power and had responded quickly to buying orders that to a true extent came from houses with Eastern connections. The buying orders were simultaneous with advices that only quantities of Canadian wheat were being injured on account of threshing delays and because of untimely rains and snow.

It was further current that 75 per cent of the Canadian wheat crop in the central and southern parts of Alberta province was unthreshed, and a doubt prevailed as to whether the work could be done before a general freeze up. Winnipeg messages said that from Blaine Lake to Tisdale, a stretch of about 200 miles, practically no threshing had been accomplished since September 7, and that 40,000,000 bushels was yet to be threshed in this section alone, with much of the wheat now badly sprouted. On the other hand, export demand today for wheat from North America showed a falling off of late, and a British trade authority said it was now believed that Russia would have 80,000,000 bushels of wheat to export this season.

Corn and oats went lower with wheat, but were less affected by stock market depression than was the case in wheat. Demand for corn available to be used at once was extremely active, with shipping sales of corn here the largest in some time.

Provisions owed their upturns more or less to an upward tilt of hog values.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Plymouth Oil; Cluett Peabody.

H. C. G.—Kindly give me your opinion of Plymouth Oil and Cluett Peabody at present prices.

Answer — Former may now be bought to yield 8 per cent, while latter may be purchased to yield about 7.1 per cent. From that angle they appear quite attractive, this applying particularly to Plymouth Oil, which has paid dividends at varying amounts, and with extras, since 1925. Moreover, company earned $2.16 per share for year ended December 31, 1929, as against only $2 per share in 1928. Present dividend rate on common is $2 yearly.

Cluett Peabody, though having reduced overhead and selling expenses, which improved earnings for first half of 1930, failed to cover the common dividend for the period, net income being equivalent to only $1.34 a share, whereas the dividend requirement for the period was $1.50 a share. Viewed from this angle, the stock does not look so inviting. In the final analysis, both issues, while on a dividend basis, are largely speculative.

Foltis Fischer and Others.

J. L. T.—Please give me your opinion on Foltis Fischer, National Public Service, Tri-Continental common and Pitney-Bowes.

Answer—Not a single one of these issues, with the possible exception of National Public Service A and B shares, which pay dividends of $1.60 per share each, is entitled to consideration from an investment viewpoint, this being as true of Pitney-Bowes, paying 20 cents annually, as it is of the other two stocks, on which no dividends are being paid.

All these issues are speculative in greater or lesser degree, and unless you are desirous of taking a gambling chance it would be best for you to keep away from them, especially in the present very unsettled condition of the market. If you must invest, confine your operations entirely to high-grade preferred stocks, with long-established dividend records or to regular interest-bearing bonds.

Armour & Co. of Delaware.

J. H. M.—I am writing for some information on the 5½ per cent bonds, due 1943, of Armour & Co., of Delaware. Would appreciate any information you may be able to furnish me relative to past and present operations of company which are responsible for these bonds being so far below par.

Answer—These bonds, which at present prices give a return on the investment of approximately 6.88 per cent and are figured to maturity as yielding 8.14 per cent, are rated "good" in the semi-investment bond division. Company has made fair progress over a period of years, but interest and dividend requirements are particularly burdensome, leaving little for surplus or equity dividends.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

It ranks as one of the two leaders in meat packing industry, with annual sales volume fluctuating around $900,000,000 since 1926.

Financial position as of November 2, 1929, was thoroughly sound, with inventories carried at a figure equal to 14 per cent of total sales for year. Company has recently paid off the $9,667,900 of Morris & Co. gold notes which matured September 1, in cash, without recourse to new financing, leaving a funded debt of $133,982,000. Although this retirement was made at the expense of net working capital, a very strong current position has been maintained. Without attempting to make any prediction as to future market movements of these bonds, it would appear from foregoing facts that there is nothing for you to worry about concerning them.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway.

F. H. D.—I am asking you to comment on Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway general mortgage 5s. Is there a doubt, on the basis of current earnings, of the interest on these bonds?

Answer—According to latest figures, interest on these bonds was being earned only 1.22 times. This would seem to indicate that unless earnings of company pick up substantially in the future the interest on these bonds may be in doubt. It is this, it would seem, that accounts for the present low selling price of the issue, and the further fact that leading bond authorities give to them a rating of "poor" in the semiinvestment bond division.

Chase National Bank.

F. R. Y.—What is your opinion of Chase National Bank stock?

Answer—Stock may be regarded as a sound medium for long-term investment. It sells normally at a high capitalization of earnings, however, as with comparative stocks in the group, and some market risks are involved in a commitment. As long as the trend of security prices is downward, the stock is susceptible to further recessions. Nevertheless, it is, as above stated, to be classified as a desirable investment for retention over a lengthy period.

Penn-Dixie Cement Corporation.

C. U.—Please give me some information regarding the Penn-Dixie Cement Corporation, also a description of the Republic of Czechoslovakia 8 per cent bonds, 1951 and 1952, and their classification.

Answer—The new tariff offers Pennsylvania-Dixie Cement Corporation some possibility of recovering part of its losses from operations. However, business now is slow and sales are not expected to exceed the 1929 volume. The new tariff on cement, while not altogether sufficient to discourage foreign imports, permits a greater part of the domestic production to be profitably marketed. Support given by the tariff, however, should not be generally effective until 1931.

Company's earnings have been on the decline since 1927. For twelve months ended June 30, 1930, net income amounted to $304,553, equivalent, after requirements on $7 preferred stock, to a deficit of $1.62 a common share, comparing with net of $975,813, equal to 6 cents a common share in 1929. Dividends on preferred have been suspended since December 15, 1929. Nothing paid on common since July 1, 1928. Stock highly speculative. There are $12,600,000 Series A and $8,500,000 Series B 8 per cent bonds of the Republic of Czechoslovakia of 1951 and 1952 outstanding. Both issues, which are rated as "good," are selling in the neighborhood of $110. Income yield on the A issue is 7.29 per cent and on the B, 7.27 per cent. Both are figured to yield to maturity 7.10 per cent.

American Tank Car.

C. K. P.—Please give me whatever information you have regarding General American Tank Car. How is the stock regarded?

Answer—First half year profits increased nearly $1,000,000 over the same period last year, due to expansion and diversification of business. Directors are considering increasing European operations, including a tank car system for the Russian and Roumanian oil industries, and cars to move the wine and olive crops of France and Italy.

Net income reached a new high in 1929, amounting to $5,770,741, or $7.56 per share on 763,772 shares. For the first six months this year, earnings equaling $4.58 on 797,000 shares. The stock may be regarded as a speculative investment which pays a $4 cash dividend and 4 per cent in stock.

International Cement.

T. C.—I am considering a purchase of International Cement. What is your opinion of this stock from the standpoint of investment?

Answer—The company is in a preferred position and the outlook may be considered good for cement companies, due to tariff protection and large road-building programs. In July the industry operated at about 78 per cent as against 80½ per cent in July 1929.

International is expected to earn its $4 dividend this year by a good margin, and has a fair chance of equaling its earnings last year of $7.88 per share. At its present price around 66 the stock yields about 6 per cent, and may be considered a good speculative investment for the pull.

Curb Review

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Curb shares were still under pressure in today's market, and closed lower for the fourth successive session.

Selling was not particularly heavy, the day's sales aggregating $15,100 shares, but it was persistent, and half-hearted efforts to rally the list were quickly abandoned. Most net declines were moderate, although several ranged from 1 to 3 points.

Electric Bond and Share, held above its recent minimum, and closed at 60¾, a net loss of only 1⅛. This issue was traded in large volume. American and Foreign Power warrants, still adversely influenced by the Brazilian situation, touched new low grounds at 26, but closed at 27½, off only ¾. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore lost 3, and Eastern Utility Associates dropped nearly 4 to a new low at 35⅜. Niagara Hudson, however, held steady, and American Gas and Electric gained a point.

Ford of Canada A dropped nearly 4 points to a new low at 18½, then rallied a point. General Aviation, formerly Fokker, touched 10, off 1½ and new low ground. Dow Chemical dropped 2 points, touching 60 for the first time this year. In the mines, Consolidated Mining, an infrequently traded issue, sold at 164, off 22 points from the previous sale, and Noranda sagged a point to a new low at 17. Otis were also heavy. Cities Service closed at 26, off only ¼, but Gulf dropped 3 points. Goldman Sachs trading was a soft spot in the investment trusts, declining a point to 12½, again a new low.

Mack Admits His Team Is Great

Players Stage Wild Celebration After Deciding Fray.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—An old gentleman with a new toy—his second world series championship in succession—played with the bauble tonight and trembled with happiness in possessing it.

Once more Connie Mack, the tall, stately patriarch of the Philadelphia Athletics, has maneuvered his men into the throne room of baseball. In 50 long years playing the game, managing the A's, he has won five of these titles. And while the dew should be off the rose, the thrill of conquest, keenness for the fight, never seems to fade in him.

Today the hulking, powerful young athletes who might be his own sons in the affection he feels for them, battered the St. Louis Cardinals into the final defeat needed to bring another world championship pennant to Shibe Park. They fought for the honor and prizes of winning, they fought for the "old man," though they'd never dare call him that to his face. They fought, too, for Connie's recognition as a truly great ball team, an honor he denied them after their first series triumph over the Chicago Cubs last year.

Mack Speechless From Excitement.

So, when the battle was over and a mob of howling fans were fighting to invade the sanctity of the Athletics' dressing room, Connie slipped in among them. He could hardly speak from excitement. The warriors were shouting defiance and satisfaction over a radio microphone set up in their quarters and an announcer was pleading for Mr. Mack's presence on the air.

The players let out a roar that rumbled through the walls and out into the stands when they spied Connie's long, lean frame. He walked happily down a lane through them, reaching out to pat his aces, big George Earnshaw, the pitcher; Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx, Mickey Cochrane, Jimmy Dykes, as he went by. Then half way to the microphone he stopped and said:

"You did what I asked you to. You are a really great ball team."

The athletes seemed to have been waiting for that. They yelled and jumped around the room in their various stages of dress and undress, cheered and shouted for Connie and themselves. Then they followed him to the microphone and all tried to speak at once.

Earnshaw Says He Is Happy.

Earnshaw, with his teammates howling "Iron Man!" in his ears, modestly announced that he was happy and everyone else in the room echoed his sentiments.

Just as the Athletics themselves, giving the Cardinals plenty of credit for gamesness and fight, looked upon the outcome of the series as something that could not have been otherwise, so did Connie Mack accept the victory with complacency when he finally got a chance to sit down and talk it over. The tremendous nervous exhaustion that followed last year's victory was missing today. He did not need to lie on his couch and rest while his heart struggled back to normal. The depth of feeling was gone, but there was great satisfaction in its place and happiness that made him tremble.

"This was the easiest possible game of the series," he said, as he lolled back in an easy chair at his desk in the tiny office set up in the tower back of the grandstand in Shibe Park. "The Cardinals played all their cards and went down fighting. I am proud to say that they made us play to the limit. They were worthy foes. But I must give my boys credit. They are a truly great bal team."

"They gave me my fifth world's championship today and all the honors should go to them. I told them this spring that they must win another American League pennant and another world championship before I would recognize them as a really great team. Now they have done that. They are a great team.

"They beat the Cardinals, a fighting team that came from behind in the National League and won 20 of its last 25 games. They showed themselves to be a better club.

"'Lefty' Grove and George Earnshaw must be given a world of credit. They are great pitchers. Earnshaw, on his performance today and through the series, must be classed as one of the greatest pitchers of all time, an iron man of the same caliber of Jack Coombs, who

Mills Revamps G. U. Team For Night Game Tomorrow

LOCAL fandom's interest in the Georgetown-West Virginia Wesleyan football game tomorrow night in Griffith Stadium—the first collegiate night contest ever scheduled in the Capital—is mounting by leaps and bounds, and so pleased are Hilltop officials with the advance sale of tickets that they look for the largest crowd to witness a football game here since 1922.

The advance sale is the heaviest in the history of Georgetown's local games, according to H. Gabriel Murphy, graduate manager of athletics.

Lighting System Success In Tryout.

The largest football crowd Washington has ever known was that which attended the Navy-Penn State game in Griffith Stadium in 1922. Approximately 22,000 persons attended that contest, which had a wide appeal. Last year's 14,000 crowd at the Georgetown-West Virginia University game is believed to have been the second largest.

A dress rehearsal, so to speak, was held in the stadium last night with Head Coach Tommy Mills directing the Hilltoppers through a practice session lasting from 8:30 to 10 o'clock. The 68 1,500-watt lamps making up the lighting system gave an illumination virtually as bright as the sun. Every movement of the players was clearly visible and even the letters on the signs on the outfield fences could be distinguished without straining the eyes.

The stands and the parking space adjacent the stadium will also be lighted tomorrow night. Spectators will have no difficulty going to and from their seats, stadium attaches promised.

New G. U. Back Field to Start Game.

Mills has named a new back field quartet to start against Wesleyan. This is the Hilltop's third game of the season, and for the third time Mills will experiment with his flock of ball-carrying talent.

About the only encouraging feature of the Georgetown football situation from Mills' viewpoint is the large number of capable backs available. Mills smilingly admits that he has so many proficient backs that he is in a quandary concerning the matter of selecting a permanent quartet.

Tomorrow night the Blue and Gray array behind the line will be made up of Johnny Scalzi, quarter back; Bill Maczees, left half back; Russell Danieu, right half back, and Mancell Gillis, full back. This will be the initial starting appearance of Danieu.

Danieu has made rapid strides in absorbing the details of right half back duties and he continues the fine work he showed as a substitute in both the Mount St. Mary's and Loyola games, he probably will remain a regular for the balance of the season.

Scalzi and Maczees will be starting for the third time and Gillis will be making his second appearance as a starter. Gillis has replaced Leroy Bordeau at full back. Emile Bozek was the right half back in the opening game with Mount St. Mary's, while Phil Mooney got the assignment last Saturday against Loyola.

A play-by-play description and announcements of the substitutions will be broadcast over amplifiers. The announcer will be on the sidelines carrying a portable transmitter wired to the broadcasting system of the stadium.

SERIES NOTES

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Today's game was unusual in that no one Cardinal pitcher came to bat, Fisher batted for Hallahan in the third, Blades for Johnson in the sixth and Orsatti for Lindsey in the eighth.

In effect, it carried out the idea of President Heydler, made two years ago, that a tenth man should be in the line-up to bat for the pitcher.

The series was remarkable in that only once did either team hit for double figures in any games. The Cardinals collected ten hits in the third game off the pitching of Walberg, Shores and Quinn. The hurling was above the average all the way.

The two-time world's champions got one or more men on the bags in every inning except the seventh and eighth, when they went out in order.

Connie Mack said that Earnshaw did not tire in the ninth when he allowed two hits and two bases on balls. He was just a "little careless," said Mack.

Jimmy Foxx, who won Monday's game at St. Louis with a homer, was given a big cheer when he came to bat the first time.

The crowd held nothing against Jimmy Dykes for his misplays in St. Louis, for he also was given a loud cheer when he stepped to the plate. He responded with a perfect day at bat.

The great ovation given to George Earnshaw when he came to bat in the eighth was enough to warm the heart of any ball player. He doffed his cap and biffed a high fly to deep center.

"Darn good," said Connie Mack, when asked how it feels to win a fifth world's championship. Connie was the master tactician to the very end. Asked after the game when and why he pitched Earnshaw, he said "that is a clubhouse secret."

Connie Mack said it was a clean series. The "riding" of the players, he said, was just an incident of the game and left no hard feelings.

Mackmen Get $5,000 Each as Series Share

Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The victory of the Athletics today gave them the winner's end of the money, approximately $5,000 per man, figured on a basis of their total of $186,027.69 being split into 27 shares. Last year each Mackman collected $5,620.57 for whipping the Chicago Cubs, the players' pool being much larger than this time.

The total gate receipts for the series exceeded $950,000, and were the nearest to the million-dollar mark since 1926.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 8.—The world series commotion of 1930 died away in apathetic calm this afternoon as the Philadelphia Athletics pounded away at four unfortunate parties wearing upon their shirt fronts the picturesque bird-on-a-ball-bat insignia of the St. Louis Cardinals. The Athletics won the final game, 7 to 1, and the series four games to two and both teams quickly vanished from the scene after the closing put out, a fly ball to right.

A few customers hopped over the low barriers separating the grand stand from the playing field to touch the hems of the heroic vestments of George Earnshaw, the society man, with entree to the biggest houses in the Philadelphia suburbs, and of Mickey Cochrane, the catcher. Old Abner Doubleday Gleason, a man of close onto 70 years, cut himself a bit of a step out in front of the Athletics' dugout. The 30,000 in the ball park and the 3,000 customers who had been sniping long views of the game from temporary bleachers on the roofs of a block of shabby apartments across the street from the right-field wall, rose quietly and trudged away.

Earnshaw Holds Cards To Five Hits.

Earnshaw had held the Cardinals to five hits, but he had yielded only three until the ninth inning when, with a lead of seven runs, he seemed to feel no need for caution. The Athletics had made only seven hits themselves, but they were all long ones, for extra bases, two homers and five doubles. Moreover, Max Bishop scored twice and Jimmy Dykes once after bases on balls.

There was no suspense at any time and the series may be said to have petered out instead of rising to a climax. Earnshaw was throwing a routine of speed and curves that defied successful molestation at all times until the final inning and from his demeanor then it was quite apparent that he was not exerting himself with anything like desperation. In Mr. Earnshaw's set, one does not lose one's poise, however, trying the circumstances, and today's circumstances were such that the only member of the upper classes ever seen in the house livery of a major league baseball firm probably would have yawned himself a number of yawns but for the fact that this was another thing one does not do in public.

Dykes, Foxx Passed By Hallahan.

Wild Bill Hallahan, the little fellow who won one of the games for the Cardinals in the stand the club made in St. Louis, was the first appointee to pitch for the defense today. Jimmy Dykes, the second hitter, received a spontaneous though by no means uproarious vote of confidence from the patrons when he went to bat. Mr. Dykes had gummed up a couple of plays in the St. Louis games and this pattering of palms and some rather strained whooping and yodeling, assured him that his little failures were not being held against him. So, after boosting a long shot into the left-field stands which might have been a home run but fell foul and therefore was only a common strike, he loitered around, swishing his bat in practice licks until Hallahan gave him a base on balls.

Mickey Cochrane then fired a double over first base, which ripped through Jim Bottomley's outstretched and yearning mitt and Dykes began the scoring with a dash all the way from first. Cochrane went to third during a slight delay in the return of the ball, which had rolled between Watkins' legs as he plodded in to back up Bottomley. This was an error for Watkins. Al Simmons fanned and the customers let loose another restrained ovation for Jimmy Foxx, the Maryland field-hand as he appeared, in memory of his home run in the ninth which won the fifth game in St. Louis.

Miller Scores Foxx With Double.

Foxx tried to bunt, but the ball rolled foul and Hallahan took a deep gouge of turf as his cleats tripped him on the run in to field the ball. Mr. Eddie Collins came in from the coachers box at third and held up the game a moment while he gathered up the divots and gentled them back into the sod, each root and blade, with his fingers.

This done, Mr. Collins stepped back, surveyed the damage, shot a pained glance at Hallahan, and returned to his duties coaching. A useful man, Mr. Collins, a strategist who is not above performing the tasks of the groundkeeper if need be, and always careful to preserve his employers' property. Mr. Collins will deserve well of the firm and will succeed Mr. Connie Mack if Mr. Mack ever needs a successor.

Foxx walked, too, after considerable time devoted to inspection and rejection of the stuff Wild Bill was throwing to him. He didn't score but Cochrane came in from third when Bing Miller hit a double to center, and the Athletics had all the runs they needed to win the game and the series when the first inning closed.

There was a morbid fascination about Jim Bottomley's futility at bat. Once a hitter of great distinction, Mr. Bottomley went through the

FIRST INNING.

CARDINALS—Douthit struck out, swinging at the third one, a curve. Adams rolled to Foxx and was out, unassisted. Watkins fanned, swinging hard at the third strike.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

ATHLETICS—Bishop lifted a fly to Frisch near second base. Dykes walked. Cochrane hit to right field and Dykes scored, Cochrane going to third. It was a two-base hit. Watkins was charged with an error when the ball rolled through him. Simmons struck out, swinging hard at the third strike. Foxx fouled along the third base line, Hallahan letting it roll outside. Foxx walked. Cochrane scored on Miller's double to center, Foxx going to third. Watkins made a great play to hold the hit to a double. Moore lifted a fly to Douthit on the first pitched ball.

SECOND INNING.

CARDINALS—Frisch filed to Simmons, who made a running catch in deep center. Hafey lifted a high fly to Simmons in center. Bottomley struck out, swinging at the third one; it was his ninth strikeout of the series.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

ATHLETICS—Boley rolled to Gelbert and was thrown out to Bottomley. Earnshaw struck out, swinging at a fast ball for the third strike. Ball hit Bishop on the arm and he took first base. Bishop went to second when Wilson let the ball get away. It was a passed ball. Dykes walked for the second time. Cochrane fouled to Adams, who ran nearly to the stands to make the catch.

No runs, no hits, no erors, two left.

THIRD INNING.

CARDINALS—Wilson grounded to Dykes and was thrown out to Foxx. Gelbert, a Pennsylvanian, was cheered. Gilbert filed to Simmons in center. Fisher batted for Hallahan. Fisher hit to left field for two bases. Douthit hit a roller to boley and was out at first. Grove went down to the Athletics' bull pen as the inning ended.

ATHLETICS—Earnshaw struck out, swinging wildly at a pitch over his head. Bishop walked. Dykes drove a home run into the lower deck of the left field stands and scored behind Bishop. It was a line drive; it sailed over Hafey's head among the spectators. Cochrane was out, Frisch to Bottomley, on a great play when the Cardinal captain knocked the ball down, fell with it, and threw to first. Simmons grounded to Adams and was thrown out to Bottomley.

Two runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

FIFTH INNING.

CARDINALS—Bottomley grounded to Bishop and was thrown out to Foxx. Wilson struck out, swinging at a fast ball for the third strike. Gelbert filed to Haas in short center.

No runs; no hits; no errors; none left.

ATHLETICS—Foxx doubled to center. It was a hard-hit ball, caroming from Frisch's glove. Miller bunted to Bottomley and was out to Frisch, who covered first. It was a sacrifice. Foxx scored on Haas' sacrifice fly to Douthit. Boley filed to Watkins, who ran in a few steps to make the catch.

One run; one hit; no errors; none left.

Hallahan Ineffective; Cards Held to Five Scattered Hits.

By DICK WILLIAMS.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8 — (N.E.W.S.).—Back and forth, back and forth, back and forth, big George Earnshaw swished his grotesquely long right arm today, playing a dreary monotony for an unhappy St. Louis Baseball Club.

For eight innings he mowed these Cardinals down and set them up and mowed them down again, and then in the ninth he allowed them one run, so that the score was 7 to 1 and the world series of 1930 was over.

He might have been a little more generous prior to that ninth inning, but he is a stern-looking man with a drab and determined sort of a face and he's strong and revels in his strength. Then, too, constant nibbling at any sort of a lead, even one of seven runs, sometimes brings woe and Mr. Earnshaw is not a man to have any truck with woe when it isn't absolutely forced upon him.

Philadelphia Fans Celebrate.

After it was all over Philadelphia insisted upon becoming a little excited. Folks in the downtown office buildings released their mild hysteria after a week of dignified indifference and a hundred or two windows began belching yellow ticker tape that fell down the sides of the structures and blew with a rather forced gaiety in the cool wind that came up about the middle of the game and aided Earnshaw in his task because it brought a hazy cloud with it.

It was a rather pathetic finish for Manager Street, of St. Louis, and his men. They had come into Philadelphia last night filled with high hopes. That they were proven absolutely empty otherwise is a development of today. Last night they believed little Bill Hallahan, a boyish-faced lefthander with a whopping big jump on his fast ball, invincible, and believing him invincible, felt that today's game and then the series was "in."

They had seen Earnshaw and Grove, who had been their nemesis, as two very tired gentlemen of uncertain baseball age who would be unable to come back and perform adequately. They knew that any other pitcher Manager Connie Mack, of the A's, might select would be what the boys call duck bouillon for them and they had expected to do some little lusty hitting as a means of relieving their chagrin of Monday, when they were quite impotent, indeed, before this same Earnshaw and likewise this same Grove.

Earnshaw Is Real Iron Man.

In all these delightful figurings they were totally wrong. Mr. Earnshaw was not a tired and doddering man, but an extremely strong and self-willed and cunning one, and Mr. Grove wasn't needed at all.

Thus they did none of the sprightly hitting they had planned for themselves, and when little Mr. Hallahan bogged down and the A's, in the fashion they have developed, began banging those home runs and doubles about his ears, the day was completely ruined and the Cardinal spirits must have been as gloomy and gray as the haze that settled along about the sixth inning and obscured Mr. Earnshaw's fast ball just enough to make it virtually unhittable.

A man, if he had any sentiment in his composition at all, couldn't help but feel a little tug around his bosom for poor old Gabby Street, a very thin and drawn and haggard looking man with gnarly fingers earned in ten years of catching the great Walter Johnson.

Extra Base Hits Beat Cards.

Mr. Street only became a manager this year and he was expected to win

LUGGAGE, WORKMAN UP, WINS IN LAUREL FEATURE

Geneseo Star Just Lasts in Feature

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 8.—The Geneseo Stable's Luggage, 3-year-old chestnut son of The Porter—Weary, picked up 112 pounds and under a powerful ride by Sonny Workman ran a mile in 1:38 3-5 to account for The Severn, the day's feature. Luggage was held at the short odds of 60 cents to a dollar when he entered the stall gates. He broke alertly, but was outrun to the first turn by Razzle.

Workman stuck to the rail until well down the back stretch, where he shot to the top, and, flashing one of his justly famous hand rides, kept Luggage going along enough to save the purse from W. R. Coe's Nile Maiden. Frank Hayes Syriac, away poorly and pulled up at the first turn, closed an immense gap the last half to take third money from Mrs. James Arthur's Berber.

Millbay Pays $173.20 for Place in Opener.

Although Belgian Lass, second favorite won, long shots certainly had their innings in gathering the remaining portion of the purse in the opening race on today's card.

Millbay, which finished second, rewarded its backers with $173.20 for place and $63.20 for show, while Visionary, which finished third, netted $58.70 for each $2 ticket bought in the mutuels.

Millbay was only beaten by a neck and would have paid the fancy figures of $346.20 had it won. Trailing eighth most of the way and entering the stretch in sixth position, Jockey Horvath almost had his mount up in time to catch the faltering Belgian Lass. Visionary was among the leaders at all times and might have won but for swinging wide turning into the stretch. A victory for Visionary would have netted $232.80 to its backers.

At the break, Country Belle opened a long lead on her field, but at the turn for home she was headed by Visionary. The latter led to the sixteenth pole, where A. Adams drove Belgian Lass on top to outlast Millbay for the purse. Visionary hung on long enough to save the minor award from Miss Grace, the favorite.

Albert John Adams, Baltimore's new riding sensation, drove Jim Bean's Eleusagon home ahead of eleven other platers in the mile and one-sixteenth of the second to register this third consecutive victory. Adams won yesterday's curtain affair with Make Believe and then won the day's opener with Belgian Lass. His score in the second race was his third straight triumph and proved that the establishing of a world's record of nine consecutive victories during the recent Marlboro half-mile meeting was no flash-in-the-pan.

In today's second race, Adams waited off the pace with Eleusagon for three quarters, where he moved up fast, but after taking the lead had to show a powerful finish to get the ultimate winner home ahead of Let Alone and Dunlin's Elk.

First Disqualification of Fall In State in Third.

The first disqualification of the major fall season in Maryland occurred in the five and one-half furlongs of the third race when the Sagamore Stable's Soupcon, after placing behind H. P. Whitney's Halcyon was taken entirely out of the money.

Halcyon, on the rail, led after the field had gone a quarter of a mile, but he could not shake off Soupcon and Noon Whistle until after they were well into the home stretch.

As Halcyon drew away from his field, Soupcon cut across Noon Whistle, for which he was disqualified. Noon Whistle was moved into the place with Abdel, a long shot, taking third money. It was Halcyon's initial score, but he received able support throughout from Sonny Workman.

The Sagamore Stable's Al Green, paying $11.30, took command in the 6 furlongs of the fourth soon after the webbing was released and at no stage of the journey could his opponents get close. Lamp Black, the only one to outbreak Al Green, easily saved the place from Betty Beau.

The mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth saw the Lemar Stock Farm's Make Haste, 3-year-old chestnut son of Pandion—Oronge, race the distance in 1:43 3-5 to enable Jockey A. Adams to register his third victory of the day.

Make Haste Is Overlooked In Wagering.

Despite the fact that Make Haste had worked cleverly for today's effort, he was almost overlooked in the wagering and paid $9.90. Adams broke Make Haste on top and at no stage of the journey could his opponents get close. At the wire he was several lengths clear of Aziz, with Yankee Doodle third.

W. A. Smithson's Tazewell came from behind near the finish and defeated Trudgeon by a neck in the seventh race of 1¼ miles for 3-year-olds and upward. Trudgeon preceded Fair Man, the favorite, by one length across the line.

Jockey Kennedy sent Tazewell in hot pursuit of the leaders from the very start and, reaching the final furlong pole, Tazewell caught and passed Trudgeon, which had been traveling at top speed throughout. Tazewell just lasted after displaying a tremendous burst of speed in the final furlong.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BELGIAN LASS, $14.00, $8.70, $6.50; MILLBAY, $173.20, $63.20; VISIONARY, $58.70.

BELGIAN LASS began slow and was shuffled back. Adams hugged the rail until rounding the turn for home where she went to the outside, closed gamely under punishment, but was out to the limit to stall off MILLBAY'S rush. Latter closed with a rush out in the middle of the track, but just failed to get up. VISIONARY moved up full of run entering the home stretch, where he went very wide. This probably cost him the race. MISS GRACE weakened in the final furlong. PRIMLIN showed a good test. COUNTRY BELLE tired. ZEBRA had no excuses.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELEUSAGON, $5.00, $3.50, $2.70; LETALONE, $9.20, $7.70; DUNLIN'S ELK, $5.30.

ELEUSAGON was rated off the pace. Adams waited until straightened out in home stretch before making his run. ELEUSAGON wore down the tiring DUNLIN'S ELK, but weakened after disposing of latter. LETALONE gradually improved his position, went wide entering home stretch, but finished with splendid courage. He would have beaten the winner in another stride. DUNLIN'S ELK was used up racing BLUE JOHN into submission first half mile. He went into a long lead rounding the far turn, but collapsed when put to a drive. OLD TIMES was shuffled back going to first turn.

HALYCON began quickly, was rushed to the front, shook off stiff contention from SOUPCON and drew out smartly in the last furlong. SOUPCON offered keen contention, interfered with NOON WHISTLE when entering the home stretch and was easily best of the others. He was disqualified for fouling NOON WHISTLE. Latter, hard hustled all the way, held on gamely after being bothered. ABDEL had speed and continued gamely. PRINCE PEST could not menace the leaders. TANCRED finished fast.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AL GREEN, $11.30, $5.70, $4.00; LAMP BLACK, $13.40, $9.10; BETTY BEAU, $3.20.

AL GREEN broke fast and raced to the outside of LAMP BLACK until rounding far turn, where he began to draw away. He held his field safe all through home stretch. LAMP BLACK raced to his top form, tired badly when put to a drive. RACCOON closed a big gap and would have beaten BETTY BEAU in another stride.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUGGAGE, $3.20, $2.40, $2.20; NILE MAIDEN, $3.70, $2.70; SYRIAC, $2.60.

LUGGAGE went through on the inside when settled on the back stretch to take command, was steadied along and held enough in reserve to resist NILE MAIDEN. Latter, forced to work her way up on the outside, finished stoutly. SYRIAC was unable to reach the leaders at any stage. BERBER closed resolutely. MABELLE and the others were held safe.

MAKE HASTE moved into a commanding lead after the first five furlongs, saved ground and held his field perfectly safe. AZIZ, timidly ridden, raced on her own courage for the entire trip. YANKEE DOODLE tired when put to a drive. ZEAL could not keep up. BALTIMORE was outrun.

MAKE HASTE LIVES UP TO NAME IN TAKING SIXTH.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:54. Off at 4:55. Winner, W. A. TAZEWELL followed in close pursuit of the pacemakers, reached the front when nearing the final furlong pole and just lasted. TRUDGEON set a good pace, saved ground and held on stoutly. FAIR MAN appeared sore, raced off the early pace and then hung badly after moving to the leaders. TALL GRASS closed full of run. RING ON raced evenly. OVERLOOK quit.

LAUREL NOTES

Race Track, Laurel, Md., Oct. 8.—Work watchers report Frank Hayes' Starspun one of the most likely looking 3-year-olds jumping prospects to be shown this fall. She is a daughter of Star Spangled—Twinkle Twinkle.

It might be well for race fans to remember that horses run faster over this track on October 7 than any other day. Four of the existing track records were hung out on that day.

In 1927 Buddy Bauer equaled the three-quarter-mile mark of 1:11 2-5. The mile mark of 1:37 3-5 was equaled in 1925 by Big Blaze, while Crank set a mile and 7 yards mark of 1:42 1-5 in 1918. Boots set the mile and one-sixteenth record of 1:43 2-5 in 1916. Yesterday Tarpaulin equaled the five and one-half furlong mark of 1:05 4-5, while Black Majesty equaled the 6-furlong figures.

G. Reilley, who is under contract to Lloyd Gentry, joined the local riding colony.

At the conclusion of this meeting Pat Dwyer is going back to Belmont Park, N. Y., to take up 21 yearlings belonging to Walter J. Salmon.

Bob Boyle reports that Dunrock was not as badly injured as he first thought and hopes to have him back in the races shortly.

J. W. Beamish has returned from Canada, where he buried his brother.

Goneaway came out of the Havre de Grace Cup test lame and will be on the shelf for some time.

Word coming up from New Orleans has it that the following officials will serve during the Jefferson Park meeting, which opens November 27: Stewards, Thomas C. Bradley and John T Ireland; racing secretary, Joseph McLennan; starter, William Hamilton, who will use the C. M. Waite stall gates; placing judges, Julius Reeder, Richard Leigh and Arthur Blanchard; clerk of scales, John Carey; patrol judge, Buddy Wingfield, and paddock judge, Frank Olis.

Jockey Frankie Coltilleti has departed for Hawthorne, Ill., where he will ride Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau in the cup test on Saturday. Coltilleti will return Monday to ride out the meeting.

Johnny Numbers, of Baltimore, has purchased two yearlings which he turned over to Anthony Allen to get ready for 1931 racing.

There are fifteen horses on the schooling list with the adding of Con Amore, Bounding Deep and Fair Beth. Horsemen are advised that schooling hours are from 8 to 9:30 a. m. daily.

LAUREL PARK RACE TRACK, Oct. 8.—The Anne Arundel Purse furlong dash, for fillies and mares, and the Bladensburg, 1 1-16-mile gallop for 4-year-olds and upward, will be the best attractions at this course tomorrow.

The Anne Arundel will be run as the fifth event and seven are listed to start. W. R. Coe's SWEEPOUT and the Sagamore Stable's THE SPARE appear to be evenly matched. SWEEPOUT was far back in the Capital Handicap opening day of the current meeting. She may have been loafing, because her stable mate, BLACK MAJESTY, won the stake. At Havre de Grace SWEEPOUT beat THE SPARE, Balko and others. THE SPARE gave her a tough battle, but the Coe filly left the gate slowly that day. LOST AGNES' last race can be tossed out. She was on the outside throughout and lost a lot of ground. Others in the Anne Arundel are LADY CAPULET, BLACK CARSE, FIRST LADY and ST. PRISCA.

Six are entered in the Bladensburg, which will be run as the sixth number. Sylvester W. Labrot's DINAH DID UPSET not only looks like the winner of this race, but she shapes up as the safest proposition of the day. Her last start was in the Havre de Grace Handicap. She finished far back, but any horse that was in front or back of her could win the Bladensburg. Prior to the Havre de Grace Handicap DINAH DID UPSET licked Molasses Jane, Dustemall and Snowflake in a mile and 70 yards race. Dr. J. Fred Adams has the Upset mare in grand shape right now. GOLDEN AUBURN has only to repeat his last race to be the runner-up in the Bladensburg. IOLLAN turned in a dull effort his last start at Havre de Grace, but he was very sore that day. He may do better this time. Col. E. R. Bradley's BOOT TO BOOT demonstrated in his last start at Havre de Grace that he is far from tops. He has been away from the races for a long time.

FIRST RACE—ONE ALONE is meeting ordinary opposition in the day's opener. She ran two fair races at Havre De Grace. On one occasion, she was favored to beat Tommy Boy and wound up fifth after leaving the gate in a tangle. She was third to Tambour and Phantasime, two good fillies, in her other start. GREEN LIGHT may be the runner-up. This miss had speed her last out. She might have been short. ROSEVOLT has as good a chance as any of the others to be third.

SECOND RACE—BALLY WEAVER, after winning a jumping contest in Canada, came back and placed to William Kennet in a revival of the Hendre steeplechase handicap at Woodbine park less than two weeks ago. He may have something on the field of leppers which will meet in the second. MISTENFLUTE turned in several fair races in New York last month. He is in the hands of a capable trainer. LORENZO was far back of MISTENFLUTE the last time they met. The former was making his first start in some time and he may have been short.

THIRD RACE—SUNCHEN made two attempts at jumping in New York and fell both times. He went fairly well in a sprint race at Havre De Grace. MAKE HASTE beat him about four lengths. MAKE HASTE came back off that race and beat much better company than SUNCHEN will meet here. LAGRANGE may be the one to beat. Just an ordinary plater, but he showed good form at Havre De Grace. VOWED VENGEANCE hung on long enough to score here Tuesday. He's very faint-hearted and a bad betting proposition. OLD KID has a good chance, but he begins very slowly and usually has to take all the worst of it.

FOURTH RACE—The Glenmore appears to be another easy spot for H. P. Whitney's PENNATE. He beat the same kind of 2-year-olds at Havre De Grace. His only fault is that he begins slowly and the fact he breaks from No. 2 position isn't going to help him any. RIP VAN WINKLE and SERGEANT DONALDSON are evenly matched. RIP VAN WINKLE beat THE SERGEANT at the other track. MAD CAREER may be close-up.

SEVENTH RACE—RUBY KELLER and YOSAN were both easy winners of their last starts at Havre De Grace. RUBY beat better platers and for this reason, she is given preference in the curtain affair. JANE RINEHART may surprise by being close-up. She went fairly well in a sprint race at Havre De Grace her last start. She has had very little racing through the past month and should be fresh and good.

GRID SCHEDULE POLICY AT C. U. TO BE CHANGED

Plan to Play Only Teams In Class

Elimination of "Killing" Games Urged by Bergman.

Boston College, Holy Cross Games Too Costly in Injuries.

A RADICAL change in the policy of scheduling football games for Catholic University will be effected within the next year by Arthur "Dutch" Bergman, new director of athletics of the Brookland institution. As a result, Bergman hopes the Cardinals will not undergo any more "killing" schedules such as that of this season.

Bergman will take steps to arrange a schedule with teams in Catholic University's class, at least for the early part of the season. Teams in the Brooklanders' class are, according to general opinion, Loyola of Baltimore, Mount St. Mary's, George Washington and others of like strength.

Boston College, Holy Cross To Be Eliminated.

The elimination of such powerful teams as Boston College and Holy Cross from the Cardinals' early season program is Bergman's chief aim. He is not unwilling, however, that these teams be met in midseason or toward the close.

For the last several years Catholic U. elevens have been called on to tackle Boston College and others of that caliber in their early games. Usually this has resulted in the virtual crippling of the Cardinals for their ensuing contests. The pounding they have absorbed from B. C.—simply because of inferior material, and little of that—weakened them for games later played with teams of their own class.

Again this season, Catholic U. suffered serious losses in manpower as a result of bucking the superior Boston aggregation in its first game on September 27. Some of the injured then performed last Saturday against Franklin and Marshall, which also proved more powerful, and now the Cardinals have an injury list of alarming proportions.

Holy Cross is to be met Saturday in Worcester, Mass., and C. U. can hardly hope to hold the Crusaders to a respectable score, it is believed. Hugh Fynn and Mike Devin, both tackles, are out for the season, while Johnny Oliver may be out of this game and possibly the succeeding one. Capt. George Menke, guard; Ed O'Brien, tackle; Nick Monaco, guard, and Carl DeMello, half back, also are injured, but they probably will get into the fray since their hurts are more or less minor.

Change Not to Be Effected Until 1932.

The change Bergman seeks can not be effected completely until 1932, because Catholic U. is bound under contracts with Boston College and Holy Cross for 1931 games. But it is likely that Franklin and Marshall will not appear on the 1931 list.

The Cardinals depart at 8 o'clock tonight for Worcester. Those named to make the journey are: Blasi, Stapleton, Lyons and Fraatz, ends; Achstetter, Callahan, Herlihy, O'Brien, Quinn and Monaco, tackles; Hepburn, Maley, Menke, Mullen, Nimphius and Clark, guards; Ambrose and Billinger, centers; Sheary, Bertoni, DeMello, Donaher, Guarnieri, Oliver, Shallack and Whelan, backs.

Revamped G. W. Eleven Will Face Delaware

Hopes of the George Washington University Football Team of playing its first home game a week from Friday with a .500 percentage will be either realized or dispelled at Newark, Del., Saturday. Delaware University will provide the opposition for the Colonials, who lost their opener last week to Rutgers.

Head Coach Jimmy Pixlee, dissatisfied with the work of some of his players last week, has exercised a privilege hitherto impossible at George Washington, benching some and inserting new blood into the line-up which will take the field Saturday. Although possessing no abundance of reserve strength, Pixlee, nevertheless, has about three good men for each position, just enough to keep every candidate on his toes fighting for a regular job at all times. A slip or let-up on the part of any one player and his chance may be gone.

Film Shows Navy Team Notre Dame Formation

MARINES WANT GAMES.

Manager Barr of the Navy Yard Marines is completing his schedule for this year. He would like to arrange games with 150-pound or unlimited teams to be played preferably away. Interested managers should call Lincoln 1360 and ask for the Post Exchange.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 8.—Mrs. J. W. Howard won the woman's golf championship tournament at the Belle Haven Country Club yesterday, defeating Mrs. R. A. Dawes, 7 and 6, in the final round of the first flight. This flight was composed of the eight women with the lowest qualifying scores.

The second flight honors were annexed by Mrs. G. L. Boothe 2d, who defeated Miss Laura Hulfish, 6 and 5. Mrs. Boothe was club champion in 1929. Mrs. L. S. Scott won the third flight, known as the "defeated eight" in the qualifying round, winning from Mrs. L. A. Wood, 5 and 4. Handsome trophies were presented to the victors.

The men's championship golf tourney at the Belle Haven Club has entered the second round. Tom Ryan, golf professional, today announced the following pairings: C. C. Brown vs. B. Herring, B. L. Howell vs. L. A. Wood, C. Rollins vs. Maj. Stacey, E. E. Sebrell, jr., vs. Col. Pipes. The finals will be played over 36 holes on October 12.

Norman E. Simpson has been elected president of the Odd Fellows Bowling League. Matches between the eight teams will start at the Alexandria Health Center next Monday.

Head Coach Bick Cardwell, of Episcopal High School, will carry his entire squad to Fort Defiance Saturday for their annual game against the Augusta Military Academy Team. The Seminary Hill boys stand two up in victories for the season as they have defeated Eastern and Tech Elevens of Washington.

Engine Co. No. 5 Football Team will meet Battery "B," of Fort Myer, in a game Sunday afternoon on Haydon's Field. A special drill for the fire fighters has been called for Thursday evening by Manager Cleveland Shaw.

Charlie Tompkins, director of athletics for the smaller boys at Episcopal High School, has schedule the following games: The 135-pound team will meet Swaverly Preparatory School October 21. On November 1 they will play Gilman County School, while on November 22 they mix with the Woodberry Forest Academy Eleven.

It was announced that the Episcopal "B" squad would oppose Randolph-Macon Academy on November 14. The game will be played on Hoxton field.

Fighting Virginians Meet Penn Saturday

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 8.—Virginia's line men appear to have snapped out of the slump they were in against Duke at Durham last Saturday. In practices this week they have shown that much may be expected of them when they face Pennsylvania in Philadelphia Saturday.

"Into the backfield!" was the cry of the varsity forwards in their scrimmages against the reserves. There has been plenty of this rough work, for the coaches want to have their charges keyed to a fighting pitch when they go out on Franklin Field.

Coach Abell has not let his men know just who will be in the starting line-up against the Quakers. Orrick and St. Clair, ends; Capt. Motley and Pons, tackles; Cameron and De Butts, guards, and Gentry, center, opened the Duke game, but there may be an entirely different assortment in action this week-end.

The men playing in the kick-off will probably be those who show the most fight in scrimmages this week. Guards, tackles and centers who charge hard and swiftly will get the call.

Mrs. Haynes Reaches M. A. Golf Semifinals

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Oct. 8.—It will be Washington versus Baltimore in the upper half of the championship flight in the Middle Atlantic women's golf championship tournament as the result of today's second round matches on the Elkridge Hunt Club course. Mrs. J. Margaret Haynes, Columbia Country Club, Washington, and Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, of the host club, both former holders of the sectional crown, will battle for the right to play for the main laurels.

Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson, of the Green Spring Valley Club, fought Mrs. Haynes closely for twelve holes, but the former wabbled a trifle after this and her Washington opponent, playing steady golf, won at the sixteenth.

In the other semifinal match tomorrow, Mrs. W. B. Hurst, jr., will play Mrs. M. L. Bell.

First sixteen—Mrs. J. M. Haynes, Columbia, defeated Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson, Gren Spring Valley, 3 and 2.

Second sixteen—Mrs. F. R. Keefer, Chevy Chase, defeated Mrs. H. A. Knox, Congressional, 2 and 1; Mrs. E. M. McClelland, Manor, defeated Mrs. D. C. Wharton Smith, Elkridge, 2 and 1.

Regular Bobcat Backs May Be Ready for G. U.

Special to The Washington Post.

Buckhannon, W. Va., Oct. 8.—The entire practice session of today's workout for West Virginia Wesleyan was spent in an attempt to improve a comparatively weak forward passing attack. Coach Cebe Ross is vainly trying to bolster the Bobcat offensive for their first night football game with Georgetown University at Griffith Stadium, Friday evening.

The first eleven worked against the second team, using the forward passing attack on every play, with Battles, Beveridge, Hall, Post and Rhodes heaving the leather. The Methodist gridders are still in none too perfect condition, and Coach Ross may be forced to start an eleven dotted with substitutes. However the big guns of the backfield combination are expected to come around in shape before the nocturnal tangle at the American League ball park.

MARYLAND U. FEARED BY TARHEELS

Special to The Washington Post.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 8.—Hard games with Georgia, Tennessee and Georgia Tech are just around the corner, but the North Carolina grid warriors aren't thinking about those things, for the Maryland game here Saturday looks tough enough in itself. The Tarheels, with their star backs and weak line, with a big question mark for total strength, thought enough of the Maryland-Yale game. What Mr. Fetzer saw and related has put the Tarheels on their hardest week of training of the current season.

Maryland played Yale on even terms, except when the All-American Booth was in the Yale back field. Coach Fetzer reports. Maryland also made fourteen first downs against Yale's sixteen. The Old Liners got all the bad breaks. Once Berger dropped a forward pass on a sure touchdown behind Yale's goal, then Booth came back and moved the ball for a touchdown on about three plays—a difference of 14 points.

Maryland held Yale to 21-13 until the last quarter, when a desperate passing attack worked to Yale's advantage. The Maryland team, with a 178-pound line, and a fast, shifty set of backs, three of whom are good passers, is more powerful and versatile than last year.

The backs aren't as seasoned as last year, but Woods, Chalmers, Berger and Hoppelman, with the speedy Evans in reserve, make up one of Maryland's most versatile and powerful quartets in years.

Hayden, guard, and Norris, end, have yet to win their spurs, but the rest of the line looks strong. Pease is a great end, Fisher and Carlis are veteran tackles outstanding on defense, Krajovic is an outstanding offensive guard and Hayden, guard, and Faver, center, are reported to be mighty strong around the center bulwarks.

The Carolina coaches expect a hard game and are drilling their charges accordingly, especially the Tarheel line, which looked weak in Carolina's 39-21 win over V. P. I. last Saturday.

V. P. I. SHIFTS DUE AGAINST VANDERBILT

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Oct. 8.—New plays in the line-up and new plays in the bag of tricks are on tap at Virginia Polytechnic on the eve of Poly's first gridiron battle with Vanderbilt, at Nashville Saturday. Coaches Neal and Clark, of the Cobblers feel that it is time to do lots of things when they are called upon to match wits with Dan McGugin and a team of Commodores that romped on Minnesota by four touchdowns. So new ground gaining tactics will be ready for use against the powerful Tennesseeans and new gridmen will be on deck to fire at the Commodore sloop.

Bill Grinus played such a steady and aggressive game at tackle when injected into the Carolina fray that he is being groomed for duty at Nashville. Another sophomore, Red Kasun, came through with sparkling ball at guard in the Tuesday scrimmage to add to his pleasing performance against the Tarheels and will be given plenty of chance to match his speed against the heavy Vandy guards. Buck Chandler was another shining light in the thriller with the Tarheels and may land a first string wing job on the right flank.

Priming Man for Games Of Future.

Besides giving these promising youngsters a chance against the McGugin clan of gridiron pace setters, Neal will be priming them for the tough battles with William and Mary and Davidson prior to Poly's drive against State rivals in November.

Coach Henry Redd's wily batch of freshman ball toters pranced into the stadium for a midweek drive against the varsity defenses. The youngsters tossed passes to all corners of the field while Neal sought with might and main to fashion a defense against the inevitable overhead game of Dan McGugin. Efforts are being redoubled to find a capable secondary defense which was nowhere to be found when the Tar Heels buried Tech hopes last week. The tackling dummies are laid away this week, too, and Polytech's gridmen are cutting down live ball carriers instead. A better tackling eleven will invade the Commodore lair.

AZTECS TO MEET SALBS.

The Gallaudet gridiron will be the scene of a game next Sunday between the Aztec Athletic Club and the Salb Eleven. Hostilities will start at 1 o'clock.

UNITEDS WIN SOCCER GAME

Gain Revenge Over H. M. S. Danae Crew, 3-2.

THE British United Soccer Team gained revenge yesterday for the defeat it suffered last Sunday at the hands of the team from the H. M. S. Danae, when it defeated the Sailors in a return game by the score of 3-2.

The game was slower than Sunday's because of the fact that several new and partially inexperienced men were put on the field by the shipmen for seasoning purposes. The defense of the Sailors was of a quality inferior to that presented in their last appearance. On the other hand, the British United aggregation was strengthened by the acquisition of McRyan, a newcomer to local soccer ranks.

The Navy team was off to a commanding lead in the early part of the first half when Richardson booted two placements past Taylor. The Burton brothers committed the fouls, both being of the ball handling variety. But here the experience and the superior drive of the eventual winners began to tell. Before the half was ended the score had been knotted, with Knight and McRyan evening matters.

EARNSHAW'S WORK RECALLS MATHEWSON'S DEEDS

Mack Hurler Masters Foes Throughout Series.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The great right arm of George Livingston Earnshaw and the dynamite in the bats of his teammates, exploding with devastating effect all over the premises, today swept the Philadelphia Athletics to their second successive world's championship and their fifth under leadership of Connie Mack.

While the 67-year-old patriarch of baseball sat serene and quiet on the bench, in solitary dignity among a flock of wildly excited ball players, the Athletics put on a power-plus exhibition of baseball to rout the St. Louis Cardinals 7 to 1 in the sixth game of the world's series.

The victory gave the Athletics the series by a margin of four games to two as they forced their previous conqueror, Wild Bill Hallahan, from the box after two innings and hammered three of the four Cardinal pitchers for seven smashing hits.

A's Make Hits Mean Runs.

On the same field where they made five extra base drives account for as many runs in the opening game rout of Burleigh Grimes, the Athletics today collected five doubles and two home runs, one by Al Simmons and the other by Jimmy Dykes, to roll up a total of 18 bases and seven runs.

Staggering back from the terrific force of this high explosive bombardment, the Cardinals were subdued for the second straight game by the fast ball pitching of Earnshaw, who blanked them for eight successive innings as he completed one of the greatest pitching exhibitions in world's series history.

With only a day's travel from St Louis to Philadelphia for rest, Earnshaw returned to the mound and mastered the National League champions with the same skill and effectiveness he showed in whipping them in the second game here and in holding them scoreless for seven straight innings in the crucial first game at St. Louis Monday afternoon.

Great Record Is Made By Earnshaw.

Only the fact that he was withdrawn for a pinch hitter in the fifth game, which Robert Moses Grove finished and received official credit for winning, prevented Earnshaw from scoring three straight victories and placing his name in the hall of fame that already lists Christy Mathewson, Jack Combs, Babe Adams and Stanley Coveleskie.

In twirling the better part of three of the six games, 25 innings altogether, Earnshaw held the clouting Cardinals to the meager total of thirteen safe hits and two runs. From the third inning of the second game until the ninth inning this afternon, Earnshaw pitched shut-out ball over a stretch of 22 consecutive innings.

Not since Christy Mathewson blanked the Athletics three times in the world series in 1905 has any pitcher shown such complete mastery over his opponents, nor given a more brilliant and courageous exhibition.

Throughout the series, the big right-hander and former Swarthmore College star was troubled with a right foot that was sore from the effects of a stone bruise. He aggravated the injury in the second game and today he frequently took his shoe off between innings to let the trainer massage his foot.

Two-Man Staff Beats Cards.

Until he tired toward the end of the game, Earnshaw was invincible, overpowering the Cardinals with tremendous speed and baffling curves, mixed with a change of pace. He allowed only three hits in the first eight innings, meanwhile striking out six men, and yielded the only Cardinal run in the ninth on hits by Andy High and Chick Hafey, the latter banging out his second double of the game.

Thus the famous two-man staff of the Athletics, Earnshaw and Grove, with Earnshaw enacting the role of senior partner, completed the conquest in the fashion more brilliantly convincing than even their warmest admirers expected them to do. Grove, the fireball left-hander, won the first game, lost the fourth in a close duel with Jess Haines, but received credit for winning the fifth, checking the Cardinals in the last two innings as Earnshaw's successor, while Jimmy Foxx's home run settled the issue.

Grove spent most of this afternoon out in the bull pen, warming up for any emergency that might arise. He was ready for the rescue act at any time, but as the Athletics' bats beat a happy tune and Earnshaw's arm continued to perform pitching magic, the famous southpaw found no opportunity to step in.

Earnshaw Races To Dugout.

Earnshaw, after surviving the brief Cardinal outbreak in the ninth, waited for Bing Miller to bring in the last ball for him and then raced to the dugout to escape the wild rush of fans, scrambling to the field. The crowd of 32,295 spectators arose at the finish to give the big right-hander one of the most vociferous ovations any world's series hero has been accorded since the great Walter Johnson strode victoriously off the mound in 1924 in Washington.

Earnshaw's pitching masterpiece, in hurling sixteen of the last eighteen innings for the A's, was the climax of a triumph that forced even the conservative leader, Mack, to admit for the first time that this was a "great team," comparable to the machine with which he won three world's championships in four years, 1910, 1911 and 1913, before it was beaten by the Braves in 1914, and subsequently broken up.

This was Mack's fifth world's championship triumph in seven battles with the forces of the National League and the most sensational of them all, for the A's were compelled to make a spectacular fight to overcome the Cardinals after the Red Birds had tied the series at two games each in a great come-back of their own.

Fourth Successive Win For Younger League.

It was also the fourth consecutive victory for the American League, due to the performances of two super teams, first the Yankees in 1927-28 and now the Athletics of 1929-30. These Eastern clubs have now won sixteen of the last nineteen world's series contests. Also, for the third time, the American League has registered its fourth world's championship conquest in a row over the older rival.

Connie Mack already had held the all-time record with four world's series triumphs, and his fifth put him "two up" on his only living managerial rival, John McGraw, as well as the record of the late Miller Huggins of the Yankees.

Any lingering suspense and doubt about the outcome today was quickly removed as the Athletics went on their wildest hitting rampage of the series and scored their most one-sided victory. Bats of such players as Jimmy Dykes and Bing Miller, silent for days; war clubs of such consistent sluggers as Al Simmons, Micky Cochrane and Jimmy Foxx kept up a steady drum fire of extra base hits for the first six innings. It was all over but the shouting then.

Athletic Sluggers Do Their Stuff.

In three previous games the only solid and substantial smash of the Athletic bats was Foxx's sensational home run in the ninth inning of the fifth game. Today all the heavy hitters took a turn at the long-range stuff. Dykes, hitherto a "goat" because of his fielding lapses, had a perfect day at bat with a double, home run and two passes. Simmons hit his second homer of the series. Foxx and Cochrane contributed doubles and Bing Miller a brace of them. Hallahan, who blanked the A's in the third game, was really Wild Bill today, as he lasted only two innings, during which he yielded two hits, three bases on balls, and hit one batsman.

With one out in the opening frame, Dykes walked and scored on Cochrane's two-base smash that caromed off Bottomley's glove and eluded Watkins, rolling to the right-field wall. Micky galloped to third on the error and scored on Miller's double.

Hallahan got past the second without further damage, despite hitting Bishop and again passing Dykes, but Simmons greeted Sylvester Johnson, a right-hander, with a home run into the left field bleachers in the third inning. Miller followed with his second double and the only hit that the Athletics wasted. Johnson passed Bishop in the fourth and Dykes then hit a line drive into the lower left-field stands for a homer and two more runs. Foxx's double in the fifth, followed by sacrifice hits by Miller and Haas, put over the sixth Philadelphia run.

Lindsey, Bell Finish For Cards.

Johnson gave way to a pinch hitter and Big Jim Lindsey was on the mound in the sixth when Bishop walked, raced to third on Dykes' booming double and scored on Cochrane's sacrifice fly with the last Athletic tally.

Lindsey, in the eighth, and Herman Bell, pitching in the ninth as the fourth Cardinal moundsman, retired the A's in order.

Meanwhile, off Earnshaw, only two Cardinals got as far as second base in the first eight innings. George Fisher, pinch hitting for Hallahan, doubled in the third, and Hafey doubled in the seventh, after which Bottomley walked, but these were the only Cardinal scoring threats until they averted a shutout in the ninth, when hits by High and Hafey, interspersed with two walks, produced only one run.

Bottomley, when he took three swings in the second inning, fanned for the ninth time in the series, but escaped the ignominy of striking out further and for the tenth time to equal the 1921 record of George Kelly, of the Giants. Sunny Jim was mowed down the Cardinal batting order, from fourth to sixth, in a last-minute shake-up by Manager Gabby Street, but it did no good.

The Events Leading Up to the Tragedy —By H. T. Webster

series with only one hit, achieved several days ago, and when he struck out in the second inning for the ninth time of the series, there were fluttering sounds all up and down the press row as the satisticians—those birds of ill omen who get up odd and unimportant records—rifled their books to discover that he was crowding the world's series record of George Kelly, another first baseman, now of the Cubs.

George Kelly's Record Recalled.

When Mr. Kelly was with the Giants some years ago, he struck out ten times in one of those series between the Giants and the Yankees. The record seemed likely to fall today and anticipation lit the faces of the statisticians with a grewsome glow as the game went on. But Bottomley presently drew two bases on balls and was revealed as having been on bases only three times in 25 opportunities. On this sorrowing young man's behalf, let it be said that he had played a long time with a bruise on one of his hands which hampered his stroke and cost him many demerits on his report card.

George Fisher hit for Hallahan in the third inning and boosted one out into a blank spot between Moore in left and Simmons in center, a double, and the first intrusion on Earnshaw's authority. But there were two out then and there was no profit for the Cardinals, for Douthit, the next hitter, couldn't develop the attack.

There was a faint sun glow on the field the early part of the afternoon, but the air was clammy, with a premonition of real autumn, and the players, when they took their benches, drew their leather jackets about them at once.

Sylvester Johnson relieved Hallahan, and Al Simmons, his first hitter, saluted him rudely with a high home run to the upper tier of the left field bleachers. Chick Hafey backed up to the wall and stood there, pensively scratching his back on the rough concrete as the ball sailed by him to drop among the patrons. A bit of an uproar, not quite a tumult, celebrated this wallop. Bing Miller took the liberty of doubling a moment later, but this was a purely incidental exploit, for he merely stalled around, waiting for a lift, until three were out.

Frisch Hits Single In Fourth.

Frisch hit a single in the fourth, but two were out at the time and Hafey failed him with a fly to Mule Haas, a young man who has been responsible for much of the vulgarity in the repartee between the clubs all through the series. All of Mr. Haas' remarks to the opposition have been in consummate bad taste, but now that the series is over, the boys probably will carry over no ill feeling. The insult seems to be the standard coin in the conversation from bench to bench in the world series.

Not that the situation required any more scoring. Dykes sent a home run, driving low and on a flat line into the left-field bleachers in the fourth, scoring Max Bishop, who had walked. The Athletics had five now and the customers were beginning to frisk their pockets for old letters to read.

Two More Pitchers Are Used.

Two more pitchers, Jim Lindsey and Herman Bell, came up from the Cardinals' dugout, blinking and apprehensive, to see the thing through in short spells of work. The details would be only the details of a very common ball game and there seems no call for all these trivialities, besides which a big blast off the Atlantic has just blown half the literature and notes out of this press coop down onto the ball yard, where the keepers are gathering into burlap sacks, which may be where it belongs after all.

The Shibe boys, owners of the Athletics, having hired no band to adorn their show, a small cluster of free-lance horn-tooters in plum-colored uniforms, suddenly bobbed up among the upper-deck trade during the seventh-inning yawn to tootle a mournful medley of the St. Louis Blues, the Stein Song and Chopin's Dirge. The Stein Song was included because it makes people feel bad.

The athletes of both clubs, with few exceptions, are now hospitable to any and all offers of employment in the allied arts of literature and the drama. The market for ball players' memoirs and opinions has been off several points this year and one of the big entertainment syndicates recently decided to bar them from the stage and screen on the ground that they can't act, sing, dance or otherwise justify their hire. It looks as though the athletes have been debunked for the time being.

Having run through six games, the world series has been a sound financial success, but socially the Philadelphia show has been something of a bust. One reason was that the Shibe boys' stage management provided no festive effects, but the real explanation lies in the general disinclination of out-of-town persons ever to let the sun go down on them in Philadelphia, the city of terrible nights.

GUNNERS VS. VIRGINIA A. C.

The Seaman Gunners Eleven will clash with the Virginia Athletic Club's unlimited team next Sunday at Alexandria. The contest will be played on Shipyard Field and will get under way at 2:30 o'clock.

HIGH TEAMS TO BE BUSY TOMORROW

Central, Business, Eastern, Western to See Action.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

RUMORS that he is about to step out of his coaching shoes at the expiration of the present football season are as unfounded, Coach Ty Rauber of Central, states, as the rumor that Central will be able to put as good a team on the field tomorrow against St. John's as is its wont.

Colella and Cumberland, two of Ty's better ball carriers, are out—Cumberland with a twisted ankle and Colella because of general battering received in the John Marshall tussle last Saturday. Morgan and Johnson, Ty's regular center and left tackle, also will be among the missing, temporary injuries inflicted by the Virginia heavyweights being the cause.

Central Boasts Good Reserve Strength.

Central's reserve strength is expected to handle Paully Byrne's Saints without undue effort. Juliano and Quigley loom as the only material on Byrne's green squad capable of storming Central's last white line. The Saints will be forced to take to the air to offset the weight of the Hill Dwellers.

Eastern will play host to the National Training School's Crandall-coached team tomorrow afternoon at Eastern Field. Little has been seen of the alleged incorrigibles, but rumors of the general skill of the Blandensburg road squad and the particular thrust of Capt. Kiski bodes no good for the Lincoln Parkers.

It seems to me that the most interesting encounter tomorrow is the game between Business and Gonzaga, to be played at Gonzaga's stadium. Gonzaga should win by about 12 to 6, but a break or two could well reverse the count.

Business must depend on Bill Duryee to gain its ground and Capt. Levy to keep Gonzaga from doing just that.

Western plays its first game of the season, and perhaps its hardest, tomorrow in Ballston against Washington-Lee High. Handicapped by poor practice facilities and much green material, Coach Ahern must expect a defeat. This W-L bunch is fast and as heavy as many a college varsity.

Philadelphia in Frenzy Over Series Triumph

Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Philadelphia whooped it up for the world's champion Athletics today. As soon as word of the 7-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals reached the central city section, confetti and ticker tape began to fall in great showers from buildings between Eleventh and Fifteenth streets and Spruce and Vine streets. A number of impromptu parades were held on Market, Chestnut and Broad streets, and at every street corner groups of fans were gathered, slapping each other on the shoulders and singing the praises of big George Earnshaw and Connie Mack.

It was the greatest evidence of "baseball-mindedness" and enthusiasm that this city has shown for years. No such demonstrations marked the winning of the championship last year, when the A's ran roughshod over the Chicago Cubs. The celebration today had all the earmarks of spontaneity and all the frenzy of extreme delight. From ordinarily quiet and dignified midtown offices came telephone directories torn to shreds, while umbrellas, festooned with ticker tape, tissue paper and telephone books drifted down like lost parachutes yond recall by the Cardinals in the face of Earnshaw's mastery that was evident from the start.

Athletics Win World Title For Second Straight Time

Al Simmons and Jimmy Dykes were today's home run heroes, and they injected a novel note in the circuit clouting here, for it was to left field that they sent their shots, Simmons' in the third inning with none on base and Dykes' in the fourth with Bishop resting on first.

Dykes, "goat" of the third game, could do no wrong today. Prolonged cheers greeted his every appearance at the plate, a tremendous salvo that seemed to say, "Welcome home, all is forgiven." And he had a perfect day at the plate with a double in the sixth tacked onto his home run and two bases on balls marking his first two times at bat. Bing Miller, too, awoke from his batting lethargy and responded with two doubles, and doubles were also hit by Bishop and Cochrane.

But Earnshaw was simply invincible. He was the picture of confidence out there on the mound and in his work was the poetry of motion, the pinnacle of art. The suave rapidity of his fast ball took a toll of six strikeouts and he faced each batter with a deliberate ease that almost bespoke his ability.

Gray Day Assists Earnshaw.

The gray day that caused the crowd to cling to their overcoats was conducive to Earnshaw's fire balling, and he cut loose from the start with a sweeping overhead delivery that sent the balls thudding into Mickey Cochrane's mitt. Deliberately, almost before each pitch, he smoothed the rubber and dug his toe into the dirt, the better to inject the last ounce of his strength into the offerings that he served to the plate.

He allowed only three hits in those first eight innings, one double and two singles, but not a safety did he allow until two were out in each inning and the danger of a Cardinal threat greatly minimized. He was solved in the ninth by a single from the bat of Andy High and a double by Chick Hafey that accounted for the only Cardinal run, cheating him out of a shut-out, but never threatening to beat him out of the game. The ninth inning halted a streak of 22 consecutive scoreless innings that Earnshaw had registered against the Cardinals in his three games.

Connie Mack did shift to the edge of his seat in the dugout during that brief ninth-inning flurry, however, and in the common custom of the major leagues, he waved Lefty Grove to the warm-up box, as if to take no chances with the ball games despite the seven-run lead that his hirelings had compiled. But a double play helped to tide Earnshaw over the inning and when Wilson flied to Miller the ball game and the series were made safe for Philadelphia.

Crowd Enjoys Clowns' Antics.

There was no hint of the rain that had been predicted when the pre-game ceremonies were over. The Philadelphia fans had taken their own good time in arriving at the park, but the 2,000 poachers on the Twentieth street roofs were in their seats early, watching with avid interest the tomfoolery of Al Schacht and Nick Altrock.

It was Earnshaw for the Athletics and Hallahan for the Cardinals, it was ascertained from the tin horns that blared forth the batteries from center field. Connie Mack had turned to the big righthander in this hour of need while Gabby Street had made the announcement of Hallahan's nomination last Monday night in St. Louis.

The field crew curried the diamond and the conference of umpires and captains at the plate over, Earnshaw took his place in the box, Douthit at the plate and the sixth game of the world series was on.

Gabby Street had shaken up his batting order, placing Watkins in third position and dropping Frisch to the clean-up role. Jimmy Bottomley, who had made but one hit in the five games thus far, was lowered to sixth place in recognition of his puerile efforts with the stick.

Earnshaw's strike-out prowess was quickly evident. Douthit went out on three pitched balls after a preliminary thrill in which he sent a foul high into foul territory in left field. Adams rolled tamely to Foxx, and Watkins, hero of the home run in the second game here, was Earnshaw's second strikeout foil of the inning with three straight futile swings.

Athletics Immediately Start Hitting.

Then, with little warning, the Athletics won the ball game in their very first appearance at the plate. It was a heart-breaker for Hallahan, as an error by Watkins aided the Athletics to deposit those two runs in Connie Mack's lap.

Bishop was out on a pop to Frisch, but Hallahan walked Dykes, bringing Cochrane to the plate, a situation offering possibilities which developed when the catcher leaned against a curve and careened it to right field. Bottomley barely tipped the ball with his upstretched glove and it rolled into foul territory. When Watkins played it poorly, his throw to the infield found Cochrane perched on third base with Dykes already over the plate with the first run of the ball game which would not have eventuated then with proper handling of the ball by the rightfielder.

There was relief in the St. Louis dugout when Simmons struck out on a low curve. Hallahan had pitched carefully to the slugger and had not offered him a good ball. Then the Cards got a "break." Jimmy Foxx topped one down the third-base line and Hallahan slipped as he attempted to field it while Cochrane raced home, but the ball rolled foul, and danger for the moment was averted. But Foxx eventually walked and great was the delight when Bing Miller poled a double to dead right field that scored Cochrane with the second run of the inning and put Foxx on third.

Jim Moore was up next. This Texas League recruit was in the game in place of the weak-hitting Haas and was in right field. Al Simmons moving over to center. He hit one ball full on the nose and more runs loomed but Douthit camped under the fly and the inning was over.

Hallahan was in trouble again in the second after two were out, but no runs resulted. Gelbert disposed of Boley's grounder and Earnshaw watched a third strike, but the little Cardinal southpaw hit Bishop on the arm. A moment later Bishop was perched on second when Jimmy Wilson allowed a curve to get away from him for a passed ball. Hallahan appeared unsteady and walked Dykes. The situation took an ominous turn with Cochrane at bat but it fizzled when Sparky Adams gathered in his foul pop.

Street injected the first strategical bit into the ball game when he lifted Hallahan for a pinch hitter in the second inning, and sent Sylvester Johnson, erstwhile Detroit Tiger, in to pitch in the Athletics' third. Hallahan had not impressed the grizzled Cardinal manager in those first two innings when the A's were hitting the ball hard, even if all their wallops were not safe.

Johnson had held the Athletics hitless in a two-inning relief role in the opening game here, but today was another day.

Al Simmons was the first batter to face the erstwhile Tiger and the count was 2 and 2 on the slugger, who likes to act like Ty Cobb. He caught a pitch on the full face of his bat. It was high and outside. High and outside the park. It was a mighty kiss, far over the outfield into the lap of some customer in the second tier of the left-field pavilion for a home run and the Athletics' third run of the ball game.

Bing Miller later came through with a double and portended more trouble for Johnson but Moore struck out and Boley flied to Watkins.

Johnson was again initiated into the home-run habits of the local boys in the fourth by Jimmy Dykes. Earnshaw had struck out again, but Bishop was on first after having worried a walk out of the right-hander.

Dykes atoned in part for his grievous error in the third game by delivering two more runs unto Manager Mack with a home run that sailed on a line, a straight line, into the left field pavilion, while Hafey, who had waited for the clout to bounce back off the wall, threw his glove in token of disgust as the pellet climbed into the stands and Dykes did a two-step as he scored behind Bishop with the fourth and fifth runs.

Jimmy Foxx served notice of more trouble for Johnson in the fifth when he led off with a double over second base that Frankie Frisch almost reached. He took third when Miller laid down the conventional sacrifice bunt to Johnson and Haas brought Foxx home with the Athletics' sixth run on a long fly to Douthit. The center fielder's perfect throw was three steps too late to catch the flying Foxx.

Lindsey Faces A's In Sixth.

The Athletics found Lindsey in the box in the sixth. Johnson had been removed for Street's second pinch hitter. Lindsey was another two-inning hero of the opening game. High was on third base, having supplanted Sparky Adams. Max Bishop dug a pitfall for Lindsey by drawing his third walk of the game after Earnshaw had been retired and Dykes supplied the power that moved Bishop to third, a long double to center, his second consecutive extra base hit. Bishop rode home with the Athletics' seventh and final run of the game a moment later when Cochrane sent a deep sacrifice fly to Douthit.

Before the game was over, the Athletics had seen another St. Louis pitcher in action. He was Herman Bell, a veteran of the Cardinal fold, who twirled in the eighth and ninth and escaped with no hits registered.

Not until the third inning did the Cardinals make a hit off Earnshaw and he had registered three strikeouts. Then it was with two out that George Fisher, pinch hitter for Hallahan, lined a double to left field, but Douthit was a victim of Boley's arm and any danger of a threat was averted.

The second St. Louis hit was noted in the fourth, again with two batters out. It was a line single to left field by Frankie Frisch, who perished on first, while Hafey sent a fly to Simmons. Earnshaw was in complete command in fifth and sixth, retiring the Cardinals in one-two-three order and disposing of Blades, pinch-hitting for Johnson, by the strike-out method.

Hafey Makes Double To Left.

The Cardinals made another hit in the seventh when Hafey doubled to left with two out and two Cardinals were on base for the first time in the ball game when Bottomley drew a walk, but Earnshaw forced Wilson to pop a foul to Cochrane who caught the ball near the dugout after waiting long for its descent and going into a butterfly flutter ere he made the catch.

Only the appearance of another pinch hitter, Orsatti, distinguished the Cardinals' eighth, and Jimmy Foxx disposed of him with a clever catch of his hopper and beat the Cardinal to the bag.

Then came the ninth and the lone cause for the Cardinals to rejoice. They cheated Earnshaw of a shut-out after being held to three hits for eight innings. Andy High, hero of the Cardinals' drive against Brooklyn in the waning days of the National League season, led off with a long single to right that Miller fielded quickly. Earnshaw walked Watkins, the second time during the game that the Cardinals had two men on base simultaneously.

Here the Athletics got a break. Frank Frisch made a valiant bid for a hit and lined a pitch to almost dead right that seemed certain to go for extra bases. But Jimmy Foxx flung his mitt into the path of the ball to make a spectacular stab and he raced to the bag, beating Watkins by a step to complete a most timely double play. Earnshaw, however, appeared to be tiring. He walked Bottomley for the second time and there were still two on base, but he got rid of Wilson on a fly to Miller, who galloped into the pitcher's box to present to Earnshaw, in a gracious gesture, the last pitched ball of the big right-hander's second and all-decisive victory of the series.

BACKER GETS JAIL IN DANVILLE STRIKE

MILLS WARN UTILITIES

Danville, Va., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Marvin J. Mahone, who gave Richmond as his address, today was fined $50 and sentenced to three months in jail on charges of attempting to incite Danville textile strikers to dynamite their former place of employment.

Mahone, who appeared before Police Justice Charles K. Crater, noted an appeal. Mahone, it was testified, advised pickets at one of the Dan River and Riverside mills to "get some dynamite and blow up the mills," if they could not win the strike by other means.

Mahone arrived in Danville on September 30, he said, the day after the 4,000 employes of the mills went on strike. He admitted expressing sympathy for them, but denied he had suggested violence.

The case of William R. Murdock, vice president of the National Textile Workers Union, who was arrested for distributing dodgers which police held to be libelous and conducive to violence, was continued until Friday, while police checked his past movements.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 8.—The city of Danville became involved in the textile strike here this evening when the manager of the gas, water and electric plants received a letter from the mill management stating that it would not be responsible for bills for these services accumulated by strikers living in 125 company houses.

Under existing ordinances service is suspended after ten days, but since the cutting off of the water might imperil the city's health the policy of the city government on this unexpected question will be dealt with at the council meeting on Friday night.

New Great Lakes-Sea Highway Is Discussed

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 8.—Formation of a State organization to join in establishing a highway from the Great Lakes through Ohio, West Virginia and Virginia to the seaboard at Norfolk, Va., was discussed at a meeting here yesterday by motorists.

The route, as planned, would start at Sistersville, follow route 18 to West Union, thence to Clarksburg via route 50, to Buckhannon via route 22 and thence via route 5 through Elkins and the Monongahela National Forest to the State line. It would be known as the Shenandoah Trail. Similar meetings have been held at Sistersville, Buckhannon, Elkins and other points.

Oakland, Md., Oct. 8.—Tod Funk, suffering gunshot wounds, and Benjamin Bolyard were lodged in jail at Kingwood, W. Va., charged with attempting to steal a stand of bees in Reno District, Preston County, not far from the Maryland line.

The men, it is alleged, visited the home of the late M. M. Ridenour, and Miss Ridenour, a daughter, fired a shotgun charge into Funk. They were discovered by Miss Ridenour as they were about to remove the stand of bees, it is alleged.

Marriage of Couple Revealed.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 8 (Special).—L. Marshall Kremer, this city, and Miss Virginia Bywaters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bywaters, Opequon, Va., were married Monday at Stephens City by the Rev. SIMMONS' LETTERS KINDERGARTEN PLAN SIMPLIFY STAND ON Representative Says Schools May Go On Regardless of Attendance.

WILL USE ONE TEACHER IN CLASSES OF ONLY 25

Board Will Seek Funds for Free Textbooks for Night Students.

A new slant on the kindergarten situation was given the Board of Education yesterday when recent correspondence between Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou and Representative Robert G. Simmons, chairman of the House subcommittee on District appropriations, was made public.

The letters revealed that the superintendent and the board have been under the misapprehension that one-teacher kindergartens would have to be abandoned if the average daily attendance fell below the standard of 25 pupils set up by the House conferees.

Representative Simmons, in letters sent last week to Superintendent Ballou, explained that this was not the intention of the conferees. He added that the board is free to continue the one-teacher kindergartens even if the enrollment falls below 25.

The attention of Representative Simmons was first drawn to the fact that school officials were under a misapprehension when he was sent a newspaper clipping containing the following paragraph, according to a quotation by Representative Simmons:

Newspaper Clipipng Quoted.

"Under the policy adopted by the school officers, every kindergarten which was in existence at the close of school in June will be reopened tomorrow (Monday, September 22), to continue until October 14. If by that date any class can not show an average daily attendance of 25 pupils it is to be eliminated and its teachers transferred to elementary vacancies."

In his letter to Dr. Ballou, Mr. Simmons said:

"I thought that the conferees made it plain that where the average daily attendance was under 25 the second teacher should be eliminated and one teacher handle the class. I know of no proposal by any one that would call for the elimination of a kindergarten class under those circumstances except under circumstances where the school authorities would be closing the class in any event because of reduced attendance."

Ballou Answers Letter.

In answer to the letter from Representative Simmons, Dr. Ballou said: "We are very much pleased to learn from your letter that perhaps we are not taking as liberal a view of the conference agreements as you would have us take. Unless we here from you to the contrary, we shall be very glad to proceed along the line that you have indicated which we construe to be that one-teacher kindergartens already well established need not be abandoned, even if the average daily attndance falls below the standard of 25 pupils set up by the conferees."

Answering this in a letter of October 4, Representative Simmons said: "This is distinctly what my understanding of the agreement with the conferees is. Of course, if the attendance at a kindergarten school is so low that it would have been closed without regard to the action taken by the commttee last year, it should be closed now."

All the correspondence is to be considered by the board at a meeting next Wednesday, when the kindergarten situation will be threshed out. Until Representative Simmons made himself clear on the matter, the Board of Education intended recommending elimination of some of the kindergartens, it is understood.

The corersponddence was made public on motion of Rabbi Abram Simon after Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle and other members insisted that the letters be given the "widest publicity."

Free Text Books in Night Schools.

Free text books for night schools loomed as a possibility after President Charles F. Carusi announced that he could see nothing in the free text book act that precluded the night schools from the privilege of receiving free books. The board made a motion that an appropriation be requested to supply the night schools with books.

Night schools came again into the limelight of yesterday's meeting when the question arose whether to employ retired teachers in night schools. After some discussion, it was decided that active teachers be given the preference at all times. Superintendent Ballou expressed the opinion that there are sufficient active teachers waiting places without employing those who are retired.

The question also arose as to whether disabled persons should be admitted to the teachers colleges. It was decided that as long as the quota at the institutions is not filled that such persons could be admitted.

Reinstatement Case Hearings.

President Carusi was instrumental in bringing about the passage of a motion which will give hearings to teachers before the personnel committee in reinstatement cases. President Carusi recommended that teachers be given a hearing before any action is taken in either denying or permitting reinstatement.

President Carusi was also instrumental in bringing the passage of another action which will make it necessary for Superintendent Ballou to communicate with the parents of children who are adjudged noneducable. It was recommended that Dr. Ballou communicate with the parents before action is taken. Dr. Ballou intimated that he disliked the idea of doing this, as it would involve considerable embarrassment as well as an additional burden of work. Approximately 75 children a year are excused from school for mental reasons.

The board designated Dr. W. P. Hay, head of the department of biology and chemistry of the public schools, to represent the schools in withdrawing alcohol for use in chemical and biology laboratories.

SCORE TO BE CALLED IN CAMPBELL TRIAL

GODDARD MAIN WITNESS

Preparations for the Government's case against Herbert M. Campbell in the murder of Mary E. Baker will be started today by Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, head of the homicide squad, and William H. Collins, assistant United States attorney, who will conduct the prosecution.

Lieut. Kelly will assist the attorney in assembling the evidence against Campbell into a composite case. Witnesses wh ohave figured in the mystery who are helpful to the prosecution, will be subpenaed.

Mr. Collins yesterday expressed utmost confidence that he will obtain conviction of the Arlington County real estate dealer. Col. Calvin Goddard, ballistics expert, will probably be the principal witness for the Government, Mr. Collins said yesterday.

More than a score of Government witnesses will be called for direct and rebuttal testimony. The crux of the Government's case will undoubtedly be in the testimony of Col. Goddard, who identified Campbell's gun as the death weapon.

Since the case is to come to trial on October 21, Charles Henry Smith, his attorney, will not press his demand that his client be released on bond, he has said.

Woman Seeks $50,000 For Apartment Fall

Thelma Ullman, of 2238 Eighteenth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court against Evans & Davis, Inc., of 1328 I street northwest, seeking to recover $50,000 damages for injuries she alleges she suffered in a fall.

The woman, through Attorney Thomas M. Baker, charges that the company, alleged operators of the apartment, were negligent in not having the halls and stairways brightly lighted and in not keeping the stairs in a safe condition. She claims that on October 8, 1927, when she fell, it was raining and the defendants had not removed water tracked in by others from the steps. She was permanently injured, she says.

$30,000 Violin Larceny Is Charged to Musician

Held for the grand jury on $1,000 bond, Sol Feinman, 40 years old, music instructor of Philadelphia, is charged with larceny after trust in connection with the disappearance of a violin valued at $30,000. The violin, made in 1505 by an Italian artist named Lalo, belongs to Miss Gladys V. Harrison and her sister, Mrs. Mary Pistole, of 18 Seventh street southeast, it is said.

According to charges made by the woman, Feinman called at their home to interest Miss Harrison's brother, Warren, in music lessons. Shown the violin, Feinman is alleged to have offered to have it repaired, and then disappeared. Following his arrest in Philadelphia, the violin was recovered in a shop on Fifth street northeast near A street.

Thacher Collection Return By Congress Library Asked

Administrators of Widow's Estate File Suit Against Librarian, Charging Provisions of Will Have Not Been Observed.

The $300,000 John Boyd Thacher collection, housed at the Library of Congress for the past two decades, a valuable exhibit of the autographs of emperors, kings, queens and popes, and a font of information concerning the Napoleonic Wars and the French Revolution, was involved in a suit yesterday in District Supreme Court in which administrators of the estate of Mrs. Emma Treadwell Thacher seek to recover all books, manuscripts, letters and autographs in the collection.

George Curtis Treadwell and Hugh Reilly, as administrators of Mrs. Thacher's estate, the plaintiffs, charge that the library has failed to carry out the terms prescribed in Mrs. Thacher's will.

It is further set out in the declaration that Treadwell was to receive the collection in event the library failed to carry out these provisions. Demand was made for the return of the documents. The will was said to have provided that the collection be kept intact and that it be properly catalogued.

Library officials, questioned after the suit was filed, stated that the collection was being kept intact and that a catalogue containing the collection was now in the press.

Most of the collection, it was brought out, was sent to the library in 1910, a few years after the death of Mr. Thacher, a wealthy manufacturer, of Albany, N. Y.

Herbert Putnam, librarian of Congress, was named as defendant in the action, which was filed through Attorneys Charles D. Williams, Richard N. Wilmer and G. Howland Chase. Mr. Putnam was charged in the declaration with refusing demands of executors for return of the collection.

DEFENDANTS GIVEN VERDICT IN TRIAL OF MONEY-LENDER CASE

B. J. Smith Loses in Fight to Recover $800 Claim on Deed of Trust Note.

DEFENSE SAYS USURY AND FRAUD EMPLOYED

A suit brought against Bennie L. Marshall and his wife, Mrs. Mamie E. Marshall, of 1421 K street southeast, by Beverlie J. Smith, president of the Home Improvement Finance Co., Inc., to recover $800 claimed on a deed of trust note, was dismissed in Municipal Court when the jury, after deliberating 45 minutes, found a verdict for the defendants.

The Marshalls' defense, represented in filed affidavits and in the pleas filed by their attorney, Philip W. Austin, contended that the note was obtained through fraud, usury and without consideration, and that the plaintiff had used a professional money lender as an agent for the purpose of collecting the note, and hence was not an innocent holder in due course.

Mr. Marshall stated that on August 28, 1925, he "was in need of funds and went to see one George M. Rowen with a view to borrowing $300; that the said George M. Rowen advised him that it would cost him an additional $100, or a total of $400, for said loan; that he and his wife were unversed in business and financial affairs and placed implicit confidence in the said George M. Rowen; that at the request and instruction of the said George M. Rowen they signed and executed certain papers which they have learned since the institution of this suit to have been a deed of trust securing two promissory notes, one for $150 and the other for $650."

No Lender's License, Claim.

Rowen, who later incorporated himself to operate under the name of George M. Rowen, Inc., was represented as a professional money lender to whom the Marshalls were referred when their need for cash became pressing. Neither Rowen as an individual nor the corporation bearing his name is licensed to operate as a money lender under the act of February 4, 1913.

Under the Marshalls' arrangement with Rowen, the affidavits declared, the notes were to be paid off at the rate of $25 monthly, with interest at 7 per cent, and the entire amount to be paid within one year from date of the notes.

At the end of the year, Mr. Marshall testified, after having paid about $250 with interest, at the rate of $25 a month and interest, Rowen wrote to Mr. Marshall to come in to execute a renewal note.

Mr. Marshall stated on the witness stand that he and his wife went to see Rowen in response to this letter, and signed new papers, only learning at the time the suit was brought by Smith that although their original notes for $650 and $150 were not surrendered to them nor the deeds of trust securing these notes released, they actually had signed a new note for $800 and a deed of trust to secure the note. It was this latter note for $800 which constituted the basis for Smith's action against the Marshalls.

Says Note Was Altered.

Mr. Marshall testified further that "at the time the alleged note for $800 was executed it did not carry or bear any such amount." The defense therefore charged that "either the said instruments were subsequently altered or the amounts inserted after execution; that the original deed of trust and the notes secured thereby were never returned to them or released, and that there is no consideration for the making and execution of the notes."

Smith, who brought the suit originally in the name of the Home Improvement Finance Co., Inc., but later substituted himself individually as plaintiff, insisted that he was an innocent purchaser of the note for $800 which he claimed to have bought for $720 from Rowen.

The defense contended, however, that "the said George M. Rowen is one of the trustees on the deed of trust securing the note herein sued upon; that the plaintiff purchased a large number of notes from the said George M. Rowen, or George M. Rowen, Inc., and knew the usurious character of the business which the said George M. Rowen and George M. Rowen, Inc., conducted and operated, and purchased the notes of the defendants as well as many other notes at a tremendous and unreasonable discount and are therefore not holders in due course without notice."

Smith Testimony Heard.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Austin, Smith admitted on the witness stand that he had been in the business of buying notes for 20 years, and that he was "practically the sole owner" of the Home Improvement Finance Co., which was a note-buying corporation.

When Mr. Austin asked him the name of the vice president of the Home Improvement Finance Co., Inc., Smith, the president of the corporation, stated that he could not recall, nor was he able to state how much stock the secretary held. Subsequently Smith admitted under further examination that he, himself, held all of the stock in the corporation except "a couple of shares," the amount necessary to comply with the law.

Commenting upon the case, Mr. Austin declared that in his opinion, while it was highly desirable that the negotiability of notes and similar paper could not be impaired, he felt that "the only way to curb the evil of usury and fraud with regard to such paper is by the passage of a bill declaring all secured notes, bills or drafts to be assignments.

"While this might restrict their negotiability to some extent," he added, "no payee rightfully in possession of such paper would have difficulty in demonstrating the fact to any prospective purchaser, and the rights of the maker would be fully protected."

GOVERNMENT ALLEGES THAT HE RETAINED THEM

$1,000,000 of Company's Funds Diverted to Own Use, Agents Say.

Sensational charges that G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., had borrowed ledger sheets covering his personal account from the Southern Maryland Trust Co., of Seat Pleasant, Md., and had refused to return them, and that examination of the bank's deposit sheets showed that Pitts had deposited more than a million dollars of the company's funds to his personal account are contained in a replication to a plea in abatement filed yesterday by the Government to a plea in abatement in which Pitts claimed that evidence against him was obtained through illegal search and seizure.

Pitts charged in his plea to the indictment in which he and three other former officials of the company are named as defendants, that Government agents disguised as fire inspectors had entered the offices of the company in New York City and had seized the records. The Government says this is not so and declares that all clues, leads and information upon which the Government based its "preliminary investigation and grand jury presentations" were obtained from former employes of the company.

Indictment Errors Found.

The replication and two others to pleas filed by Samuel J. Henry, former president of the company, followed the Government's withdrawal of motions to quash the pleas on the grounds that they had been filed too late. This development came Tuesday, the eve of the scheduled trial of the case on its merits.

At the same time yesterday it was revealed that the Government is planning to re-present the indictment in which Pitts, in 100 counts, is charged with embezzling funds of the company.

The reason the case is to be represented, it was stated, is because certain errors in the indictment have been discovered as well as additional evidence.

In the replication filed to the plea on Pitts' behalf the Government denies emphatically that agents of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice posed as fire inspectors in order to seize records of Pitts' personal account with the Seat Pleasant Bank.

Visited Rental Agents.

Instead, says the Government, they visited the rental agents of a loft at 135 West Twenty-third street, New York City, which they had been advised contained property of the Smith company and was under armed guard. The agent, when advised of the guard, is said to have declared that the terms of the lease was being violated, the Government asserts. Then, the Government sets out, the real estate man led the agents past the armed guard with the explanation that they were fire insurance inspectors. The Government further asserts that the agents never revealed their identity, never declared they were fire inspectors and were not admonished not to touch any property they might find. The Government, however, denies that the agents seized anything.

The real truth of the investigation which led to the indictment, according to the Government, lies in the fact that former employes on about December 28, 1929, advised department agents that "if certain books of the Smith company could be found they would disclose that a huge portion of the assets" of the company "had been embezzled."

Agents Visit Bank.

These alleged embezzlements, the Government says the former employe explained, had been "accomplished by the illegal transfer of funds from the F. H. Smith Co.'s checking account at the Commercial National Bank, of Washington, to the personal bank account of G. Bryan Pitts at the Southern Maryland Trust Co., of Seat Pleasant, Md." Agents then went to the bank and failing to find a record of Pitts' account were advised that they had been turned over to Pitts and that he had refused to return them, it is charged.

Various other reports were received by the Department of Justice from former employes of the company and finally the Government checked the deposit slips of Pitts' account, at Seat Pleasant, the Government avers.

In replying to the pleas in behalf of Henry, the Government admits that while special attorneys of the Department of Justice who presented the case to the grand jury did not present their commissions to the court; that they filed them with the foreman of the grand jury.

In addition to Pitts and Henry, C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., are under indictments on the charge.

Henry Files New Suit.

Mr. Henry yesterday filed suit in the Chancery Court at Wilmington, Del., asking that Pitts' control over 50,000 shares of the company's common stock be voided. The shares were turned over to Pitts, the suit avers, to be distributed among "deserving employes." The complaint further alleges that Pitts amended the minutes of the directors' meeting by inserting a proviso which would entitle him to become owner of the stock.

A group of preferred stockholders in the company also moved to acquire control of the firm yesterday by asking present officers to cancel all common stock on the ground that it was issued without consideration. Conrad S. Syme, Washington counsel for the group, said that unless the request was complied with a suit would be filed in Delaware courts for cancellation of the common stock and the transfer of control to preferred stockholders.

Trinity College Hears Abbe Ernest Dimnet

Abbe Dimnet is on a short tour in America and recently addressed the College of Notre Dame, in Baltimore. He was later entertained by Representative John Philip Hill, who, like Abbe Dimnet, was a delegate to the International Congress of the Anti-prohibition League in London in 1924.

MR. TWITCHELL DESIGNS A TABLOID GOLF CLUBHOUSE.

ELMER TWITCHELL announces plans for a Tom Thumb golf course clubhouse. This is the one thing puppy golf lacks at present and Elmer, after months of study, thinks he has designed a building that will cheer the peewee golfer's soul.

• • • •

The clubhouse will be a one-story affair with no door more than 3 feet high and with the various rooms connected up by pipes instead of corridors. The locker room will be the chief novelty. It will be reached by worming between three posts 14 inches apart or crawling through a gas main.

• • • •

The lockers will be 2 feet high by 7 inches in width and will be placed alternately horizontally and perpendicularly, just to make them harder. Golfers drawing the horizontal lockers will have to lie down to change their clothes, but a difficulty such as this means nothing to a true tabloid golfer.

• • • •

THE shower room will be reached by climbing hand over hand to an aperture in the wall and squeezing through into a shower room so low that a shower can be taken only when sitting down. Towels will be 4 inches square.

• • • •

The dining room, 14 feet long by a yard and a half wide, will be an architectural wonder. It will be entered by taking a 4-foot jump across a water hazard. Only half portions of food will be served. Oyster crackers will be used exclusively as tea biscuits and anybody ordering watermelon will get a California white grape. The waiters will be Singer midgets.

• • • •

Then there will be a lounge, accessible to anybody who can jump 7 feet onto a small balcony and crawl on hands and knees through a tunnel 16 inches in diameter. All the furniture will be specially designed and a feature will be a sofa, which will stand on end instead of in the conventional manner. Resting in it is expected to prove quite a feat.

• • • •

MR. TWITCHELL'S plans called for a caddy house and shop in connection with the clubhouse. It will be located under a bench in the locker room and will be shaped like the letter "S."

• • • •

Noting the absence of porches on the Tom Thumb clubhouse as designed by him, a golfer asked Mr. Twitchell about this omission. "The porches are all inside the building in a narrow space between the ceiling and the room," explained Mr. Twitchell. "You reach them by climbing up a flue and then sliding down a greased chute with trap doors in it."

• • • •

"But why put porches inside a building, and in the attic of all places?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

COMMERCE GROUP OPENS NEW DRIVE

GAS TEAM IS LEADING

The Washington Chamber of Commerce expansion campaign got off to an encouraging start yesterday with the enrollment of 75 new members, it was announced last night by Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., secretary of the organization.

Most of the new members were signed on the dotted line between the time of "the early bird breakfast" at the Mayflower Hotel at 7:45 o'clock and the luncheon to newspapermen at the Washington Hotel at 12:30 o'clock. Announcement of the new members was made at this time. The second new membership announcement will be made at the luncheon today at the Washington.

One of the crack teams in the field is that of the Washington Gas Light Co., designated the "All Gas Co." team. This team enrolled more workers yesterday than any other team, it was announced. The gas light company unit is composed of A. Ewaldson, captain, director of sales of the appliance department; George B Fraser, financial vice president; George C. Whitwell, secretary; Edward Stafford, assistant secretary; Anthony Hyde, director of advertising and public relations; Abner C. Lakenan, branch manager, and Walter Allen, an executive of the Bryant Heater Manufacturing Co.

Two Cups to Be Awarded.

Two cups are to be awarded in the campaign, one to the team getting the highest number of new members and the other to the individual getting the most. The Washington Gas Light Co. team has issued a challenge to any one to defeat them for both cups.

Col. Edward Goring Bliss presided at the luncheon yesterday and introduced the following newspaper representatives to the team workers: N. N. Whelan, publisher of the Times and Herald; Don Warren, real estate editor of the Star; Mrs. Marion Banister, editor of the Washingtonian, and Aubrey Taylor, city editor of The Post.

Rudolph Jose is general chairman of the expansion campaign. Thomas P. Littlepage is giving a radio talk each evening this week in which he is explaining the objects of the campaign and the Washington forward movement. Mrs. Littlepage is colonel in charge of the 24 teams in the field.

Charles W. Darr Presides.

The chamber plans to increase its membership from approximately 1,000 to 2,500. As individual dues are $20 a year, this membership would give the organization a $50,000 annual budget to carry on the work. The campaign, it is pointed out, is not merely to increase the membership of the chamber, but to benefit the entire community in the forward movement. The present drive of enrolling new members will last about two weeks.

Jury Acquits Youth Charged With Arson

A jury in District Supreme Court before Justice Jesse C. Adkins yesterday acquitted William Henry Sawyer, 20-year-old Negro, on a charge of arson in connection with alleged attempts to burn Alice Jackson, 13-year-old colored girl.

The Negro was accused of having tied the girl in a chair in her home on Eighth street northwest, near S street, last July 24, and then set fire to the house. Sawyer was arrested shortly afterward and was held under $20,000 bond for the grand jury.

HIGHWAYS ENGINEER SUBMITS HIS REPORT

Employment of double shifts to speed up the work of street repair in the congested zone and on important highways should be made compulsory, Capt. Hebert C. Whitehurst, engineer of highways of the District, told the District Commissioners in his annual report, submitted yesterday.

Capt. Whitehurst asked for authority to include in the specification for work to be done next spring a provision requiring double-shift work on all street repair work ordered on heavily traveled streets.

"During the present construction season," Capt. Whitehurst said, "work has been materially speeded up by the liberal use of quick-setting cements and operating occasionally with two shifts instead of the customary one shift.

New Authority Asked.

"It is believed that the rapidly increasing volume of traffic warrants a provision in future specifications for compulsory two-shift work in the congested area, on all arterial highways and other important thoroughfares. It is urged that authority for the inclusion of such a provision be given for the next working season."

In the course of the last fiscal year Capt. Whitehurst said the following work was done: 6.27 miles of resurfacing; 1.76 miles of "covering" work; 2.43 miles of asphalt heater work; 12.2 miles of bituminous concrete, most of which was done in conjunction with curb and gutter work; 9.68 of cement concrete work, six of which were laid under the permit or one-half cost deposit system; 20 items of contract grading; ½ mile of concrete roadway by whole cost method, under which private persons or firms pay the whole cost; 1 mile of concrete items under whole cost plan.

Cost of Repairing.

The average age of asphalt pavements renewed last year was 27 years, the report said. Cost of repairing asphalt pavements more than five years old was .044 cents a square yard.

The summary of the work of the department appended to the report signed by L. P. Robertson, who was acting enginger of highways at the time the summary was completed in the temporary absence of Capt. Whitehurst from the city.

Georgia Court Reverses Home-Brew Conviction

Atlanta, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The Georgia Court of Appeals today said that it will take no judicial cognizance that 'home brew' is a beverage prohibited by the laws of this State."

The court reversed the conviction of Floyd Thompson, of Whitfield County, who was found guilty in superior court of a misdemeanor for the sale of such a beverage. The higher court held that there was no evidence to show the 'home brew' was intoxicating and that the conviction was not supported by the evidence. Thompson was arrested in April, 1930, on a charge of selling the brew at 25 cents a bottle.
